E. H. Banks, tournament manager of the Ontario Golf Association, announced these dates for provincial tournaments: Ontario Junior, July 15, at Weston and Ontario Amateur July 8-9 at Kitchener-Waterloo Westmount.

A French skiing team of six competitors, including one woman, arrived in Montreal Tuesday to prepare for the Canadian championships next weekend in the Laurentians. The squad is headed by Henri Oreiller, Olympic downhill champion. Desire Lacroix is the slalom expert.

At Salt Lake City, Petter Hugsted of Norway, 1948 Olympic ski-jumping champion, Tuesday won the United States ski-jumping tournament with leaps of 262 and 263 feet. Behind Hugsted came Art Devlin of Lake Placid N.Y., with leaps of 257 and 264 feet for second place honors.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario Tuesday night were the only unbeaten rinks remaining in the Canadian High School curling championship. Following completion of second round play in the round robin series. After drawing a bye in the opening round Ontario represented by Dryden High School, nosed out British Columbia 12-11 in the second round.

At Geneva, N.Y., signing of Charlie Small for his third season as manager of the Geneva Robins of the Class C Border League baseball team was announced Tuesday. Small piloted the team to second place last year after finishing last in 1947.

At New York, a crowd of 4,197 turned out Tuesday night to watch the return of professional wrestling to Madison Square Garden after a 12-year layoff. Gorgeous George, the highly-perfumed and fancily-attired Hollywood, Calif., showman, tossed Ernie Dusek of Omaha, Neb., in the headline attraction. It took him 26 minutes and 57 seconds.

At Lake Placid, N.Y., the ill-fated world bobsled champions, marred by accidents and hampered in unseasonal weather, finally came to a conclusion Tuesday with the United States sweeping the four-man races. The United States No. 2 team with Stanley Beham of Lake Placid doing the driving, captured the title while Jim Bickford's No. 1 U.S. foursome wound up in second place. The Swiss team piloted [illegible] ypmian Fritz Feinebend, was third and the French [illegible] fourth and last.

Pennsylvania sharpened the teeth of its sports anti-bribery laws Tuesday. A bill passed by the State House of Representatives Tuesday at Harrisburg makes any person subject to penalties up to three years' imprisonment and a $3,000 fine for even attempting to bribe a player or anyone connected with a sports event.

Nat Fleischer Voted Man Of Year by Boxers

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)— If Nat Fleischer never does anything more than put out his annual ring record book he will be "the only man who did the most for boxing" every year from now on.

The 1949 edition, just off the press, coincides nicely with an award to Nat as "man of the year in 1948" by the New York Boxing Managers Guild at their annual dinner tomorrow night.

Every sports editor and boxing fan on the continent is protected by Nat's authentic won-and-lost record of some 3,387 fighters, past and present.

In the old days, a manager could "phoney up" his fighter's record, but Nat stopped all that. The 2,500 copies of his limited edition are scattered from coast to coast. A flip of the page tells the real story on each active boxer who has had at least five fights in 1948.

Nat also includes records of all Mexican, Cuban and South American boxers and all European and British fighters. The European statistics are particularly important this year with a deluge of foreign talent swarming from each ship and plane.

Records are only a part of the volume. You'll find the ring earnings of Joe Louis, John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey, the measurements of all heavyweight champs, odds on all heavyweight contests, top ticket prices, famous holiday fights, record gates, longest winning streaks and ring deaths.

Leafs Call Up Horton, Hannigan Of St. Michael's

Toronto Maple Leafs might be called the "Sad Sacks" of the National Hockey League.

George Baker's hapless cartoon character always starts out happily to enjoy himself — and invariably takes a kicking around.

That's what happened to the Leafs last weekend. The third-place club blasted through Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks on successive nights and ended up only one point out of second place.

But the fates didn't want a happy ending. Four of the club's more effective forwards — Vic Lynn, Howie Meeker, Bill Ezinicki and Harry Taylor — were injured, two of them severely. It was the worst single injury jinx any club has run into this season.

To make matters worse, if possible, a quirk in the schedule gave Toronto Maestros Conn Smythe and Hap Day a whole week of idleness to sit and brood.

The Leafs don't play again until Saturday night when they meet Chicago in a return engagement at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Tonight, the only game scheduled is between Boston and the last-place New York Rangers. A victory for Rangers could move them ahead of Chicago by one point.

Tomorrow, Montreal Canadiens, three points behind Toronto, play in Chicago.

Quiet Week All Round

On the whole, it's a quiet week all round. The only action Tuesday night was an exhibition game Montreal played in Cincinnati to help open that city's new $3,000,000 gardens. Montreal loaned about half its team to Cincinnati but still won 5-2. The remainder of the "Cincinnati" players were from the American League, in which Cincy will play next year.

Meeker is the worst injured of the four laid - up Leafs. Just back in action after a shoulder fracture early in the season, he suffered a badly smashed foot bone Sunday night and is out for the rest of the season.

Lynn received a six-inch scalp gash when hit over the head by Chicago's Red Hamill.

Taylor suffered a twisted knee in the same game and probably will be out for a week at least. Ezinicki received an ankle injury in Saturday's Boston game.

As replacements, Toronto has called up two juniors, Tom Horton and Gord Hannigan of Toronto St. Michael's College. They'll take turns working on right wing with Harry Watson and Cal Gardner and may be played against the Hawks Saturday if they show up well in workouts.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS TAKE MANY LIVES

Toronto, Feb. 22 — (CP) — Traffic accidents accounted for 740 of the 1,996 accidental deaths recorded in Ontario during 1948, R. A. Stapelle, president of the Ontario Safety League, Monday told the league's annual meeting.

Canadiens Win At Opening Of Cincinnati Rink

Cincinnati, Feb. 23 (AP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League treated a crowd of 11,500 "first nighters" to spurts of ice wizardry Tuesday night as they humbled a Cincinnati team 5-2 at the formal opening of the $3,000,000 Cincinnati Garden.

The crowd, sitting in on the debut of professional hockey here, was believed to be the largest ever to see the ice sport in Ohio.

During the day, the American Hockey League, meeting here in conjunction with the Garden opening, voted to retain its present playoff system for the 1949 season. Cincinnati will become a member of the American League next season.

Tuesday night's "Cincinnati" team, made up of members of the Dallas Texans of the United States Hockey League and spare players from the Montreal outfit, offered little more than token opposition for the Canadiens.

The playoff system, retained by the American League, will send the top three teams in the final standings in each the western and eastern divisions into the playoff, with the east teams playing the west through the first round.

Boxer Placed Under 30-Day Suspension

Cleveland, Feb. 23 (AP)— For a four-minute round with the referee, his handlers and several policemen, Blackjack Billy Fox, Philadelphia middleweight boxer was under a 30-suspension today.

The fun for a crowd of 9,194 customers at the arena last night came after Fox lost his first bout of the program to Dick Wagner of Portland, Ore., on a technical knockout.

Fox was on the floor when referee Don Gonzales lifted Wagner's hand after 48 seconds of the ninth round in the scheduled 10-rounder. Fox raised himself to his wobbly legs and made for Wagner and the referee while the cops started climbing into the ring.

In addition to the suspension, chairman Andy Putka of the Cleveland Boxing Commission gave Fox an order to be examined today by the commission physician.

WALES MAKES HARMONICAS

Colwyn Bay, Wales — (CP) — Mouth organ manufacture has been introduced as a new industry in North Wales. Present production is 1,200 weekly. Plans have been made to increase this output to 10,000. Orders already include one for 10,000 from New Zealand.

Cornwall Calumets Beaten by Volants

Ottawa, Feb. 23 — (CP)—Fast-skating Hull Volants, sparked by Smily Meronek's two-goal effort, Tuesday night trimmed Cornwall Calumets 6-2 to take the opener of a best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League championship.

The Hull skaters, trailing 2-0 in the first 15 minutes of play, grabbed the lead with Meronek's first goal at the 15:11 mark in the first frame and were never headed.

Leo Blondin, Jack McLean and Gilles Bourdon helped build up the Volants four-point edge over the Calumet's with one goal each.

Calumets' defeat came after a strong start when defenceman Eddie Emmerton opened the game's scoring at the 5:00 mark in the first period.

Currently Brooks holds a slight lead, but with eight days of racing to go Atkinson, leader for the last two winters here, could nose him out. Apprentice Logan Batcheller is only a whisker behind the two leaders.

Brooks has 25 firsts to date, Atkinson 22 and Batcheller 21.

Atkinson, who was born in Toronto but got his start as a jockey on New Jersey tracks, has twice led United States riders and is widely known in the east.

WIN OVER SLOVAKIA

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Sudbury Wolves, who placed second in the International amateur hockey championships at Stockholm last week, Tuesday opened their Czechoslovakian tour with a 6-4 victory over a Slovakia team before 9,000 fans.

Both teams tallied once in the opening period. In the second the Canadians scored three goals while the Czechs garnered only one and in the final period both teams scored twice.

Don Munroe and Ray Bauer paced the Canadian attack with two goals each. Emile Gagne and Johnny Kovich each added one tally.

One Person Killed, Three Injured As Car Skids

London, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP) — One Londoner was killed and 3 others injured today when police said their auto skidded head - on into a transport truck about six miles east of London.

Forest Teale, 24, was thrown from the front seat of the car and crushed under the wheels of the transport.

Allan Anderson, 32, who police said was the driver is in hospital with a fractured hip and suffering from shock. His condition is fair. Two rear seat passengers, Wilbert Everett, 46, and Real Richard, 33, were injured slightly.

The Direct Winters transport driver was Arthur L. Noddle, 29, of Scarboro Junction, Ont. He was unhurt.

The accident occurred during a freezing rain with visibility poor. Police said the car apparently skidded on icy No. 2 highway, went into a ditch and then careened into the westbound transport.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The boys in the back room might think nothing of it. After two looks at the oppenent cards, I mean. But in a regular bridge game even they might not make six spades in this deal:

NORTH
♥K 7
♣A 3 2

WEST
♥Q J 4 2
♦K Q 5
♣K Q J 9 6

EAST
♠7 6 3
♥9 8 5
♦J 8 7 4 2

SOUTH

You would get a bit of excitement out of taking 12 tricks here with your own planning. If not, your thrill-cells need recharging. Making such contracts is not ordinary stuff.

A master player was the south who made the spade small slam with the cards you see. The opening lead from west was club king. Take a look at the dummy and see what he is up against.

Two club losers are what he has to worry about. There is also the small matter of ruffing enough diamonds and hearts, maybe. Not a very encouraging outlook despite the trump wealth.

Opponents have four trumps. Small as they are, the expectancy to consider is three in one hand and two in the other. If trumps are pulled, all red cards can not be ruffed.

Refusing to take trick one, dummy club ace won the second club. Diamond ace was cashed and a diamond ruffed in south. Trump ten was won with dummy jack. Another diamond was ruffed with spade ace.

A trump was won in dummy. Another diamond was ruffed with spade queen. This used up all the south trumps. So a heart entered dummy with the king and the high trump led. This cleaned east of trumps.

Dummy was left with a 13er trump, a small heart, trey of clubs. South kept his three best hearts. West held club jack and heart Q J. East cards were immaterial. Right here dummy led the last trump.

South could let go of a heart. But west was squeezed. His club sluff would make good the dummy trey of clubs and south heart ace is the last trick. Should west sluff a heart? If he does, south would get the last two tricks with hearts.

It looks like a heart breaker.

Hollywood Feb. 23 — (AP) — Today's question for the Hollywood forum is "What do you think was the greatest acting performance on film and why?"

To prevent any axe-grinding I stipulated that selections had to be dated before 1948. Here are the answers:

Dorothy Lamour: "I'm no dramatic critic so I have to choose the role that made the strongest impression on me. It was Joan Crawford in 'Letty Lynton'."

Charles Bickford: "For integrity of performance, you can't beat John Gilbert in 'The Big Parade'."

Ann Sothern: "Garbo in 'Camille' was a faultless interpretation of the role.

French Film

Paul Henreid: "Raimu in 'The Baker's Wife.' A flawless performance."

Jeanette MacDonald: 'Helen Hayes in 'The Sin of Madelon Claudet'."

Lynn Bari: "Garbo has always been great, but I liked her best in 'Ana Karenina'."

Gene Raymond: "Douglas Fairbanks in 'Arabian Nights,' because he presented a picture of what every man would like to be."

Leigh and Laughton

Clark Gable: "Vivien Leigh in 'Gone With the Wind'."

Kirk Douglas: "Van Heflin in 'Johnny Eager.' He had a role with many pitfalls and he came throught it on a straight course."

Maureen O'Hara: "Charles Laughton as Captain Bligh in 'Mutiny on the Bounty.' It's rare when an actor completely loses his identity in a role, as Laughton did."

Dennis O'Keefe: "Charlie Chaplin in 'The Kid' and 'City Lights.' His scenes with the men from the orphan asylum and with the blind girl are tops in my memory."

Inter-Provincial Conference Asked By West Member

(By The Canadian Press)

Provincial rights, a hot subject in Ontario and Quebec, is stirring up a bit of excitement in the West.

In Throne Speech debate in the Alberta legislature, Arthur Wray, Independent Social Credit member for Banff-Cochrane, yesterday suggested calling an Inter-Provincial conference to define which powers belong to the Federal Government and which to the provinces. He charged the Federal government with "usurping" the rights of the provinces. cess.

Mr. Wray said, Quebec and Ontario are the only two provinces that have resisted and refused to sign a Dominion-Provincial tax agreement.

Lifting of Prince Edward Island's ban on manufacture and sale of margarine was forecast in the Throne Speech at Charlottetown. Also promised were legislation setting up a workmen's compensation act, incorporation of Crown companies, further aid for the fishing industry and improved ferry service with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Wants Full Value

Quebec's Premier Maurice Duplessis came out for full value for a day's pay. He told the legislative assembly that due to what he called "loafing on the job," a building supposed to cost $800,000 costs more than $1,000,000 today.

"Leaders tell laborers not to lay more than 300 bricks a day," he said. "If farmers had the same mentality, I don't know where we would be."

The Saskatchewan legislature gave second reading to a bill amending the Automobile Insurance Act to provide fire and theft coverage.

Opposition speakers continued to hammer at government hydro policies in Throne Speech debate at Toronto. William Dennison, a C.C.F. spokesman blamed hydro shortages on what he called "political interference in hydro affairs."

Throne Speech debate also continued at Victoria with opposition member E. E. Winch (CCF-Burnaby) criticizing government handling of the drug addict problem and Arthur B. Ritchie (Coalition-Salmon Arm) urging restoration of a forest training system used before the war to help fight forest fires.

An increase in Manitoba wolf bounty to $25 from $10 was urged by G. P. Renouf (PC-Swan River) in the House at Winnipeg.

SALARY CUT

The government of India has reduced the governor-general's annual salary from $72,000 to $19,800 (free of income tax).

BELLEVILLE MISS
WINS SINGALONG JACKPOT
MISS ANNA LAURA SIMPSON, 63 Moira Street East, Belleville, has won herself a cash prize of $225.00, plus a Presto Pressure Cooker, on the day-time network program sponsored by Toni Home Permanent.
Miss Simpson, it was announced today, wrote the winning letter, out of thousands of entries, to crack the jackpot on the "Singalong" show.
It's all in a name! Miss Simpson won the prize simply because her nickname is Annie. Hear the details of this exciting contest on "Singalong" broadcast every Tuesday and Thursday at 1.45 p.m., over CKWS, Kingston.
The award will be made to Miss Anna Laura Simpson by Mr. Jack Pollie, Program Director of Station CKWS, on the air at 2.00 Thursday afternoon, immediately following the "Singalong" show.

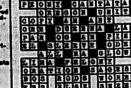
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop has been eating kind of funny for about a week on account of his tooth herting him, but he always changed the subject different every time ma mentioned going to the dentist about it, and after supper ma said, William, how does your tooth feel?

No matter how it feels, it's coming out tomorrow, pop said. I've given it a fair chance to stop its nonsense, and now my patience is exhawsted. Tomorrow that tooth and I part company, and after that I dont care if I never see it again, he said, and ma said, Well, you certainly seem to of made up your mind.

I'd of had it out today if I hadn't been so bizzy pop said. I've been very tolerant and broad minded with that tooth, but now it's had its last chance. I gave it a whole week to pipe down under its own steam, and bleeve me it has plenty of steam, and now I'm going to take matters into my own hands. I've done my part to the best of my ability, and now it's the dentist's tern. My conscience is cleer about one thing, no tooth ever had a squarer deel, and now the rest is up to the dentist. All I can do is wish him a good eye and a quick wrist, pop said, and ma said, Speeking of the dentist, he called up.

The dooce he did, when? pop said, and ma said, Just before you got home. It seems the X-rays showed the tooth has to come out, and his secreterry was suppose to call you at your office and tell you he'd take it out tomorrow. The dentist wasn't sure if she had reached you with the message, but apparently she did. What time is the appointment for the extraction, William? ma said.

Four 30 in the afternoon, but the principle is the same, I'd of had it out just the same, I'd of had it out just the same, but if you feel like laffing, dont stop on my account, pop said.

Which she didn't.

SAVIOUR OF AMERICA

The bearded, barefoot and white-robed individual shown here with his equally religiously garbed wife, Ruth, leaving a plane in Denver, Colo., identifies himself only as "The Voice"—self-styled saviour of America. Preaching a "mind over matter" theology, "The Voice" is attempting to save America from the materialism of the world. He and Ruth, who have spread the gospel all over the globe, say they will continue his work "until mankind no longer exists." When interviewed in Denver, "The Voices" were en route to their home in Los Angeles.—Central Press Canadian.

Baltimore (AP)— Two Baltimore cops were making just like the movies yesterday.

Standing on a street corner, they spotted a car used for a getaway in $150 grocery store holdup. Quick as a flicker, the two policemen hailed a taxicab and gave the driver the traditional "follow that car."

The cab wheeled around and the driver stepped on the gas, with the cops hanging on the running boards. Then—sssssshhhh Flat tire.

Van Nuys, Calif., (AP)— Police arrested Robert H. White Ewn on a charge of passing a worthless cheque.

In jail, White missed his cigarets. Jailer Charles Conrad agreed to buy some if White provided the funds.

White authorized the jailer to take a $100 bill from his impounded wallet and buy a carton. But the bill, Conrad reported, was counterfeit.

Santa Barbara, Calif., (AP)— A homing pigeon yesterday rescued his master from trouble.

Prowling police found four youngsters sleeping in a tent on the beach during the night. They hauled them to the station and questioned them as possible runaways. The boys said they were on a holiday outing, but police couldn't check the story, because none of the four has home telephones.

"I brought some carrier pigeons along," said Hal Meyers, 15, happily. "I'll send one home with a message."

An Associated Press dispatch was relayed to Mrs. George Meyers, Hal's mother. She checked his pigeon loft. Sure enough, there was one message.

She hurried to a telephone.

"They had full permission," she explained.

ISRAEL PRESIDENT AFTER INAUGURATION

Escorted by army, navy and air force chiefs, Dr. Chaim Weizmann is shown leaving the Jewish agency building in Jerusalem after he was inaugurated president of the state of Israel. Weizmann, a lifelong fighter for Zionism, had been named provisional president last May 17, three days after the British departed from Palestine. —Central Press Canadian.

ARABS IN ISRAEL PARLIAMENT

Two of the Arab delegates, distinguished by their headdress, are shown attending Israel's first parliament in Jerusalem. Seated in rear, they are Mohammed Said el Zabi and Amin Salib Jarjura, both of the Nazareth Democratic party, with David Ben Hacohen (right) of the Israel Labor party. In front are two M.A.P.A.I. delegates.—Central Press Canadian.

IT WAS ALL SHOCK TO HER

Betty Ritchie, formerly of Toronto and Fenelon Falls, Ont., is shown in a Hollywood night club with Gerard G. Dennis, alleged "gentleman burglar" held by New York police. Betty burst into tears when California police informed her that Dennis had other girls, too. "I'm horrified to learn that he had other girl friends. It's all a terrible shock to me." She is being held on suspicion of burglary, and receiving stolen property, but she maintained her innocence.—Central Press Canadian.

Where the Mississagi River used to flow, workers drill into rock for foundation of the tunnel development dam north of Thessalon. Drilling will go 40 feet below the original river bed to give water a longer flow to power house.

BLAMES MARSHALL FOR CHAOTIC SITUATION

The Rev. John T. S. Mao (above), chancellor of the archdiocese of Nanking, asserted in Washington that Gen. George C. Marshall must be blamed for the Communist victories which threaten to deliver most of China to the Communist forces. Rev. Mao added that the ill-fated mission to China Marshall undertook before he became secretary of state caused the present gravely chaotic situation. "Marshall was given a thoroughly wrong picture of Chinese Communists," said Mao. "The man responsible for Marshall's misinformation is Owen Lattimore, U.S. political adviser in the Far East."—Central Press Canadian.

HELD BY CZECHS

U.S. demands for release of Clarence Hill (above), Jackson, Miss., one of two G.I.'s held in Czechoslovakia since Dec. 10, have been ignored, according to a State Department report. A recruit with the U.S. Sixth Armored Cavalry in Germany, Hill wandered over the border with George J. Jones, Owensboro, Ky., and was placed under arrest.—Central Press Canadian.

'Snap' Election Discredited By Labor Quarters

London, Feb. 23 — (Reuters)— Conservative newspaper speculation here suggesting a "snap" general election in the spring or autumn was discredited today by informed labor quarters.

The general belief in Britain is that the government will run its full term until the middle of next year.

None of the speculation takes account of the major considerations which will determine the time of the general election.

First of these is that, by general reckoning, Labor's position in the country will be stronger a year hence than it is today.

It is widely accepted also that government prestige, which fell sharply between 1946 and last year, now is slowly on the upgrade.

Labor supporters say this tendency will be strengthened by the expected continued improvement in Britain's economic position, and the gradual easing of domestic living conditions resulting from it.

In April and May, Labor will be fighting a wide campaign of local-government elections, results of which will provide valuable pointers for the general election next year.

These factors alone would rule out an early summer election in 1949, except for emergency reasons.

Other Considerations

There are other considerations which make an autumn election this year equally improbable.

The "first five-year plan" is based on a run of government up to 1950. Labor's parliament bill, which gives the House of Lords powers of delaying legislation from two years to one, will not become law until the end of this year. This means that the bill to nationalize iron and steel, which the parliament bill will safeguard, will not be on the statute books until 1950.

A general election earlier than 1950 would upset the parliamentary processes which have been devised to safeguard steel nationalization.

Labor's "second five-year plan" is expected to contain nationalization and other issues which may provoke controversy not only in the country but among party members when they meet in national session in May.

The party is unlikely to complicate its position by risking a snap election which might result in the weakening of its parliamentary authority at a critical period.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg— Friends of Miss Emma Porter will regret to learn that she is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital suffering from a fractured hip. Miss Porter while doing her household chores on Wednesday, had the misfortune to fall on a piece of ice in the back yard resulting in the fracture. She was removed by ambulance to the hospital where X-rays were taken, and an operation performed on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jones opened their home on Wednesday evening for a progressive crokinole party under the auspices of the Women's Association of the United Church. An enjoyable evening was spent by all who attended and refreshments brought the evening to a climax.

Mrs. Murney Geen was hostess at her home on Tuesday evening to a progressive euchre party sponsored by the congregation of Christ Church. There was a good attendance and fifteen tables of euchre were played at the conclusion. refreshments were served by the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrence Bird have disposed of their home in the village to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Emerson of Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Emerson are former residents of the village and community.

Little Miss Janet Geen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmon Geen of Halloway is staying for a time with her grandmother, Mrs. M. Geen, owing to the illness of her mother.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH . . .
BABY CHICKS
START THEM RIGHT, WITH "MIRACLE" CHICK STARTER
The difference between success and failure in poultry raising is often just a lot of little things. For instance, chicks' feed requirements for the first six weeks are very small, but the ration must be complete in all nutritional elements.
To make sure they'll get off to a fine, fast start, feed them Miracle Chick Starter right from the beginning.
The perfect balance and quality ingredients of Miracle Chick Starter make it a feed that a baby chick can easily turn into bones, tissues and feathers. As little as two pounds is all that's needed for each chick for the first six weeks. And the result is less chance of death losses, slow growth or undernourishment . . . more chance of poultry profits.

Herds Adjusted To Food Supply

Edmonton 1 (CP) — Alberta's Banff and Jasper national parks are showing the benefits from a program of wild-life management designed to ensure a proper balance between the elk population and the carrying capacity of the natural park ranges.

The ranges themselves have shown general improvement and the animals themselves are in fine condition.

One of the main features of the management program this winter has been the reduction of the increased elk herds by carefully controlled slaughters.

The slaughters were made necessary by increases in elk herds to the point where they were over-using their food supplies, threatening starvation to themselves and permanent reduction of the carrying capacity of the natural ranges.

The slaughters are controlled as to numbers, location, sex, age and condition of the animals.

There is no wastage of meat involved. Meat and hides are turned over to the Indian Affairs department, the former to be used for food by needy Indians and the latter for work in leather crafts.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

She felt elated. Red and white had suggested Sissy Minturn's rash. "Now, Luther," she talked very fast. "You write stories for a living. I'm going to give you a chance to live one. You've got to help me."

"No you don't! You don't get me into any of your conniving feminine schemes."

"Luther, please, darling," she pleaded desperately. "If you had a chance to make two people happy, just by doing a little . . . well, something I've thought of, you'd do it, wouldn't you?"

"What two people?" he demanded suspiciously.

"A man and his wife who've made a dreadful mistake. They ought to be married . . . in fact they were married and she got jealous and got a divorce and now they're both miserable."

"And what do we do?" Go and give them a nice speech about carrying on for dear old home life?"

Rosalie disregarded his flippancy. "The woman is a nervous wreck. Her children need their father. She's so miserable, she can't do anything with them. He needs a home and he needs her. He's ready to propose to the first woman who cooks him a meal."

"You don't mean to tell me, Miss Bates, that you've been feeding that long-faced would-be anthropologist to worm his life's story out?"

"Of course I don't, and if you are going to tell me I'm being noble, I'll throw something at you."

"Why don't they talk it over without help? That guy can talk enough."

Rosalie made the face of despair that women always make when confronted with man's stupidity in such matters. "She won't. She thinks he doesn't want her. I know that he's dying for a home. So we're going to bring them together. Please? This is what I want you to do—"

A half hour later, Luther said, reluctantly, "Okay, if you're sure I won't be put in jail."

"Now, remember, Luther, you must arrive promptly at two Saturday because I'll have to get to the boat to sail at three."

Rosalie sat at the writing-desk in the sun-room. She was writing a long letter of explanation to Janet.

Gloria Minturn said, "Rosalie won't you please tell me what this means?"

Rosalie turned around and gave her guest a mildly reproachful glance. "Now, Gloria, don't be upset. If it is scarlet fever, it isn't a bad case. It will probably mean that you'll be quarantined, but Janet won't mind if you have to stay here."

Rosalie looked at her wrist watch. It was half - past one.

She told Charles to come for lunch at one-thirty, and she'd have to get Gloria upstairs where the two children, beautifully covered with a mild rash of poison ivy, were being restrained in bed.

"We never, never should have come over to spend last night with you. This is terrible!" she wailed.

"It was an act of kindness, Gloria. I would have been terrified to stay in the house alone."

"But I shouldn't have brought the children. Only I thought they were so much better. And I didn't want to leave them alone. Only now . . ."

"Don't you worry about it at all. I've sent for Dr. King. He should be here any minute."

Rosalie looked out the window and saw the tall figure of Charles bicycling slowly up the hill. She turned quickly. "You'd better run up and stay with them until the doctor comes, don't you think?"

Gloria's skirts cleared the landing as Charles approached the door. Rosalie waited until she heard the door of the room the children were in close firmly. Then she opened the outer door.

"Come in," she said brightly. "Lunch has been waiting for half an hour. And I've your favorite soup."

Rosalie did a great deal of praying as that luncheon progressed. She prayed that Luther wouldn't get cold feet; that Gloria wouldn't take it into her head to come downstairs; that Charles wouldn't speak so loud that his voice could be heard on the floor above; that Charles wouldn't recognize Luther.

There was a long pull at the door-bell. "That . . . that's the doctor, I think." Rosalie said, fleeing to the hall.

Rosalie opened the door. "Luther!" she gasped. She had to stuff her handkerchief into her mouth to keep from bursting into laughter. Luther had combed his hair down over his brows. His false mustache did not look false. He wore gold-rimmed spectacles and a string tie. His suit was unpressed, shiny and redolent of antiseptics. In his hand was a most authoritative looking doctor's bag, bulging with instruments.

"I'm Dr. King," he said.

"Oh . . . oh . . . oh, yes," she said in a voice loud enough to be heard in the living-room. "The patients have a rash of some kind, doctor.. Will you go right up, please?"

"There's quite a bit of scarlet fever about. Good thing you called me."

Rosalie controlled herself and reentered the living-room.

"What's the matter?" Charles asked at once.

"Go right on with your lunch, Charles. Some friends of Janet's were having their house repainted and they're staying here. They just came last night — same name as yours incidentally — and the two children have developed a rash. Please let me give you another chop . . . Now then, what were we talking about?"

They had got to dessert when the "doctor" appeared in the doorway. He said, "Who else is in this house?"

"Why — why . . . only this gentleman and myself."

"I'm afraid I'll have to quarantine you until my diagnosis is, er —confirmed."

Rosalie ran to the door, her ears pinned back to hear if Gloria had heard. She heard the door open, heard Gloria's footsteps on the floor above as they approached the staircase.

She said, "Doctor, are the children very ill?"

"Very. Very, very ill indeed. The . . . er . . . temperature of the boy is alarming."

"Oh," Rosalie held out her hand to Charles. "What shall we do?"

"There isn't anything you can do," Luther put in. "I'll send Dr. Butler around this afternoon." Dr. Butler was the health director. "And, in the meantime, I'll have to ask you, and you, sir, to consider yourself prisoners," he cacked, "in a manner of speaking."

"What do you think it is, doctor?"

"Scarlet fever. No doubt about it."

"Scarlet fever! You didn't tell me that, doctor!" Gloria almost threw herself down the stairs. "Oh doctor, you must . . ." She stopped.

Rosalie thought Gloria Minturn's heart must have stopped beating. She was so completely immobile.

Her eyes were fixed beyond Rosalie to where Charles stood "Oh, Charles!" It was a tiny stifled cry.

Something brushed by Rosalie. It was Charles. It was Charles with his arms about the shaking shoulders of his former wife. "Don't you worry, Gloria. It's a good thing I was here. We'll get all the doctors in Bermuda. We can't take one man's opinion."

Rosalie said, "I'll see you to the door, doctor." Under her breath she said, "My luggage is all at the boat. Snag that blue felt hat on the rack, will you? I can't go to New York without a hat. You sweetie!"

The long - distance operator said, "Elmford, Connecticut 5 — 6352 does not answer. Would you like me to try again in fifteen minutes?"

Rosalie said no thank you. It was after two in the afternoon and she'd been on the telephone since ten, ever since her boat docked. She should have sent Marion a wire. But she hadn't, because she wanted her return to be a surprise. All the way up to New York on the boat she'd planned her surprise!

Rosalie stepped out of the telephone booth in Grand Central Station and found herself a place on a bench in the waiting - room to consider the situation. A great wave of loneliness engulfed her.

The homesickness she had not felt in the two months since she had left Elmford accumulated into a heartache. There was a connecting train for Elmford leaving in an hour but Rosalie couldn't face returning without a welcome at the home station. That would have been too sad a finish to a trip which, aside from her pleasure in the beauty of Bermuda, had been marked by a kind of perpetual anticlimax.

She thought suddenly of Norman Carteret. She thought accelerated her pulse and her instinct told her that, having put Norman out of her life and recovered so promptly, it was best to leave him in the past. But loneliness and a kind of excitement triumphed over her better judgement.

Norman's telephone number was still in her memory. She dialed rapidly and asked for him. Perhaps, she thought with half-hope, half-fear, he would not be in.

"Hello!" His clipped voice came over the wire. "Norman Carteret speaking."

"This is Rosalie Bates."

"Rosalie!" All the welcome she had ever wanted was in his voice. "Where are you?"

IS BACKACHE
JUST A SIGN OF AGE?

Many people suffer an aching back needlessly—believing you must expect a few aches and pains when you're "getting on" in years!

But backache is often caused by the faulty action of kidneys and liver. See how much better you feel after taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and your kidneys and liver both filter out impurities from your bloodstream. That's because this time-proven Dr. Chase remedy treats two conditions at once—contains special remedial ingredients for both the kidney and liver disorders which often cause backache.

If you're feeling worn-out, tired, headachy—with painful joints and aching back—look to your kidneys and liver. Try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills tonight. At all drug counters. 16

First Holiday In Three Years For Cadogan

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 23 — (CP)—Sir Alexander Cadogan, Britain's permanent delegate to the United Nations, leaves this week on his first holiday in three years.

Sir Alexander, 64, is the only member of the Security Council who was a delegate to the meetings of the old League of Nations in Geneva.

His long career in top posts has fitted the slight, grey-haired Oxford graduate for the title many observers give him—the most polish diplomat at the Security Council's table.

His aides have expressed amazement at the speed with which he can obtain the essentials from a wordy report.

Some of the skill was gained as head of the League of Nations section of the foreign office, a post he held for 10 years.

He became Ambassador to China when the legation in Peking was raised to an embassy in 1934. Sir Alexander succeeded Sir Robert Vansittart in 1938 as permanent undersecretary of the foreign office.

In January, 1946, he was designated permanent delegate to the Security Council, culminating several years work in helping to form the world peace agency.

Present at Conference

Sir Alexander was present when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt drew up the Atlantic charter in Placentia Bay, Nfld.; he led the British delegation to the International Security Conference at Dumbarton Oaks; and he was at San Francisco when the United Nations charter was framed.

In marking the differences between the League of Nations and the United Nations, Sir Alexander can recall that the veto was used only twice in the league in 20 years while it has been used 20 times by Russia in the United Nations in two years.

Taking Sir Alexander's place temporarily is a man who has served as diplomat in many capitals.

Sir Terence Shone, 54, spent the early part of his career in embassies at Lisbon, Oslo, Berne, Belgrade and Washington. Later he served as counsellor at Cairo and minister to Syria and Lebanon.

His latest post was high commissioner to India.

WAGES NEED NOT BE CUT STATES LABOR MINISTER

Claims Reduced Profits Answer to Any Levelling-Off Process

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)—Reduced profits are the answer to an anticipated "levelling-off" process in Canadian and United States economies, Labor Minister Daley told the Ontario Legislature Wednesday. Wages need not be cut, he said.

J. G. Brown (Lib.-Waterloo North) is the first speaker today in the Throne-Speech debate in which the Labor Minister took part. Other speakers Wednesday were Liberal hydro critic W. L. Houck (Niagara Falls), J. B. Salsberg (LPP-St. Andrew) and R. Thornbury (CCF-Hamilton Centre).

Mr. Daley said industrialists in Canada and the United States expected the industrial economy was due to level off. He believed it did not mean a recession. Business was readily obtainable and inventories were bit but increased competition would compel a drop in prices.

Ontario's labor laws were sound and sane, he said. Saskatchewan had moved "too fast and too far," with its labor legislation.

The United Textile Workers Union (A.F.L.) strike at Penman mills in Paris, Ont., had been prolonged because of the attitude of the company, which was "bad," and "bad" organization by the union which lacked the confidence of its members. No labor legislation could settle disputes of this kind, Mr. Daley said.

Mr. Houck asked that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission be increased from three to five members. Two additional members would be appointed by hydro municipalities. One of these members would be a labor representative.

He also suggested the commission work with "federal atomic authorities" to investigate the possibility of generating electric power by atomic energy.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Feb, 24 (CP)— Synopsis: Colder weather is on its way to end southern Ontario's most recent mild spell. Although this afternoon's temperatures are expected to be unseasonably high in the southern regions cold air already covers Northern Ontario and north central states. This cold mass of air is edging southward preceded by light rain changing to snowflurries. Indications are that colder air will cover the entire province by early Friday bringing lower temperatures and gradual clearing.

691 Cases Measles, 3 Deaths In Two Months in Kingston And Kingston Tp. Reported

Kingston, Feb. 24 (CP)—Three children, one from Kingston and two from Kingston Township, died in Kingston Hospital from measles during the past two months. Dr. A. R. J. Boyd, medical officer of health reported today there was an epidemic of measles here during January and February when a total of 691 cases were reported to the local Department of Health.

An eight-month-old baby boy from Kingston and four-month-old baby girl from Kingston Township died in the Kingston Isolation Hospital during the two-month period. A seven-year-old child, from Kingston Township, who was admitted to hospital suffering from measles and other complications died during the same period.

Dr. Boyd said the measles were confined mostly to children attending the elementary schools and also pre-school children. Some cases among adults were reported to the local department of health during the two-month period.

A previous record was established in 1948 when 534 cases were reported to the Department of Health during the 12 months.

It is understood that the measle epidemic struck Kingston a little earlier this year. In previous years the peak for measles was in April.

Denounces Reds, Russ Aggression For Destroying Scouting in Lands Under Communist Domination

Ottawa, Feb. 24 (CP)—Jackson Dodds of Montreal, Canada's commissioner of scouting, today denounced Communism and Russian aggression for its destruction of the scouting movement in the countries to which Communism has spread.

"In Moose Jaw today," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club of Ottawa, "lives a young Latvian scoutmaster who bears the scars of totalitarian hatred.

"He could tell you how he witnessed 40 Latvian scoutmasters stood up beside an open grave and shot in cold blood by the Russian aggressors of his country.

"He could show you scars of beatings," said Commisisoner Dodds, "to which he submitted—for what crime?—for being a scoutmaster, for trying to train boys in good citizenship—in the fundamentals of freedom."

Commissioner Dodds said there was a tendency, "a most dangerous tendency towards which more and more Canadians are leaning, to take the commonplace things of life too much for granted."

This was a tendency fraught with peril. In many parts of the world freedom and liberty were held in so light regard—they were so commonplace that they were lost—lost for want of a virile people to protect them against the inroads of those who regard these virtues as signs of decadence.

He suggested there were signs in Canada of the workings of Communism. "Let us not bury our heads in the sand and ignore the signs. Only two months ago a Communist candidate, schooled in the international hotbed of treason in Moscow, polled 43,000 votes in the Toronto civic elections."

He suggested since the formation of the scouting movement 41 years ago, it has proved its worth and so now it was here to stay and thus has become "commonplace."

"If we are to preserve our freedom, we must learn to value the commonplace things we have."

"The Colonel With the New Face" Campaigns for Painless Childbirth

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 24 —(CP)—"The colonel with the new face," a hero in two wars, has gone into battle again, to help women who suffer pain in childbirth.

Col. J. R. H. Hutchinson, 56, son of a Glasgow shipowner, sits in the Commons as Conservative member for Glasgow Central. Unobtrusive, precise in speech, his seat far behind those of the party chiefs, he's probably the toughest member of the House.

For "the colonel with the new face" is a legend among the valiant company which risked Gestapo torture during the war to bring secrets out of France and give heart to the resistance forces.

Hutchison, who served with the cavalry in the First World War, took to espionage as to the manner born. He was often in occupied France, and the Gestapo wanted him badly. They knew what he looked like.

Before D-Day, it was essential that Hutchison go to France again. He knew what to do. He had the tips of his ears cut off, flesh grafted onto his chin and the bridge of his nose removed .Even his friends didn't know him. Neither did the Gestapo. His job was done. In uniform, he can wear the D.S.O. ribbon but few see him in military dress.

These adventurous days seem far off when Hutchinson speaks of his new campaign. The father of a son and daughter, he protests a system which allows women to suffer prolonged pain in childbirth. He wants every midwife trained to us analgesia, every local authority to have analgesia equipment for midwives, every hospital to offer relief from pain at childbirth unless considered medically unwise.

Hutchinson is preparing a private member's bill covering these points and hopes to present it to parliament.

ISRAEL, EGYPT SIGN AGREEMENT ENDING HOLY WAR

Permanent Peace For Palestine Seen

Rhodes, Feb. 24 (AP)—Egypt today signed a general armistice with Israel and the other Arab States lined up to do likewise.

By agreeing to the armistice, Egypt took the lead among the States of the Arab League in accepting the dynamic Jewish State in their midst—a State which they vowed to destroy last May. The preamble specifically declares the agreement is a step to permanent peace in Palestine.

Pending a permanent settlement, broad demilitarized zones are created, by which Egypt surrenders all Palestine except Gaza and its narrow coastal strip of about five miles in width. She even withdraws her troops to a defensive line 17 to 30 miles inside her own frontier.

Israel is left in possession of nearly all the Negev Desert, including disputes Beersheba for the time being. She has ambitious colonization schemes in the desert area.

Still to be settled are the fate of the southern tip of the Negev desert from Beersheba southward to the Red Sea, the central area of Palestine held by the Arab Legion and Iraquis, and the old part of Jerusalem.

These territorial questions will be determined largely by armistice negotiations with Trans-Jordan beginning here Monday.

The Egyptian agreement specifically states that territorial questions are subject to the final peace settlement. But there seems no doubt that this will be largely determined by the armistice line.

23 Persons Killed in Crash At Hong Kong

Hong Kong, Feb. 24. (AP)—A Cathay Pacific Airways passenger plane from Manila crashed and burned here today, killing 23 persons.

The airline said 19 passengers and four crew members were killed when the plane plunged into a rocky ravine at the west end of Braemer Reservoir in an isolated part of northern Hong Kong island.

The wreckage burned for hours after the crash.

All the passengers were Chinese.

Fisherman Finds Indian Relic Off Tip of P.E. Co.

A rare stone relic was hauled up in a net from Lake Ontario by Donald Thurston, Indian Point fisherman, off the tip of Prince Edward County some time ago. It was a stone bird amulet, and Thurston sent it to the Ontario Museum at Toronto for identification. It has been returned to its owner and will be on display at the Public Library in Toronto.

The amulet is seven inches long with a head shaped like that of a deer, blunted horns extending from the ears and a spread eagle tail. It was used as a charm by the Algonquin Indians to ward off disease and evil spirits.

Company Regards Strike as Illegal

Brantford, Feb. 24 (CP) —A company spokesman said today the Watson Manufacturing Company, Ltd., would regard a strike by the United Textile Workers (T.L.C.-A.F.L.) as illegal and every employee participating would be treated as though he had quit his job.

William Stewart, Textile Workers organizer, said last week that workers at the plant—a subsidiary of Penman's, Ltd.— would strike Monday unless Penmans opened negotiations with striking workers at the Paris, Ont., Penman's plant.

Watson's statement was issued by D. L. G. Jones, solicitor for the company.

Professors Claim Dismissals Made On Political Basis

Corvallis, Ore., Feb. 24 — (AP) —Two professors today reiterated their belief that their dismissals from Oregon State University were based on political grounds.

They issued a statement after the Oregon State University President, A. L. Strand, called a special faculty assembly to deny that the men were being dropped because of membership in the Progress party. He said he dismissed one for supporting a Communist scientists's teachings.

The two are Dr. Ralph Spitzer, an associate chemistry professor, and L. R. La Vallee, an assistant economics professor.

Shand said Spitzer supported the Lysenko theory of genetics in a letter to the Chemical and Engineering News of Jan. 31. Lysenko, a Russian scientist, advocates the Minchurin theory of genetics as opposed to the more-egnerally - accepted Mendelian theory.

The Minchurin theory, roughly, is that if a person improves himself during his life, it becomes hereditary and his children get it. The Mendelian theory holds, in part, that anything you do to improve yourself is not passed along by heridity.

Burglar is Wed, Sheriff Acting As Best Man

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 24—(AP) —With the sheriff as best man, Patrick Murphy, 39, convicted burglar, and pretty Betty Winters, 26, got married yesterday.

It was a simple ceremony in the Saginaw county jail, where Murphy is a prisoner.

When he and his bride will be at home together is a question. Besides being under a 10-to-15-year sentence, Murphy faces an habitual criminal charge which could mean life in prison.

Sheriff William Munroe, who assented to the marriage, was philosophical.

"I don't know whether I did right or wrong," Munroe said. "I hesitated for a long time. But they were insistent."

It was, he said later, a "very nice ceremony."

The bride, in a plain blue dress, embraced her husband. They talked briefly. Then she went back to her waitress jb, Murphy to his cell.

Metropolitan Area Housing Plan May be Set Up

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Establishment of a metropolitan area housing committee to plan construction of more than 2,000 houses in municipalities adjacent to Toronto may result from a conference of all mayors and reeves in the greater Toronto area.

No date has been set for the meeting but the plan to be considered was outlined today by David Mansur, President of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

He said the corporation's 1949 program included a project for 1,200 units in Vancouver, and proportionately, there should be about 2,400 units in the Toronto area.

"The Minister of Reconstruction and Supply has already indicated that funds could be provided for a very substantial number of units in the Toronto area," he said.

The Corporation President said he made the proposal to Toronto's Mayor Hiram McCallum because 1948 housing unit completions in Toronto were "well below the national average and... unless some special steps are taken, no substantial change will be elected in 1949."

Manitoba May Start Killing Wolves With Cyanide Bullets

The Pas, Man., Feb. 24 (CP)—Manitoba may start killing wolves with cyanide bullets because wolves are causing trappers heavy losses.

Game guardian Joe Robertson of Cranberry Portage is to report on the gun's effectiveness, he said. An advantage is that wolves killed by cyanide capsules do not poison other animals that eat their flesh, he added.

TRADE, TAXATION POLICIES DRAW OPPOSITION FIRE

Blame Gardiner for Loss Of U.K. Food Market

Ottawa, Feb. 24 — (CP)—The government's trade and taxation policies drew opposition fire in the Commons Wednesday after members heard a lengthy, detailed report on the progress of the National health program.

Hon. Earl Rowe, minister without portfolio in the last Conservative government and now member for the Ontario constituency of Dufferin - Simcoe, criticized trade and taxation policies and blamed Agriculture Minister Gardiner for the "loss" of food markets in the United Kingdom.

The health report was made by Health Minister Martin. He outlined what is being done and what will be done with the $30,000,000 voted by parliament last session to assist the provinces with the development of their health services.

Projects qualifying for aid under the program now are flowing into Ottawa at the rate of $200,000 a day, said Mr. Martin. Some 600 projects costing $13,000,000 had been approved since last August.

The government, he said, considered its grants for provincial health surveys, to extend health services and projects and to build hospitals, "fundamental prerequisites of a nation - wide system of health insurance."

30-Foot Hole Torn in Dam By Flood Water

Chester, N.S., Feb. 24 (CP) —Workers of this Nova Scotia south shore resort town today cleared debris in the wake of flood waters which Wednesday broke through the Pinehurst mill pond dam and damaged a mill.

The water roared through a 30-foot hole in the dam. Ice and logs swept through several buildings along the shoreline and floated a barn into the side of the furniture mill. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

As the pond emptied itself through the hole in the dam, the rush of water hurled brook fish into the nearby trees.

Chester residents said they heard a "terrific thunder-like noise" when the dam gave way. Four buildings, a bridge and a number of trees were knocked down by the force of the eight-foot-high crest of water.

Want 'Gas' Sale Any Hour Day, Night

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)— Members of the Ontario Good Roads Association in convention here passed a resolution Wednesday urging that gasoline sale be permitted at any hour of the day or night, claiming municipalities have no right to restrict sale. The association also agreed to ask for construction of a highway to Fort Frances, Fort William and Port Arthur via Atitokan.

Peace Tower Carillon is Turned To Orchestra in Capital Plan Picture

Ottawa, Feb. 24 — (CP)—By a strange use of devices, the National Film Board has turned the peace tower's hefty 53-bell carillon into an orchestral instrument.

A microphone, perched on the roof of the House of Commons, telephones, sound engineers, and the Dominion carilloneur, Robert Donnell, all recently aided in the orchestral debut of the powerful musical bells.

The bells were needed, says N. F. B., to play a prominent part in the Canadian music score for the color production "A Capital Plan" to be released shortly to Canadian theatres in the "Canada Carries On" series.

The film deals with the Greber plan for the extension and beautification of the capital.

"Naturally it was impossible for the carillon, with one of its bells weighing 12 tons, to come to the recording studio," says the film board. At the same time it wasn't feasible to locate the orchestra near the carillon, on snow-bound Parliament Hill.

Sound engineers decided their only recourse was to record the bells and then transfer the recording to a film sound track, marked with audible cues for the benefit of the orchestra conductor, J. Eugene Kash, the film board's director of music.

Just as the record was ready to be cut, pandemonium broke loose. Church bells peeled from all corners of the city, trains whistled, street-cars roared and automobile horns bleated.

The wind blew gusts in the microphone. A man had to be posted beside it to keep the birds from using it as a landing point.

But even against these odds, the film board says it finally did the job.

French Physician Denies He Served With German Unit

Dr. Seigneur Answers Charges Made by Stewart

Montreal, Feb. 24. (CP)—Dr. Michel-Lucien Seigneur, 42-year-old French physician, gave emphatic denial today to charges that he served with a German S.S. unit during the occupation of France.

"My political sympathies lay with Marshal Petain, but after all, a man is entitled to his personal beliefs," said the doctor.

He was questioned by newspaper men on accusations made against him in the House of Commons, Tuesday night, by Alastair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North), who charged the doctor, according to information received from a Maqui officer, had served the Germans during the Second World War.

"It's all very simple to understand," said the doctor. "I served with the French army as a medical lieutenant until my country surrendered and then returned to my hometown of Varierres where I continued my private practice as a doctor."

Wednesday the doctor's wife said the family were the victims of presecution by communistic elements in their hometown and to escape this persecution they came to Canada.

Would Grant Women Of India More Rights

New Delhi, Feb. 24. (AP)—Amid shouts of protest, Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, law minister, introduced a bill today in the Indian Legislative Assembly granting Hindu women more rights, including the right to seek divorce.

Introduction of the bill was preceded by stormy debates during which demands were made that the measure be withdrawn.

Orthodox Hindus in the legislature oppose radical changes in the Hindu laws governing women and property.

New Process for Canning Milk Claimed by Farmer

Valparaiso, Ind., Feb. 24 (AP) —A revolutionary process of canning fresh milk in which the milk retains its original taste was claimed Wednesday by Jack Stambaugh, an Indiana dairy farmer. Although still in its experimental stage, perfection of the process could result in radical changes in milk distribution methods, perhaps eliminating the need for daily home deliveries.

WANT UNLIMITED HOUSING

Windsor, Feb. 24 — (CP) —Reconstruction Minister Winters will be asked for unlimited rental housing when he meets with the Windsor housing committee Saturday to discuss a government sponsored housing project for the city.

This was decided at a meeting late Wednesday where final proposals for study by the Cabinet minister were being prepared. Mayor Arthur J. Reaume said that certain obligations would come with a housing scheme which would involve rentals of wartime construction now occupied.

Views on History Show Difference Of Two Groups

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP)—Abbe Arthur Maheux said today one of the main differences between French-speaking and English - speaking Canadians is the way they look at history.

He said French - speaking historians stressed religious aspects of Canadian history while English-speaking historians emphasized social and economic aspects.

"As long as we do not come to agree about such problems it is better not to mention national unity," the Abbe, head of the Laval University history department and president of the Canadian Historical Society, said in an address prepared for an Empire Club luncheon meeting.

"The French Canadians consider history as a solid basis for their national activities," he said. "They need to feel they are different from other Canadians, and they try to dig up from historical sources all possible evidence to that effect.

"I would not say that the English-speaking Canadians are not interested in history, but I am prepared to say that it is not in the same degree or to the same extent or with the same consciousness."

He said the two groups could "hardly understand each other if they do not attach the same value to the same facts."

Struck by Bottle Bystander May Lose Sight of Right Eye

Windsor, Feb. 24 (CP)— William Reid, an innocent by-stander at a fight, may lose the sight of his right eye.

He was sitting in a riverfront hotel when a fight started at a nearby table. Turning to watch the action, he received a thrown beer bottle in his face. Almost 40 stitches were required to close cuts on his face. Hospital attendants said today it will not be known until possibly Saturday if the sight of the eye is ruined.

MUSKRAT TRAPPING SEASON ANNOUNCED

The open season for the trapping of muskrats in the various part of the province have been announced by the Hon. H. R. Scott, minister of the Department of Lands and Forests.

The trapping season for muskrats in Prince Edward County Northumberland and the parts of the counties of Hastings, and Lennox and Addington lying south of No. 7 Highway is from March 20th to April 21st, inclusive.

Pelts Sell for $2.11

Point Pelee, Ont. (CP)—Prime pelts brought $2.11 and seconds went for 80 cents as more than 1,000 muskrat pelts harvested from the Point Pelee marshes during the last week went on the auction block.

Park Superintendent R. J. Grant, who conducted Wednesday's auction said the prices were indicative of a good market. A few pelts were sold a week ago for $1.80.

Metals, Machine Shop Play to 3-All Tie

In a close hard-fought game Sheet Metals and Machine Shops played to three-all tie in a scheduled Northern Electric Hockey League fixture in Memorial Arena last night.

Machine Shops led 1-0 at the end of the first period when Long scored on assists from Halsey and Belliveau. They made it 2-0 early in the second but Metals raced back into the picture with goals from Prout and Barrett to tie up the pastime.

It was nip-and tuck in the final frame with Metals forging into an early lead which was nullified midway through the period by Belliveau's goal. From then on it was anybody's game and it ended that way.

Bush, Prout and Barrett scored for Metals with Long, Chipps and Belliveau being the Shop snipers. Barrett, Bush, Fogarty and Prout were the best for Metals with Belliveau, Chipps, Halsey and Long standing out for the opposition.

Ice Thickness For Harvest Only 14 Inches

That daily chunk of ice you will get for the family ice-box this summer won't be nearly as thick as that of last year but the quality will be just as good, if not better.

It has been laboratory-tested, and lab. reports reveal it to be Class "A."

Average thickness of ice harvested in the bay near the city is approximately fourteen inches. Last year the thickness ranged between 20 and 24 inches.

Reports from Picton and Trenton ice-harvesters state that only ten inches of ice are available in those places.

Another Trenton report states that a heavy truck crashed through the ice near the town bridge while towing a fish shanty to shore. The occupants of the truck escaped with a chilly duck.

City ice purveyors state that if the present weather continues, but gets no milder, the present thickness of ice will hold. They expect to harvest sufficient supplies for seasonal needs.

At this time of the year with prevailing weather, no ice is "made." What little accumulates during cold nights disappears in the milder temperatures of the daytime.

Trenton Girl Faces 4 Charges Of Shoplifting

An expensive suit of the "new look" motif is rather conspicuous when worn beneath a shorter winter coat it has been discovered by a young Trenton girl who today faces four charges of shoplifting.

The young girl, Miss Jean Beckwith, appeared today before the Justice of the Peace and was remanded until Friday for trial. The girl is charged with stealing a suit and a skirt from Wotten's Ladies Wear, and another article of clothing from the Sally Shop. She is also charged with taking jewellery from McFee's on different occasions.

According to police the young girl would enter the store and ask to try on a certain article of clothing, which she admired. Then when the clerk would be busy attending some other customer, she would don her own coat and casually walk from the store.

Value of the clothing and jewellery taken from local stores was stated to be in the neighborhood of $200.

Police Blotter

Four Juveniles Will be Charged With "Entering"

Four local juveniles charged with entering the National Grocers warehouse on Pinnacle St., on three different occasions, and also with entering the York Trading warehouse and stealing merchandise, will appear in juvenile court on Tuesday, it was stated today by Inspector C. Hayes.

The juveniles were stated to have taken cigarettes, canned goods and chocolate bars from the two places of business.

Three batteries from used cars on a used car lot at the rear of Follwell Supply Company were stolen, it was reported by Dick Burrows, local dealer, while a car at the rear of a local hotel was reported entered some time during the night.

A Burton Street woman reported a new house foundation on Moody Street, to be full of water and stated children were in the habit of playing around the lot. She was afraid the children may fall into the water and be drowned. The matter was referred to the city engineer.

A west hill woman reported while walking on Octavia Street a passing motorist had splashed her clothing. She noted the number of the vehicle responsible and police are checking for the owner.

Kingston Officers Of Sea Cadets Visit Local Ship

The good ship "Quinte" was taken over last night by the officers and petty officers of R.C.S.C. "St. Lawrence" of Kingston. This is one of the visits by officers and petty officers in connection with an attempt to learn new and better methods in training. To date it has been noticed that these inter-corps visits not only help in the training, but are establishing friendly relations between the various corps.

The cadets are also looking forward to inter-corps sports events which they hope will soon take place. The main events will be boxing, basketball, softball, swimming and sailing.

The cadets are now working hard on a number of interesting subjects many of them in preparation for examinations that will be held in March, in order that they may be promoted. This means they will have to have a good knowledge of squad drill, simple navigation, boatwork, semaphore and morse signalling, as well as naval history and citizenship. However, the work is of a nature to interest any boy, and many of them are doing very good.

The cadets are keenly interested in many of the lectures that are now being given with the aid of a projector and suitable training films. These films show how it should be done as well as being interesting from the standpoint of those who like sailing, boats and scenes of the sea.

The officers of the Corps are doing everything possible to make the Sea Cadets a worthwhile youth training organization. With always the thought in mind to provide good work and fun for the youth of the city.

Albert College Hoop Teams Win Triple Events

Albert College hoopsters were all in action yesterday and all managed to come out on the credit side of the scoring sheet. Albert Seniors Girls took on the B.C.I. lassies on their own floor and won 21 to 7 to take the group title and the right to play-off with the winners of the Picton-Trenton-Campbellford group.

Albert Junior boys entertained O.S.D. and went on a scoring bee to the tune of 60 to 16, while in the evening the Senior Boys' team took on Napanee C.I. in an exhibition game, and after a shaky start finished on top 42 to 32.

Senior Girls

In the girls' game at B.C.I., the Albert girls had their shooting togs on and with Peggy Dyer leading the way rolled up a score of 11 to 0 at half time. The local Collegiate girls had trouble finding the basket, but had a good share of the floor play. In the last half the scoring was more even but the Albertonians outscored their rivals—10 to 7. Final score 21 to 7. Peggy Dyer was the leading scorer with 14 of Albert's points—Madelyn Webster added 4 and Rachael Freeman 3. Marie Malnoff with four points was best for B.C.I.

Junior Boys

Yates, Harris and Kupresan all had too much height for the less experienced O.S.D. kids and by quarter time had rung up a score of 17 to 4. The scoring continued on a more even basis until half time with O.S.D. adding two baskets to bring the score to 24 to 8 at the interval. In the last half all members of the Albert squad seemed to have an eye for the basket and each one of the twelve men dressed at least got one basket. Jack Kupresan, 6 ft. 3, is centre player for the College, added 11 points to his first half total of six points to lead all the scorers with 17 points. Gravell, Beaulne and McCrindle each with four points were best for O.S.D. Yates with 9 and Harris and Palmer with 6 pts each were the other leading Albert scorers.

For the first part of the Senior Boys' game Napanee dominated the play and managed to hold a slim one point lead at half time—14 to 13. Commencing the second half Elliott and Thomson added a basket each to bring the score to 18 to 13, and at this stage it looked as if Napanee would win going away. However after a time out, and a tongue lashing by the coach, the Albert squad settled down to business and inside of two mins. and 10 seconds, rang in five baskets without a reply to send the score to 23 to 18. Two further baskets, by Merkley and Perry brought it up to 27 to 18 before the Napanee boys found the basket again. Dewar and Roger Showers substituting for Merkley and Hayman came on and carried on the scoring spree, Dewar getting 6 points and Showers 4. From then on the visitors did not seem to be able to settle down and the game finished 42 to 32. Thomson of Napanee, was the leading scorer of the game with 14 points while Merkley and Hayman of Albert with 10 and 8 points respectively were best for the homesters.

OBITUARY

FRED SLATER

Fred Slater died at his home, 67 North Front Street, early Thursday morning. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Fred Slater was one of this city's oldest residents. He was born in Sussex, England, and came to this city as a child. He had reached an advanced age, being in his 95th. year and he lived here for 92 years. During his active years he was widely known and followed the trade of a mason and plasterer. He was a good citizen and took an active interest in civic affairs. At time of the ward system he represented Coleman Ward for a considerable time and upon the adoption of the general election system he served as an alderman for several years. His last term of office was for the years 1912 and 1913. During his long residence here he was well esteemed.

Mr. Slater was a member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church and fraternally he held life membership in the Masonic Order, being a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A. F. & A. M. for 63 years; a member of Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. for 60 years and in the King Baldwin Preceptory he possessed the fifty-year jewel. He was also a member of long standing of the Sons of England. In his early years he took an interest in military matters and he held the Long Service Medal of the 49th Regiment.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. George A. (Ethel) Masters, Toronto; two sons, Louis Slater and Edgar Slater, both of Toronto; one sister, Mrs. Alice Rodgers, Charlton, Ontario; one brother, George Slater of Parry Sound; also five grandchildren and five great grandchildren. His wife, the former Maria Drewry, died in 1944.

Part of Sewer Contracts Held by Klimack Company To be Given New Contractor

In order to speed up the work of sewer construction and thus provide facilities for homes in the Parkwood Heights area that are ready for occupancy, part of the sewer contracts underway by the Klimack Construction Company will be turned over to another contractor.

This was announced today by Mayor D. L. Storey who yesterday received word to this effect from Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers supervising construction of the sewers.

According to the communication received from the consulting engineers work being done by the Klimack Construction Company on five different sewers will be turned over to another contractor, leaving the above firm to concentrate on completion of work on MacDonald Ave., and on Victoria Ave. The name of the new contractor was not stated.

Contracts turned over for completion by another contractor will be the construction of part of a 12-inch sewer on MacDonald; a ten-inch sewer on Bridge Street from MacDonald to Bertram Blvd and an eight-inch sewer from Bertram Blvd. to the city limits. Also an eight-inch sewer on Bertram Blvd to Crestview and east to the city limits.

Making Little Progress

Some weeks ago when it was seen that the Klimack Company were making but little progress on the installation of sewers which were being built to serve the Parkood Heights district, it as suggested by Mayor Storey, that part of the work be turned over to another contractor. At the last council meeting the matter came to a head, when council at the recommendation of Alderman Allin voted to direct the consulting engineers to turn over part of the sewer contract.

Under the terms of the contract, the consulting engineer has the power to turn over part of any contract to another contractor when the progress with the work is not satisfactory.

Difficulty Encountered

Extreme difficulty has been encountered by the Klimack Company in excavating for sewer on MacDonald Ave. near Victoria and also on Victoria Ave. where quicksand conditions have been experienced.

So severe is the quicksand condition that the top of the excavation now extends from 20 to 30 feet in width when ordinarily an excavation width of three feet would be sufficient.

To complete the installation of sewers in the MacDonald Ave., and Victoria Ave. district, engineers have indicated that tight shoring to keep out quicksand will be necessary.

Trenton Man Suffers Groin Injury in Crash

Derwood Tyler, 26, of Trenton suffered injury to his groin, Wednesday evening, when the car in which he was riding was in collision with another vehicle at the intersection of Pine and Chatham Street.

Tyler was riding in a car driven by Lewis Mastin, R.R. 5, Trenton, proceeding west on Pine Street, when an auto driven by Carl Mott, 267 Victoria Avenue, emerged from Chatham Street, and in making a right turn collided with the Mastin vehicle. The front end of the Mott vehicle was damaged while the entire left side of the Mastin vehicle was crumpled. Damages to the two autos amounted to approximately $400.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)— Prices slipped lower in moderately active trading here today. Industrials weakened on fractional losses and base metals and western oils were in one-way downward movements. Golds were largely ignored and tended to hold steady.

Volume for the first three hours was 551,000 shares about 49,000 shares more than Wednesday's similar period.

A wide list of industrial issues slipped steadily at about the price level of 11 months ago with several issues touching new lows.

Seagrams, CPR and Massey Harris sold ex-dividend. Papers and steels led the downward trend in the industrial grouping.

Consolidated Astoria, a brisk feature in Wednesday's market backed down under pressure of profit taking. Hudson Bay dipped 1 1-2 at 46 in base metals and Torbrit was the only issue to show a gain, adding a penny.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Only 10 cattle and 60 hogs were received on the livestock market here, up to noon reported the Dominion Marketing Service. Some 50 head of cattle were left from yesterday's trading. The few cattle offered sold at steady prices.

Light slaughter steers and heifers sold at $16-$19 and some fed yearlings were $19-$22. A few medium to good cows sold at $14-$16.25.

Hogs were steady at $30.50 for Grade A and $30.10 for Grade B1. Sows were $22, dressed.

PRODUCE MARKET

Churning cream, unchanged. No. 1, 74 cents F.O.B.; 78c delivered. Butter prints unchanged. First grade 70 1-2c; second grade 69 1-2c.

The egg market continues firm at unchanged prices. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 42-43; Grade A medium 41-42; Grade A pullet 40; Grade B 39-40; Grade C 34; wholesale to retail: Grade A large 46-47; Grade A medium 45-46; Grade A pullet 43-44; Grade B 44; Grade C 37.

Butter solids, unchanged. First grade 68; second grade 67.

HOGS

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Hog prices at Stratford this morning were unchanged at $30.35 to farmers for Grade A, delivered and $30.50 to truckers. At Hull, hogs were unchanged at $29.75 for Grade A, delivered.

Woman Dies From Gas Fumes, Husband Ill

Kingston, Feb. 24 (CP)—Coal gas fumes claimed the life of Mrs. Charles Alford, of Chaffey's Locks, Wednesday, and her husband's life today hangs in the balance in hospital here. This morning he was still unconscious but was said responding to treatment.

The elderly couple, both in their 70's, were resting when fumes from a coal burning stove in the kitchen filled their little house. The body of Mrs. Alford was found in bed and Mr. Alford was lying unconscious on a lounge in the living room when a niece, Mrs. Ted Simmons, also of Chaffey's Locks, called on them about 4 p.m. Mrs. Alford had been dead for some time.

Allen Alford, one of the couple's three sons, had dropped in to see his parents earlier in the afternoon. Finding them sleeping, he closed the door quietly and tip-toed away. He noticed no smell of gas at that time.

Dr. M. W. Kerr of Elgin, rendered first aid to the surviving victim before sending him to the Kingston hospital.

Surviving are three sons, Fred, Allen and Capt. Harold Alford, Ottawa.

Marmora Defeats Campbellford 7-4 In Second Playoff

Marmora —Although trying their hardest, Campbellford failed to halt Marmora's winning streak in the second playoff game played on the Marmora rink on Wednesday evening and retired beaten by the score of 7-4. Ice was somewhat sticky but play was waged at a fast pace with the exception of the second period. Campbellford was without the services of Peloquin until the third period, when he scored Campbellford's final goal on an assist from Blake, who registered three goals for his team, two of which were unassisted by aggressive play. Blake, Robinson and Earl Leonand were casualties during the game but returned to play. Gus Leonard stood out for the winners with one of the best all round displays. His team mates were also in good form, thrilling their supporters among the crowd of 1,200 with their fine dashes of play. The third game will be in Campbellford on Friday evening and promises to be another stiff fight for honors.

The Teams

Campbellford — —Goal, Nelson; defence, Tanner, Hendy; centre, Robinson; wings, Blake, Free; alternates, Peloquin, Smith, Hay, Kruger, Hendricks. Spare goalie Hopping.

Siam Emergency State Promulgated

Bangkok, Feb. 24 (Reuters) — A state of emergency through Siam was promulgated by royal decree here today. The draft of the decree was submitted by the cabinet last weekend. It stated that the measure had been necessitated by the situation in neighboring countries, in which there is strife against Communist-inspired risings.

TAXI DRIVER FORCED TO DRIVE AT GUNPOINT

Ottawa, Feb. 24 —Thomas Curry, Brockville, taxi driver, reported to police Wednesday night that three men forced him to drive from Maitland, Ont., almost to Ottawa at gunpoint.

Curry said he picked up the four three miles from Brockville. Then one of them pointed a gun at him and ordered him to drive to Ottawa. At nearby Carlington they left the car and escaped while Curry drove on to Ottawa.

Judge Convinces Many Couples Divorce Not the Easiest Way Out

Los Angeles, Feb. 24 (AP)—Divorce is not the easiest way out.

This statement, backed by convincing argument, enabled Judge Thomas J. Cunningham today to describe his month-old experiment in mending broken marriages as a "success far exceeding expectation."

He has considered the marital troubles of 77 couples during his brief term in domestic relations court. Here are the happy statistics:

Eighteen complete reconciliations and 35 more couples granted 30 to 60-day continuances to give their marriages another try. Only 24 couples failed to make up. This means that the 43-year-old jurist forestalled 70 per cent of the prospective divorce cases brought before him.

"What I do when I enter the courtroom, Judge Cunningham told a reporter, "is to ask if anyone present feels a reconciliation is possible. Sometimes the wife, sometimes the husband, and often an attorney will say yes.

"Then I call the couple and their attorneys into my chambers for a conference. Parents of the couple are not admitted. I can tell within 15 minutes whether the couple can be reconciled.

"If the chances look good, I explain what will happen if they proceed with their divorce. I tell the wife that she probably will marry again and that her second husband is bound to be jealous of the children of her first husband.

"I tell the husband his next wife will resent his having to pay alimony. I point out that if he is having money troubles now, they will be much greater with two households to support.

"It's surprising the number of couples—especially young ones — who don't realize the difficulties and troubles resulting from divorce."

BCI Hoopsters Take Twin Bill From Kingston CI

(By J. F.)

The red and black battlers of B. C. I. & V. S. proved that they were just too strong for the blue clad cage teams from K.C.V.I., as they trampled them in both ends of a basketball doubleheader at B.C.I. on Wednesday.

B.C.I. 43, K.C.V.I. 16

In the junior game, B.C.I. had very little trouble in trouncing Kingston by a score of 43-16. B.C.I. pulled into a convincing 19-4 lead before quarter time, but slowed down in the second frame, when they netted only four points. In the last half, they again turned on the heat, bewildering their opponents with fast passing, as they outscored the Kingston team 20-10.

Mundy McClay with nine points, and Lloyd Faulkner with seven, led the attack for the winners. MacCrae was top scorer for the Kingstonites with eight points.

The teams:

B.C.I.: McClay (9), Dowsett (4), Muirhead (2), Shapiro, Scrymgeour (5), Morris (5), Bews, Faulkner (7), Dolan (2), Loft (2), Ewald (5), Lazenby (2), Batchelor. Total—43.

K.C.V.I.: MacCrae (8), Morrison (2), Down, Haxton (4), Dardick (2), Anglin, Ettlett, Davidson, Taugher, Macdonald. Total—16.

Scoring by quarters:

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Belleville	19	4	11	9—43
Kingston	4	2	2	8—16

B.C.I.V.S. 49, K.C.V.I 31

The senior tussle was a red-hot battle with both teams playing hard and fast B.C.I. put up such a defence in the first half that they allowed only two Kingston field goals. On the attack, they countered 24 points. The Kingston boys made a marked improvement in the last half,, but the flying red shirts still outscored them 25-20.

The highlight of the game was some expert foul shooting by two Kingston boys, Purcell and Connell. The former made six foul shots in six tries while the latter made five out of five.

The high scorer of the game was Lyons of K.C.V.I. with six field goals for twelve points. Tom Buchanan as the leading scorer of the winners with eleven points. In addition to his six foul shots, Purcell made two baskets for a total of ten.

Referee Phillips handed out a total of 32 personal fouls, 16 to each team. Al Galbraith was the chief offender when he was banished from the game for incurring five fouls. Early in the game, Bob Ketcheson a first string forward for the Collegians aggravated an old ankle injury, and limped from the floor.

The teams;

B.C.I.: MacMillan (5). Buchanan (11), Lepore (9), Summers (8), Rose (2), Galbraith (4), Pappas, Ketcheson (2), Dudley (2), Scott, Burke (8). Total—49.

K.C.V.I.: Purcell (10), Connell (7), Diodata, Forsythe, Hannah, Lyons (12), Swan, Gray, Ellis, Gulica (2), Aiken. Total—31.

STIRLING

Rawdon Junior Farmers Hosts At Meeting

Stirling — Last Tuesday evening the Rawdon Junior Farmer and Junior Institute members entertained the Sidney Junior Institute and Junior Farmer clubs as their guests at their regular monthly meeting in the Stirling High School. There were about 70 young people in attendance.

The highlight of the evening was a "mock wedding" put on by the Rawdon members. Robert Hoard portrayed the part of the minister in a very capable manner and Ray Holland dressed in bridal attire, certainly set a style that will be hard for future brides to imitate. Others in the cast included Frances Morrison, groom; Gladys Clarke, best man; Claude McInroy, flower girl; Morris Morrison, bridesmaid; Jack Dunham, bride's mother; Jim Pollock, groom's mother; Mae Sarles, bride's father; Jean Haggerty, pianist; Doris Pollock, doorman; Patsy Pollock, usher.

Miss Ruth Brintnell and Miss Muriel Homan of the Thurlow Junior Institute were present and Miss Brintnell spoke on the first Hastings County Folk School which is to be held Feb. 25th to March 5th. The Rawdon club appointed one delegate to attend to represent their club with expenses paid.

Doris Pollock read the first edition of the club paper, "The Rawdon Chatterbox." This paper was certainly well edited and was well received. Robert Hoard was appointed editor of the paper for the March meeting.

Refreshments and dancing to the music of the "Melody Mustangs" orchestra brought the evening to a close.

The March meeting will be held on March 14th in the Stirling Community Hall when the Quaker Oats Company will put on the program and a pan cake supper.

DIES IN HOSPITAL FOLLOWING ACCIDENT

Cobourg, Feb. 24 — (CP) — William R. Budge of Hamilton died in hospital Wednesday night the result of injuries he received in an automobile accident.

He was injured when a car driven by his son, Clarence, hit a soft highway shoulder and ploughed into a telephone pole.

Crown officials said no inquest would be held.

PICTON

Rev. M. Buttars Accepts Call To Inglewood

Picton—One of Prince Edward County best known United Church ministers Rev. Melville Buttars, has accepted a call to Inglewood, in western Ontario. The call has been sustained by the Belleville Presbytery. Rev. Mr. Buttars, who has been at Bloomfield for the past eight years also has charge of West Lake Church. He will assume the new pastorate in June. During his stay in the county, Mr. Buttars has been active in community work, and both his churches have enjoyed much progress.

Nets are Set

Nets have been set in Lake Ontario, off Point Traverse by Basil Collier and son Verdun. Strong off-shore winds broke up the ice carrying it out in the lake. This is the earliest nets have been set in the lake for many years.

Officers elected were Bro. Clifford McFaul, County Master; Bro. Ralph Gibson, Deputy Master; Bro. L. N. McFaul, recording secretary; Bro. Roy Wight, chaplain; Bro. Barton Reid, treasurer; Bro. Morley Dempsey, financial secretary; Bro. Claude Maxwell, Bro. Percy Lough, lecturers; Bro. Albert Weir, Marshal.

History of the violin was given by A.A. Benvie at Picton Film Council Monday night. Ronald Ward showed several new films. Newfoundland with John Arnaud as convener, will be the topic at the next meeting.

25 Tables in Play

There were 25 tables in play at the Oddfellow and Rebekah sponsored euchre Monday night. Prizes for play went to Mrs. Fred McCaw, Stanley McDermaid, Mrs. R. Cockburn, Ken Foster. Other prizes were won by Mrs. A. Devine, Mrs. Fred Wright, Walter Campbell, Phil Dodds, Mrs. H. R. Byers.

Woman Breaks Hip

Falling in her home, Mrs. Emma Clapp, Bowery St., suffered a broken hip. She was admitted to hospital.

County Represented

The County is well represented at the Ontario Good Roads Association, Toronto, this week. Ex-Warden Harold A. Cleave is a director and had the honor of replying to the address of welcome given delegates by Mayor Hiram McCallum yesterday.

A run of sap was reported by several who tapped trees this week, but tapping will not be general for a long time yet.

The Legion Ladies' Auxiliary sponsored a successful euchre last night.

Mrs. Edward Shannon is receiving treatment in Kingston General Hospital.

The Girls' Pigtail Club, whose members are in their teens have since the yuletide season received 20,000 used Christmas cards. Some are placed in albums to be sent to sick children's hospitals and homes. Others with scrap books are being sent so that the children may do the pasting.

Peterborough Girls Defeat Y Basketball Lassies By 45-34

Staging a whirlwind finish the Peterborough Towne Togs girls' basketball team snatched a 45-34 victory from the Belleville "Y" girls here last night before a large crowd of spectators.

The Belleville girls playing heads-up basketball against their strong opponents matched the Petes lassies point for point all through the game until the clock registered but a few minutes to go. The Togs staged a blistering rally with the score at 31 points all and pulled out with a last-minute victory.

The first half was productive of good basketball with the score being tied several times and the half ending at 13-all. It was nip-and-tuck affair for the greater part of the second half until the Petes' lassies staged their last-period bid for victory.

Doreen Bell played an outstanding game for the "Y" girls firing home 14 points. Shirley Bunnett and Tomasco with six points each also turned in sterling performances.

Curtis with 11 points, Plunkett with 10 and Castle with six starred for the Towne Togs.

The teams:

Peterborough Towne Togs — Vass (3); Callan (4); Caverly, Curtis (11); Plunkett (10); Castle (6); Whitaker (2); Dunk (4); Davis (5); Deyell; Pringle. Coach Hymie Smith.

Belleville "Y"—Marinoff (4); Doreen Bell (14); Tomaso (6); Bunnett (6); Matthews (2); Holway (2); Palmer, Ruttan, Chambers, Gilmour, Pappas. Jerry Hyde coach.

Referee—Austin Watkins.

DP's in New World Homes

A little girl from Latvia happens to be numbered the 50,000th displaced person to enter Canada from Europe. The time of her arrival at Halifax was yesterday made the occasion of a very gracious reception by the mayor of Halifax and other officials and representatives. From Halifax as a gift came a large doll for the little miss, along with other gifts.

She is a symbol of the thousands of displaced persons who have left or were forced to leave their homelands during the Hitlerite terrorism to be stranded in Eastern and Central Europe. Canada fortunately has already taken in 50,000 of these persons and is providing them with the opportunity of living the life of a free person and a member of the free society of this modern democracy.

In this child the world can read the story of sufferings which so many hundreds of thousands of boys and girls and adults have endured, shifted from their homes and living for some years under conditions of the Nazi aggression. These people come to the New World with a great hope They will become worthy citizens for in them will glow the feelings of pride in their freedom and opportunity. Here they will make homes. Here displaced persons' families will grow into Canadian citizens. This country will give them no reason to regret their coming to this land of opportunity.

The little girl's mother and sister came with her and they are all coming to Ontario to join the father of the family.

The coming of this 8-year-old child and her family and of many thousands of others is the opportunity which Canada has seized to add substantial citizens to her population. Broad acres in Canada and her towns and cities will in time feel the influence of the pride of these people in their new homes and will be the better for having taken in these people to give them a chance to grow up free.

What the displaced persons endured in the wake of the Nazi aggression is a terrible story of mass injustice done to human beings. There will be no displacing of these persons in Ontario and in the rest of Canada.

The welcome they receive at the ports of entry and in the towns and countryside to which they go to settle will be remembered as something sweet in their lives after what they suffered as "D.P's" wrested from their ancestral homes.

Their lives, there can be no doubt, will be lives of great usefulness and opportunity in their new country.

The cruelty of the Hitler aggression has left this effect that great numbers of persons find their lives changed. None of the heads of families who are coming out could have expected in 1939 that in the space of a few years they would be far away in new lands which welcome them and offer them new homes and new hope.

Sweets Again for Britain

Canadians like candy and have as much as they like but they cannot now feel the exhilaration which the people of Britain and especially the boys and girls will experience when on April 24th candy will appear off the ration list over there. Candy was scarce and sugar was rationed during the Second World War in Canada but long ago became plentiful. Yet it is now well on to four years after the war before the people of Britain will be able to have their candy as they please.

Those who have always admired the people of the British Isles will be pleased that the Britons, who were literally starved for sweets which lend a great deal of energy to the consumer, will be able to indulge in a candy bar and other forms of those appetizing sweetmeats which will now become available to the people in the Old Country.

This is but one of the restrictions which Britons imposed on themselves for their own sakes and for the world's and if ever a people deserved the best the world can give it is that noble people. Their name and fame will last as long as history and as the free institutions of the world, which they in the awful year of menace of 1940, preserved single-handed against the sweep of Nazi power. It was the time when British arms on land and sea and in the air preserved for the world another chance to breathe the atmosphere of freedom.

This little item of news about the lifting of the ban on candy in Britain which may seem so small to those who in other lands have not known the hardships the British underwent means much to the people in the British Isles. They have won and they have merited all the good things of this life for the good they have done for humanity.

The Upper School boys at the Collegiate Institute presented "The Rehearsal," by Maurice Baring, in the school auditorium and they put on a fine performance. Arthur J. H. Liddle explained the play which was a rehearsal of "Macbeth" at the Globe Theatre in London in Shakespeare's time. Shakespeare, himself, was present at the rehearsal. The sketch showed the troubles behind the scenes in the preparation of even so great a play as "Macbeth." Following are the characters and players: William Shakespeare, Douglas E. Smith; MacDuff, James W. Noakes; MacBeth, Leslie Pearsall; Lady MacBeth, Desmond Bonnycastle; Stage Manager, Louis K. Maraskas; Producer, Bruce Lattimer; Banquo, Alfred Higgs; First Witch, Ted Lill; Second Witch, Harold Mott; Third Witch, Mitchell Gillen; Doctor, Earle Elliott. All the cast took their parts in an excellent manner. The play was directed by Miss Billings, and the costumes were designed by Miss Everson's department.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOW IS THE TIME

In a little mountain village in Tennessee, inhabited for the most part by devout Christian people, the custom has grown up of having one minute of common and united prayer every twenty-four hours. At a certain time the church bell tolls, and whatever a person anywhere within hearing of the bell may be doing, he or she stops for a moment and prays.

"One evening," writes a visitor, "we were passing the baseball field on the community centre grounds as the bell begun to toll. The home team of course knew the meaning of the sound, but the visiting team was unaware of the significance. Without a word, the pitcher dropped the ball and, holding his arms outstretched and pointing heavenward, indicated to all the purpose of the moment; and with the gesture spoke eloquent, silent words of personal testimony."

We could make America and the world over within the next twelve months if all the people who profess to be Christians would pray earnestly every day, even for a few minutes, that certain great national and international occurrences would take place. But since the whole Church will not do this, let each of us start praying wherever we happen to be, knowing that God regards not our station in life but our sincerity.

Carr Did Not Receive Money Says Report

Toronto, Feb. 24. (CP)—The Telegram reported Wednesday in a copyright story that Sam Carr, former Labor-Progressive Party National organizer, said he did not receive money from any Communist source after leaving Canada in early 1946.

Carr's counsel, Carl Herman, him his major source of income from 1946 until his arrest in New York Feb. 7, was from trading as a stamp collector. He also earned money from "part-time work as a tailor".

Carr now is in custody in Ottawa awaiting trial on charges in connection with Canada's 1946 Soviet-Spy ring investigations.

"He denies he ever went into hiding," Mr. Herman said in an interview. "He left Canada early in 1946 before the report of the Commission was ever published."

Worried Leaders To Hold Parley On World Markets

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The fears expressed by Brazilian industrial and agricultural leaders over the future of their world markets sent your correspondent on a sleuthing expedition to see what justification there is for this anxiety

A conference of these worried leaders is being held this week in the great market city of Sao Paulo. They base their concern on the projected intensive development of African possessions by Britain in particular and by other European colonial powers in general. Mario Penteado, economic expert, warns that every crop vital to Brazil will be grown in Africa.

Of course Britain isn't hiding her light under a bushel. Her project for developing her rich African areas has been well advertised. It involves a double-barrelled idea: to put Britain on her feet economically, and to rehabilitate her empire.

I put it to an informed British source whether Britain "meant business." The answer was in the affirmative — definitely. She intends to carry out intensive developments.

Approves Spending

Apropos of this, the economic co-operation administration announced in Washington Wednesday that it had approved the spending of $1,500,000 in Marshall-plan funds to expedite a long-range development program in British colonies. Not only American dollars but skilled American manpower will be used to open up valuable resources in regions of Africa, Southeast Asia and British Guiana.

Brazil — and many other countries for that matter — are facing a reorientation of British trade, as the signs read.

Britain is no longer a creditor— she is a debtor. She must balance her accounts, and in order to do that she must buy her supplies in areas where she can use sterling instead of dollars.

My British source of information figured this meant that Brazil and other South American countries must make adjustments in their post-war economies. Britain and western Europe need to find alternative sources of food and raw materials for those they can't afford to buy in "hard currency" areas.

This, I take it, might involve a considerable degree of what amounts to barter trade.

Betty Ritchie To be Deported

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 24. (AP)—United States immigration authorities took steps Wednesday to deport a young Canadian school teacher charged with receiving stolen property.

A deportation warrant was served upon Miss Betty Ritchie, 24, of Toronto, who was arrested in the apartment here of Gerard G. Dennis. Dennis, also a Canadian, now is under arrest in White Plains, N.Y.; in connection with widespread burglary operations.

Miss Ritchie's preliminary hearing on the stolen property charge is set for Friday. Hearing on the deportation warrant has not been scheduled.

LINCOLN PLANT CLOSES

Detroit, Feb. 24 — (AP)—The Lincoln plant of the Ford Motor Company closed down at the end of its afternoon shift Wednesday, adding 3,500 employees to the ranks of idle auto workers, now totalling 15,000 in the industry.

A Ford spokesman, blaming a shortage of body parts, said normal production will be resumed

Gold Production In South Africa May Fall Steadily

Johannesburg, Feb. 24 — (Reuters) — Production of gold in South Africa may fall steadily after 1960, according to the estimate of a government mining engineer published here today.

In a report by the Social and Economic Planning Council on economic aspects of the gold industry, he said that the addition of mines in the Orange Free State to existing production might check the fall in output only until about that date.

Extension of estimates to 1980 had only academic value because of many uncertain factors, but "normally, in the light of what we know today, this stage will mark the beginning of the end of large-scale gold mining operations in South Africa."

In 1947 the mines milled 53,-700,000 tons of gold. The report put the total tonnage of ore milled in 1955 at 56,300,000, including 8,000,000 tons from the Free State. By 1960 the Free State might be milling 16,300,000 tons but the total milling was forecast at 55,-900,000 tons.

The council urged that efforts at price control and subsidization should not be relaxed. It suggested scaling down of "concealed taxation" such as excessive freight rates, and the lifting of customs duties.

Referring to the Union's sale of gold at premium prices, the council considered it in the Union's long-term interest to maintain a steady market for gold at a stable price, rather than to encourage highly erratic free markets.

As the danger of inflation receded, a more favorable opportunity for pressing for an increase in gold price might occur.

Labor Bosses Consider Program Of Next Election

London, Feb. 24 (CP)— Labor bosses sat Wednesday in secret conclave to consider the program for the next general election.

Every big British industry wondered if it was on the list for nationalization.

It was believed that the purpose of the meeting of the executive of the Labor party was to review the preliminary draft of the election program. Whatever this gathering approves will go to the union chiefs, regional party officers and other party supporters.

The elections must be held not later than 1950. Conservative newspapers have speculated on the possibility of a "snap" election this summer but government spokesmen scoffed at the reports.

The document drafted at the executive meeting may be made public only when the annual party conference assembles in Blackpool, Lancashire, in June and delegates from all the United Kingdom are asked to approve it.

But there is general belief that if labor is returned to power at the next election the nationalization program will be extended beyond the fuel industries, transport and iron and steel, already achieved or promised.

Moves Contemplated

Speculation about nationalization covers these industries and services:

1. Water services. Labor supporters object to reservoirs or important distribution services being left in private hands.

2. Insurance. Labor has been reticent but the industrial life offices association has started a publicity drive against possible government ownership.

3. Shipbuilding. Advocates of all-out nationalization say the prospects of a slump in the yards is the best argument for taking them over and the party should thus protect workers against the effects of a slump.

operations of this industry are looked on by many Labor men as suitable for nationalization. But a strong element in the government thinks nothing more than government supervision and collaboration with private owners is necessary.

London newspapers said Wednesday there is a prospect that the meat trade on the wholesale and processing sides may be brought under public ownership if Labor is re-elected with flour milling and sugar refining among

A MEDICAL READER DISCUSSES THE C-R-I

A medical colleague of high standing writes to express his "whole-hearted support of your fine efforts." He says that his particular field of training has given him a real interest in the physiological implications of my teachings. He has often been asked about the scientific authenticity of these teachings, and, nearly always, it has been his pleasure to verify them.

That "nearly always" intrigues me (I hate the word, but I'm stuck with it here). The doctor proceeds to describe his experience with the ambulant treatment of hernia. Although he was taught the technique by two of the leading exponents of ambulant treatment during his five years residency in surgery in University hospitals and used it in practice in suitable cases, he has given it up because the recurrence rate proved too high. As soon as my arm is out of this blankety-blanked cast, and my right index finger has recovered from the strain of these past several weeks, I'd like to go to the mat with the doctor about that. He can use Rice's recent book, which he cites, and I'll use the recent (third) edition of Watson for statistics on the recurrence rate with ambulant treatment and radical operation respectively.

From the professional spirit of the doctor's letter I'm confident he would not make the unreasonable comparison that many brass "surgeons" make when hernia patients have the temerity to ask about injection treatment. They imply that the operation is a sure thing whereas injection treatment only rarely cures. The truth is that hernia recurs after operation in from 3 per cent to 30 per cent of all cases.

The rate of recurrence after injection treatment may be even higher, but even so, a permanent cure may still be obtained by further injections. If the injection treatment proves a total failure, the patient still has the same chance of cure by operation that he or she had before. Scar tissue, if any, left by the injections may make surgery a little more difficult but not more so than in cases of post-operative recurrence.

In any comparison of radical hernia operation with ambulant or injection treatment it is well to consider that operation requires absence from work, loss of pay, absence from home, hospitalization; injection treatment requires only a series of visits to the doctor's office. These facts are as important to working people as they are to business or professional people.

Most hernia patients treated by injection are fifty years old or older. Most hernia patients treated by operation are from 20 to 50 years old. This difference has its bearing on the probability of cure or recurrence.

A considerable number of patients with recurrence following operation seek injection treatment, and it proves successful in most instances.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Oily Hair

I specifically asked for information regarding the treatment for excessively oily hair. The pamphlet you sent me contains nothing about oily hair. (Mrs. F. F.)

Answer—Ma'am, if you'll put on your strong specs and have another look you'll find a lotion for excessively oily or greasy scalp and hair right smack in the middle of p. 4. I assume you refer to the booklet The Hair and Scalp. For a copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Problem Solved

Please send as quickly as possible for my panel gang in college any information you may have on Suicide as a Problem in Life Adjustment. (Miss I. A.)

Answer—Unless my semantics needs adjustment I should say it solves all problems in this life, but who knows what problem it will bring in the next?

Purple Lips

My lips have a tendency to turn purple. Recently had examination, heart pronounced o.k. (A. L.)

Answer—If you are in the habit of taking a nostrum containing acetanilide you had better it and have your physician make a blood count and hemoglobin estimation.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In the James Bay country, there is a tribe of Indians, probably Crees, who turn out a beaver pelt that commands from 20 to 30 per cent more from the fur buyers than the standard hides in the fur trade.

The ordinary way of preparing a beaver pelt is to scrape all flesh and fat off the hide, being careful not to cut or injure the fibre of the skin, and then stretch it as tight as a drum-head on a hoop. It so dries, and is said to be cured.

The Crees stretch the hides; but leave them out to freeze, bringing them in every few days to be washed with some secret and traditional soap mixture and further scraped and kneaded while banjo tight. When the fur dealer gets the pelt in spring, the skin is as soft as chamois.

The Crees assert that this is the traditional method of curing beaver furs from time immemorial. We have often wondered how the Indians kept warm in winter in pre-invasion times. Imagining them dressed in buckskin without underwear on a frigid day is enough to bring out in goose flesh. Jacques Cartier found them clothed in under-garments of smoke-tanned deerskin, but with magnificent robes or overcoats of beaver furs. Every Indian, man, woman and child, had a beaver robe, its hide as soft and clinging as chamois, to wear wrapped round from head to foot; and in their tents, they had piles of beaver robes to sleep in.

The beaver, of course, was everywhere in those days; and one of the easiest furs for the Indian to obtain. It was the sight of these glorious robes that inspired the idea of the fur trade in the early invaders who were trying to get round to India to locate spices, gold and other trinkets.

If anything goes wrong with civilization, these Crees up around James Bay are going to be all right.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SHUFFLE OF FATE

In prosperity we seem to have plenty of companions, but in adversity we often walk silently alone. Great is that one who will follow you through both.

I once was shown through a magnificent house that was built by a gold miner when his prosperity was at its height. There were silver and gold door knobs and expensive fixtures throughout the place. Everything that money could do to advertise itself was there. Its once owner knew nothing of art, literature, or the love of Nature. All he knew was gold.

After being shown over the place, I inquired about the man and was told that he had died a pauper! He knew nothing about the shuffle of fate. A book man called upon me one day and told me the story of another man— both of these instances were of men in the early Western mine booms — this one who built a great house in Denver, Colorado. He had a great room that he had reserved for a library, for he was told that a rich man should have a fine library.

This man, however, knew nothing of books, and my friend told me that he had been engaged to buy $100,000 worth of them. As though books could be bought like a rich man's yacht! I asked my informer what became of this man — and he said that he never heard from him again.

Many a fortune was lost in the depression of the early thirties but I recall the story of a great engineer who lost his Long Island home and moved to a modest one in upper New York. He said that he had nothing to regret, that returning to the simple life gave him new hope, and that the school that he had established in his lush years gave him all the happiness that he could hope for. The shuffle of fate is both kind and cruel.

To a greater or lesser degree we all experience this shuffle of fate, but if we have kept our faith and our sense of values, we have nothing to fear from any shuffle of fate, be it ill or not. An asset of hope and a friend or two will

WEDDINGS

DRUMM—BOULTER

St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, was the occasion of a quiet wedding on Friday, February 18, at 5.30 p.m., when Barbara June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Boulter, of Rossmore, became the bride of Philip H. Drumm, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Drumm, John Street. Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith officiated.

The bride, who wore a navy blue suit of gabardine, and corsage of yellow roses, was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Una Boulter, sister of the bride, who was her only attendant, wore a pale blue suit of wool.

Albert Thompson, Belleville, was groomsman.

A reception was later held in the private dining room of the Bar-B-Q Old Tavern, where the bride and bridegroom were toasted by the bride's father. Miss Joan Belnap, cousin of the bride, sang, "Because", and "I Love You Truly", after which the young couple left for Toronto, Niagara Falls and points west.

Chapter Founder Honored With Life Membership

Mrs. A. E. MacColl, founder of St. Julien chapter, I.O.D.E. was presented with a life membership by the members of her chapter this year Mrs. MacColl has been Honorary Regent of the chapter since retirement from active office and is a valued member of St. Julien Chapter.

At the annual meeting of the chapter Mrs. F. M. Carscallen was elected Regent to succeed Mrs. C. F. Bishop; who ably filled the office during the past year. The new Regent will be supported by the following officers: Honorary Regent, Mrs. A. E. MacColl; Honorary Vice Regent, Mrs. R. A. Backus; 1st Vice Regent, Mrs. George Watkin; 2nd Vice Regent, Mrs. William Gilbert; Secretary, Mrs. William McCutcheon; Treasurer, Miss Evelyn Coulter; Educational Secretary, Mrs. H. A. Brown; Echoes Secretary, Mrs. Florence Lovering; Standard Bearer, Mrs. E. Doolittle.

Bestow Honor on Former Regent

The Navy League of Canada bestowed an honor on the late Mrs. Emily Neate, Regent of the chapter, during the war years and for three of the post war years, when Mr. Gilbert Stackhouse on behalf of the Navy League visited a chapter meeting and presented a certificate of merit for the late Mrs. Neate in appreciation of her outstanding work for the Navy League and for all form of war work. A certificate was also presented to the chapter in recognition of their support to the league.

The chapter had a most successful year the work for the most part being post war relief work, directed by the Provincial Chapter. This included numerous clothing parcels for Britain and food parcels sent each month to areas where assistance is needed in Britain. Hospital assistance to returned service men who also done by the chapter.

The annual Tag Day known as "Rose Day" held the first Saturday in May of each year was a great success again in 1948 when the proceeds were 592.16. The bridge marathon proves a worthy aid to chapter funds.

Six new members were received into the chapter this year.

Minstrel Show Capably Presented By Senior AYPA of Christ Church

Artists in blackface entertained a capacity audience at Christ Church parish hall on Wednesday evening when the Senior A.Y.P.A. presented a fast-moving, tuneful minstrel show. It was evident that not only did the audience enjoy the show, but the performers themselves were getting a great deal of enjoyment on the stage. There were no dull moments and the jokes and songs brought generous applause from the audience.

The interlocutor was Bill Dack, and end men were Ed Waterhouse and Doug Tougher, who gave excellent performances and did much to set the pace for the entire ensemble. The other principals were Marjorie Ashton and Winnifred Kellar, and the director was Bill Valance. Mrs. Grace Calvert played the accompaniments at the piano. The stage management was carried out by James Wright. Members of the chorus were Jean Green, Barbara Carr, Alice Matthews, Joan Bronskill, Dorothy Stewart, Audrey Stewart, Vivian Smith, Fred Paige, Bill Valance, Jack Mitchell, Max Wilkinson, Jim Chambers, Art Kellar, Jim Cooke, Eric Smith, several of whom contributed solo numbers.

Fast-Moving Acts

First in appearance was Sambo with his arm in a sling who proceeded to unwrap gum papers and smoke a cigarette single-handed. Then down the aisle danced the chorus singing their opening number, garbed in weird and colorful costumes and playing tambourines. From then on the performance never lagged with the interlocutor and end men exchanging their repartee, and the solos and choruses well-timed and gay.

Outstanding of the musical numbers was "Mr. Clarence's" rendition of "Sometimes You Get a Good One", and "Old Man River". The numbers included "Dixie", "Sunny Tennessee", "Golden Slippers", "Far Away Places", "Weep All You Little Rains", "Your Land and My Land", "My Mother Was a Lady", "Camptown Races", "Banjo on my Knee", "My Curly-headed Baby", "O By Jingo", a duet "When You and I Were Young", "Old Black Mammy" sung by "Mr. Snoozie", after he had divested himself of several coats and vests in a strip-tease version; "Hard Trials", by "Old Abe", and "My California". Sambo read an essay on "Women", a quartet sang "Some Day I'll Wander Back Again", and "Mammy", brought the show to a close with a sweet rendition of "Hallelujah".

Bouquet Presented

Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of the church, expressed his personal gratitude for the wonderful evening the young people had provided and called on Mrs. Grace Calvert to accept a bouquet of roses from the cast. He also introduced the president of the A.Y.P.A., Miss Jean Green, and expressed his thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wright for opening their home for rehearsals for the show. The audience expressed their approval with an ovation and many favorable comments.

Mrs. W. Mantle, on behalf of the Guild, presented a Life Membership in the Woman's Missionary Society to Mrs. A. H. McCullough, for which Mrs. McCullough graciously thanked the members of the Guild.

During the social hour, Mrs. W. J. Taylor conducted an interesting contest.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. N. Ponton and her group.

6TH SIDNEY

Two Families Bidden Farewell By Community

6th Sidney—On Saturday evening last a large gathering of neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chapman for a double farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chapman and daughter Mabel, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Wardle and daughters, the Chapman family are moving to Belleville and the Wardle family are moving to Frankford.

Mr. H. W. Rose was master of ceremonies for a short program of community singing and orchestra music, Miss Rhea Rose, a piano solo and a reading by Mrs. Morley Sine; Mrs. J. A. Lott read the address for the Chapman family, who were presented with a number of appropriate gifts for which they graciously thanked their friends.

Mr. Everson the popular school teacher read the address for the Wardle family for which they too thanked their friends for the gifts they received. After singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" refreshments were served, ending a very enjoyable evening.

Parents' Night Held by Guides At Parish House

Preparing for tomorrow, today, the theme of Girl Guide - Boy Scout Week, 1949, was emphasized at a parents' night held by the Girl Guides local association. The Commissioner, Mrs. J. Watson, extended a hearty welcome to the large number of parents who attended this meeting held in St. Thomas' Parish House on Monday evening, Feb. 21st. The meeting was convened by Mrs. A. S. Lewis, chairman of the membership committee. After the Guide Hymn and Prayer, the Commissioner introduced the Guiders to the parents, who, in turn, introduced themselves to their respective Guider.

To illustrate some of the principles of Guiding, Co. 7 presented an interesting three act play, entitled "What does it all mean?" with the following cast:

Mrs. Swan, Joanne Atkinson; Susie Swan; her daughter, Eleanor Terry; A Brownie Sixer, Barbara McElrath; Patrol Leader, Margaret Roberts, Edna Orser; The Captain of the Guides, Barbara Dix; The Lieutenant, Barbara Bennett; Guides, All taking part in a camp fire scene.

In a brief discussion that followed it was decided to extend the existing local association to include anyone interested in Guiding, particularly the mothers of Guides and Brownies.

It was a great pleasure to welcome to the meeting Divisional Commissioner, Mrs. A. S. Oliver, District Commissioner, Mrs. J. Speers, and Guider, Miss J. Wiggins, all of Trenton.

Future plans of the local association were discussed and it was decided to hold a spring tea at the home of Mrs. A. S. Lewis, Queen Street.

To conclude the program Co. 2 presented a Union Jack drill, showing the formation of the Union Jack and when the flag was completed, Frances Thompson sang The Maple Leaf and O Canada, the audience joining in the singing of the National Anthem, followed by Taps by the two companies.

Refreshments were served by the Guiders, and a pleasant social time brought the evening to a close.

2nd Belleville Brownies

The Brownies in charge of Brown Owl, Mrs. H. Samuels, presented a very impressive candlelighting ceremony at their regular weekly meeting, in Queen Mary School on Tuesday.

As February 22nd is "Thinking Day" the ceremony directed thoughts to the founders of the movement, Lord Baden-Powell, Miss Agnes Baden-Powell, and the World Chief Guide, Lady Baden-Powell and the Guides and Brownies in 28 different countries which form the world association.

Taking part in the ceremony were the following Brownies:

Brownies, Beverly McKenzie, Carol Fuxzen; Brownie Spirit, Carol Poste; Promise, Sandra Randle; Law, Gwen Hopkins; Motto, Sharon Rump; Sixers, Little People, Sharon Trapnell; Gnomes, Barbara McKenzie; Sprites, Linda Keel; Fairies, Helen Gill; Kelpies, Carol Pringle; Brownies, Beverly Samuels, Helen Meyner; Closing Prayer, Carol Franklin.

A number of parents attended this ceremony and were cordially welcomed by the Brown Owl.

1st Belleville Brownies

Many parents and friends attended the regular meeting of the 1st Belleville Brownie Pack on Tuesday afternoon at which a special candlelighting service was held.

The meeting opened with the usual Brownie ceremonies, after which Brown Owl Mrs. A. Tooth welcomed the visitors, saying how much their support during the first eighteen months of the Pack's life had been appreciated. She then proceeded to give a story-talk on the life of Baden-Powell, showing how his early happy open-air life had prepared and influenced his career as a soldier in India and Africa, and how his zest for learning how to do things to make himself of service to others had brought him so much happiness. Brown Owl mentioned several stories of his "tough" upbringing with his three elder brothers, his adventurous life hunting and fighting in India and Africa, culminating with him becoming the hero of the seven-month siege of Mafeking.

It was in 1907 that the first Scout camp was held in England, and the movement spread and became world wide, until in 1920 an International Jamboree of Scouts was held at Olympia, London, and Baden-Powell was made Chief Scout of the world. At the world jamboree in 1929, where the Scouts of 42 nations assembled to celebrate the coming-of-age of the movement, the King conferred a peerage on the Chief Scout, and he became Lord Baden-Powell.

The unrehearsed candlelighting service which followed was very much enjoyed by everyone present, but its outstanding keynote was the sincerity and depth of feeling displayed by the Brownies themselves. They will long remember the flickering candles and their clear, sincere Brownie declarations, as they outlined their Chief's initials "B.P." in light, and chanted with feeling:

"We are thinking of you
All the Brownies across the sea,
Black and Yellow, and white like me,
Tu Whit, tu whit, tu who."

The meeting closed with a prayer.

The Brown Owl of the 1st. Belleville Brownie Pack enrolled on Feb. 15th. three new Tweenies, Nancy Walters, Roberta Pursey, Jeanette Green.

Ameliasburg Girls' Club

The Ameliasburg Girls' Club held their first meeting at the home of Mrs. V. L. Taft, on February 19. The following officers were elected: Leader, Betty Dempsey; Assistant Leader, Mrs. V. L. Taft; President, Barbara Ferguson; Secretary, Marilyn Fritz. Press reporters are Lois Casson for the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer and Marlene Stinson for The Picton Gazette.

Ten members were present with three absent. A name for the club was left undecided and the first project was discussed. A few games were played and Mrs. Taft served delicious refreshments. Everyone agreed it was a very enjoyable meeting and are looking forward to next Saturday afternoon.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Not a proper form of introduction-acknowledgment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is "Glad to know you" or even "I'm glad to know you," a good reply to an introduction? (This question arose last evening at our dinner-table, and I was the only one who didn't seem to approve of it.)

Wilma

No . . . neither of these is a good form for acknowledging an introduction . . . and particularly the first one, a subject-less sentence. To say "I'm glad to know you" to a person you know nothing about sounds unsuitable, really insincere. If you are being introduced to a person you have heard a good deal about from a mutual friend, it's quite all right to say, "How do you do, Miss Graham. I'm so glad to meet you at last!" And, of course, it's always correct, when acknowledging an introduction of any kind, to say, "How do you do."

Plans for her mother's second marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is being married for the second time. She is a divorcee. She is planning a quiet wedding and a small reception. (1) How should the invitations to the reception be worded? (2) What should be served at the reception? (3) What type of announcements should be sent?

D. W.

(1) For such an informal wedding . . . and your mother's plans for a quiet wedding and a small reception are in excellent taste. . . the invitations to the ceremony and to the reception are customarily given either by note or word of mouth. (2) If the reception is to be in the late-afternoon, as is quite customary, a simple tea-menu is served: tea and/or coffee; small sandwiches; small cakes or a bride's cake. There should also be a cold beverage of some kind with which to drink the toasts "to the happiness of the bride and groom". (3) It isn't considered in very good taste for a divorced woman, particularly an older woman with children, to send formal announcements of her marriage. However, if your mother particularly wishes to send announcements, they may be issued by the couple themselves, and read:

Mr. John Paul Wells
and
Mrs. Robinson White
announce their marriage
Tuesday, the third of May
Nineteen hundred and forty-nine
Newwark, New Jersey.

Some formal invitations, some informal?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The plans are for a large church wedding. When there are many, many relatives on both sides, and many friends, is it permissible to send wedding invitations to just the grandparents, parents, brothers and sisters and their families, inviting the others (for example, the cousins, great-aunts and great-uncles) and friends (except the very special ones) informally, by verbal or telephoned invitations?

M. J.

If the invitatiions-budget is a serious consideration, and if the wedding is not to be one of ultra-formality, it would be best form to invite all the guests by friendly notes of invitation. As a matter of fact, a note of invitation is a very charming and flattering way to be invited to a wedding, even a wedding of some formality. And this plan of having all the invitations formal ones or all informal ones, is a better idea, and no one would then feel slighted.

Sandwiches Can be Satisfying

One of today's most popular ideas and one that has simplified entertaining in the last few years is the make-yourself sandwich.

With a variety of white, whole wheat and a fancy bread or rolls and choice of several fillings each person may make the sandwich that exactly suits the mood.

The bridge club will like thin bread and butter or two-bite size rolls with a dainty or piquant filling.

The tobogganing, skiing or skating set like the bread thickly sliced and the rolls or wiener or hamburg type. Their choice of fillings will be substantial and will spread it generously. A regular "Dagwood" with four or five thick slices of bread and as many different fillings, may be built up by some.

A sandwich loaf (1 1-2 lbs.) cuts into 30 or 40 thin slices and will require 1-4 pound of butter for spreading. If thicker slices are preferred, less butter may be used.

Cheese Types Good

Cheeses of different types are usually relished. Grated cheddar processed, cottage or cream cheese may be softened to spreading consistency with salad dressing, milk or fruit juice and used alone or in combination with nuts, raisins, chopped pickle, jam, jelly, marmalade or preserved ginger; or, for a piquant filling a little chopped bacon, onion, pimento, olives or chives may be used.

Eggs, hard-cooked and sliced or chopped, may be peppered up with sharp salad dressing or chili sauce, chopped pickle, onion, ham or bacon. Some people like a pinch of curry powder for extra seasoning.

Ham and other meats may be thinly sliced or finely chopped and seasoned with chili sauce or other pickle, mustard or salad dressing. Celery, onion, cheese, hard-cooked egg, grated carrot or sliced radishes blend well with meats and give extra flavor.

Peanut butter is a general favorite. Mixing with jelly, marmalade, apple-sauce, honey or pulped fruit makes it of a consistency that will spread more easily and adds to the flavor. Chopped dried fruits, celery, bacon, or carrot also give variation.

Chopped or sliced vegetables, cooked and raw, make good sandwich fillings, when several fillings are to be used in a one, two or three decker.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest the following sandwich spreads which may be made up in quantity and kept for a while before using.

PEANUT BUTTER APPLE SPREAD

1 cup peanut butter
1-2 cup applesauce
1-2 cup chopped fresh apple

Mix peanut butter with the applesauce. Add fresh chopped apple. Spread on whole wheat bread. Yield: sufficient for eight large sandwiches.

Note: If desired, applesauce may be omitted and the peanut butter blended with a little mayonnaise or salad dressing and chopped fresh apple.

SAVORY LIVER SANDWICH SPREAD

1-2 pound liver (pork or beef)
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
8 slices cooked bacon
1-4 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper

Simmer liver with the one teaspoon salt and boiling water for 30 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool. Put through meat chopper with cooked bacon. Add remaining ingredients. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. Yield: about 1 1-4 cups spread.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and a sophomore in high school. The boy I am very fond of will be 15 in August. He is in the seventh grade, and I would like to know if you think he is too young for me. I know many boys in high school, but I like this other boy much better. He is a good dancer and companion. Lately there has been talk about us, and this is why I am writing to you.

Also I would like to know if it is proper for a girl to kiss a boy. I do not think so, but the girls I go with think it is perfectly all right and they come from some of the best families.

"Troubled"

Dear "Troubled":

If you enjoy being with this younger boy, I think that is your own affair, and if I were you, I would pay no attention to any talk about it. Usually, of course, girls of your age prefer boys who are at least as old as they are, and frequently a little older, but there certainly is no general rule about this sort of thing, and you are entitled to go with whomever you like.

As for kissing boys, my own opinion is that you are right, and it is wiser to leave that sort of thing alone. I realize also, however, that a very great many people today indulge in kissing, and that most of it is entirely harmless. But there are lots of things that are harmless, and not in good taste, and I think this kissing that goes on between young boys and girls is one of them.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two boys of 15 who would like to ask two girls to one of our school basketball games. What we want to know is, would they have a good time at the basketball game, or is there some other place we should take them, and if so, where?

"J. and D."

Dear "J. and D.":

I should think any girls of your age would enjoy a basketball game very much, but if you have doubts about their interest in sports, why not take them to the movies? Also, don't you have dances at school to which you could invite the girls? Or perhaps a school play or something of that sort?

Anyhow, there is no reason why you shouldn't ask them straight out if they would enjoy a basketball game, or if they would rather do something else. If they are at all interested in going out with you two, the basketball game will probably suit and after dinner he was sitting in think of something else they'd like to do on a double date.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Beautiful teeth necessary for good looks

Sound, healthy, highly polished teeth are of the utmost importance, not only as an element of good appearance but because the health and vitality of the body are dependent upon mastication, which is not performed properly if there is a sensitive tooth or an incipient cavity. Fear of the dentist's little buzz saws must not retard one from seeking professional attentions.

At a convention of a dental society some time ago, a member of the organization declared that only twenty per cent of the population of the United States receive dental services. That doesn't sound very good considering the wide publicity that is given to oral hygiene. It is not only the individuals in poor financial circumstances who fail to seek the dentist's help, but also those who are well able to afford professional attention. It is a matter that is postponed until infections arrive and serious troubles result, the infection passing to other parts of the body.

Never neglect to brush your teeth at night

Don't wait until there is pain. A sensitive tooth is a warning. It will not correct itself. The formation of tartar can cause trouble. Tartar forms and hardens quickly. The brush does not remove it; only the dentist's instrument will scrape it away. Without this treatment, tartar will cause the gums to recede. If your gums bleed, massage them lightly. Dip your finger in a dentifrice, do little circles.

Eat hard foods—raw cabbage hearts, raw carrots or bread crusts—and chew them well. You can't keep muscles strong unless they are exercised. The same rule holds good for the teeth and the gums. Some grains and cereals in their natural state can be chewed to a creamy mass with benefit to the teeth. That practice, however, belongs to a long-ago time. Now we seek soft food, with the result that the teeth are not what they should be.

Never neglect the nightly brushing of the teeth that is most important. Food elements change in character in a few hours, forming destructive chemicals. If you have a sweet tooth and go on a candy binge now and then, be especially thorough when brushing.

Fichus, Flowers Latest Trimming

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP) — London designers have accented flowers in afternoon and evening dresses of the softer silks and satins.

Large posies, artistically shaded, are worn at shoulder, waist or hip. Examples are: pink lilies on charcoal tulle, full-blown red roses on nigger brown chiffon, pale blue and green lilac tucked into the waist of a bronze satin dress.

Rich rustling silks are lit by glorious splashes of color from flowers nestling in folds and tucks. Glossy ivy leaves girdle the waist and form one shoulder of an ultramarine all-net dress.

An aquamarine tulle evening dress by Hartnell has a V-neck and leg-of-mutton sleeves with collar and cuffs of matching velvet. The tight bodice comes to a low hipline from which flares a full skirt. The elegant charm of this dress is intensified by the all-over sequining, cleverly shaded pink roses with interwined leaves and twists of aquamarine.

Flowers are used to outline hip-length bodices breaking into full skirts, to ruche the fullness of a scarf neckline, or to outline the curves of a strapless top.

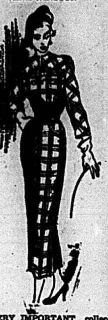
Necklines are news this Spring and several designers are using new shapes.

One example fits snugly round the neck at the back but plunges—widening as it goes, as low as it decorously can. Another was the reverse, extremely wide at the top—almost off the shoulders—its frontline midway between high and low, taking form of a wide letter "M".

Afternoon dresses call for attion as necklines descend ever lower. They are often magnificently scooped out and partly filled in again with chiffon, tulle, lace or silk. Many deeps Vs are used with attractive outlining. Fichus are in the front line—draped high or low, wide or narrow; attractively scooped, draped or flowered.

Plaid Wool Street Dress

VERA WINSTON



EVERY IMPORTANT collection shows its own interpretation of the street dress, so that women who enjoy wearing a trig, comfortable dress while on their busy daytime rounds, should find a wide choice. A typically smart version is this design fashioned of light weight wool in shadow plaid, gray plaided in brown with brown bone buttons at the square yoke. The slit neckline takes a surplice curve that seems to terminate in the one curved slit pocket at the hip-line which is a nice piece of figure flattery. The dress is slit at one side, and buttons down one side, as do so many of the smartest clothes for Spring.

Handicraft Study Creates Interest

Halifax. (CP) — The Nova Scotia department of trade and industry has set up a handicrafts centre here.

"One of our big problems in establishing the centre," said Miss Mary Black, director of the division, "was in convincing some of the women selected for the courses that they could really leave their families and come to us for instruction."

Members of the class live at the handicraft centre. The former C.W.A.C, barrack buildings here have been adapted for teaching the various crafts. There is a small kitchenette where students can prepare their own meals.

"The families," says Miss Black, "soon learn to look after themselves."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Not a proper form of introduction-acknowledgment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is "Glad to know you" or even "I'm glad to know you," a good reply to an introduction? (This question arose last evening at our dinner-table, and I was the only one who didn't seem to approve of it.)

Wilma

No . . . neither of these is a good form for acknowledging an introduction . . . and particularly the first one, a subject-less sentence. To say "I'm glad to know you" to a person you know nothing about sounds unsuitable, really insincere. If you are being introduced to a person you have heard a good deal about from a mutual friend, it's quite all right to say, "How do you do, Miss Graham. I'm so glad to meet you at last!" And, of course, it's always correct, when acknowledging an introduction of any kind, to say, "How do you do."

Plans for her mother's second marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is being married for the second time. She is a divorcee. She is planning a quiet wedding and a small reception. (1) How should the invitations to the reception be worded? (2) What should be served at the reception? (3) What type of announcements should be sent?

D. W.

(1) For such an informal wedding . . . and your mother's plans for a quiet wedding and a small reception are in excellent taste. . . the invitations to the ceremony and to the reception are customarily given either by note or word of mouth. (2) If the reception is to be in the late-afternoon, as is quite customary, a simple tea-menu is served: tea and/or coffee; small sandwiches; small cakes or a bride's cake. There should also be a cold beverage of some kind with which to drink the toasts "to the happiness of the bride and groom". (3) It isn't considered in very good taste for a divorced woman, particularly an older woman with children, to send formal announcements of her marriage. However, if your mother particularly wishes to send announcements, they may be issued by the couple themselves, and read:

Mrs. Robinson White
announce their marriage
Tuesday, the third of May
Nineteen hundred and forty-nine
Newwark, New Jersey.

Some formal invitations, some informal?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The plans are for a large church wedding. When there are many, many relatives on both sides, and many friends, is it permissible to send wedding invitations to just the grandparents, parents, brothers and sisters and their families, inviting the others (for example, the cousins, great-aunts and great-uncles) and friends (except the very special ones) informally, by verbal or telephoned invitations?

M. J.

If the invitatiions-budget is a serious consideration, and if the wedding is not to be one of ultra-formality, it would be best form to invite all the guests by friendly notes of invitation. As a matter of fact, a note of invitation is a very charming and flattering way to be invited to a wedding, even a wedding of some formality. And this plan of having all the invitations formal ones or all informal ones, is a better idea, and no one would then feel slighted.

Sandwiches Can be Satisfying

One of today's most popular ideas and one that has simplified entertaining in the last few years is the make-yourself sandwich.

With a variety of white, whole wheat and a fancy bread or rolls and choice of several fillings each person may make the sandwich that exactly suits the mood.

The bridge club will like thin bread and butter or two-bite size rolls with a dainty or piquant filling.

The tobogganing, skiing or skating set like the bread thickly sliced and the rolls or wiener or hamburg type. Their choice of fillings will be substantial and will spread it generously. A regular "Dagwood" with four or five thick slices of bread and as many different fillings, may be built up by some.

A sandwich loaf (1 1-2 lbs.) cuts into 30 or 40 thin slices and will require 1-4 pound of butter for spreading. If thicker slices are preferred, less butter may be used.

Cheese Types Good

Cheeses of different types are usually relished. Grated cheddar processed, cottage or cream cheese may be softened to spreading consistency with salad dressing, milk or fruit juice and used alone or in combination with nuts, raisins, chopped pickle, jam, jelly, marmalade or preserved ginger; or, for a piquant filling a little chopped bacon, onion, pimento, olives or chives may be used.

Eggs, hard-cooked and sliced or chopped, may be peppered up with sharp salad dressing or chili sauce, chopped pickle, onion, ham or bacon. Some people like a pinch of curry powder for extra seasoning.

Ham and other meats may be thinly sliced or finely chopped and seasoned with chili sauce or other pickle, mustard or salad dressing. Celery, onion, cheese, hard-cooked egg, grated carrot or sliced radishes blend well with meats and give extra flavor.

Peannut butter is a general favorite. Mixing with jelly, marmalade, apple-sauce, honey or pulped fruit makes it of a consistency that will spread more easily and adds to the flavor. Chopped dried fruits, celery, bacon, or carrot also give variation.

Chopped or sliced vegetables, cooked and raw, make good sandwich fillings, when several fillings are to be used in a one, two or three decker.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest the following sandwich spreads which may be made up in quantity and kept for a while before using.

PEANUT BUTTER APPLE SPREAD

1 cup peanut butter
1-2 cup applesauce
1-2 cup chopped fresh apple

Mix peanut butter with the applesauce. Add fresh chopped apple. Spread on whole wheat bread. Yield: sufficient for eight large sandwiches.

Note: If desired, applesauce may be omitted and the peanut butter blended with a little mayonnaise or salad dressing and chopped fresh apple.

SAVORY LIVER SANDWICH SPREAD

1-2 pound liver (pork or beef)
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
8 slices cooked bacon
1-4 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper

Simmer liver with the one teaspoon salt and boiling water for 30 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool. Put through meat chopper with cooked bacon. Add remaining ingredients. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. Yield: about 1 1-4 cups spread.

OWL CRASHES

Port Alberni, B.C. — (CP) — An owl dived to its death through a window at a canary in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dornian here. Owing to snow in the area owls and other birds are having difficulty finding food.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and a sophomore in high school. The boy I am very fond of will be 15 in August. He is in the seventh grade, and I would like to know if you think he is too young for me. I know many boys in high school, but I like this other boy much better. He is a good dancer and companion. Lately there has been talk about us, and this is why I am writing to you.

Also I would like to know if it is proper for a girl to kiss a boy. I do not think so, but the girls I go with think it is perfectly all right and they come from some of the best families.

"Troubled".

Dear "Troubled":

If you enjoy being with this younger boy, I think that is your own affair, and if I were you, I would pay no attention to any talk about it. Usually, of course, girls of your age prefer boys who are at least as old as they are, and frequently a little older, but there certainly is no general rule about this sort of thing, and you are entitled to go with whomever you like.

As for kissing boys, my own opinion is that you are right, and it is wiser to leave that sort of thing alone. I realize also, however, that a very great many people today indulge in kissing, and that most of it is entirely harmless. But there are lots of things that are harmless, and not in good taste, and I think this kissing that goes on between young boys and girls is one of them.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two boys of 15 who would like to ask two girls to one of our school basketball games. What we want to know is, would they have a good time at the basketball game, or is there some other place we should take them, and if so, where?

"J. and D."

Dear "J. and D.":

I should think any girls of your age would enjoy a basketball game very much, but if you have doubts about their interest in sports, why not take them to the movies? Also, don't you have dances at school to which you could invite the girls? Or perhaps a school play or something of that sort?

Anyhow, there is no reason why you shouldn't ask them straight out if they would enjoy a basketball game, or if they would rather do something else. If they are at all interested in going out with you two, the basketball game will probably suit and after dinner he was sitting in think of something else they'd like to do on a double date.

Wife Preservers

Look critically at your kitchen cupboard and see if it is as convenient as it might be. The lower shelves might be housing a lot of things that could be stored elsewhere.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Beautiful teeth necessary for good looks

Sound, healthy, highly polished teeth are of the utmost importance, not only as an element of good appearance but because the health and vitality of the body are dependent upon mastication, which is not performed properly if there is a sensitive tooth or an incipient cavity. Fear of the dentist's little buzz saws must not retard one from seeking professional attentions.

At a convention of a dental society some time ago, a member of the organization declared that only twenty per cent of the population of the United States receive dental services. That doesn't sound very good considering the wide publicity that is given to oral hygiene. It is not only the individuals in poor financial circumstances who fail to seek the dentist's help, but also those who are well able to afford professional attention. It is a matter that is postponed until infections arrive and serious troubles result, the infection passing to other parts of the body.

Never neglect to brush your teeth at night

Don't wait until there is pain. A sensitive tooth is a warning. It will not correct itself. The formation of tartar can cause trouble. Tartar forms and hardens quickly. The brush does not remove it; only the dentist's instrument will scrape it away. Without this treatment, tartar will cause the gums to recede. If your gums bleed, massage them lightly. Dip your finger in a dentifrice, do little circles.

Eat hard foods—raw cabbage hearts, raw carrots or bread crusts—and chew them well. You can't keep muscles strong unless they are exercised. The same rule holds good for the teeth and the gums. Some grains and cereals in their natural state can be chewed to a creamy mass with benefit to the teeth. That practice, however, belongs to a long-ago time. Now we seek soft food, with the result that the teeth are not what they should be.

Never neglect the nightly brushing of the teeth that is most important. Food elements change in character in a few hours, forming destructive chemicals. If you have a sweet tooth and go on a candy binge now and then, be especially thorough when brushing.

Fichus, Flowers Latest Trimming

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP) — London designers have accented flowers in afternoon and evening dresses of the softer silks and satins.

Large posies, artistically shaded, are worn at shoulder, waist or hip. Examples are: pink lilies on charcoal tulle, full-blown red roses on nigger brown chiffon, pale blue and green lilac tucked into the waist of a bronze satin dress.

Rich rustling silks are lit by glorious splashes of color from flowers nestling in folds and tucks. Glossy ivy leaves girdle the waist and form one shoulder of an ultramarine all-net dress.

An aquamarine tulle evening dress by Hartnell has a V-neck and leg-of-mutton sleeves with collar and cuffs of matching velvet. The tight bodice comes to a low hipline from which flares a full skirt. The elegant charm of this dress is intensified by the all-over sequining, cleverly shaded pink roses with interwined leaves and twists of aquamarine.

Flowers are used to outline hip-length bodices breaking into full skirts, to ruche the fullness of a scarf neckline, or to outline the curves of a strapless top.

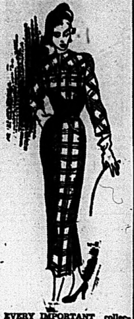
Necklines are news this Spring and several designers are using new shapes.

One example fits snugly round the neck at the back but plunges —widening as it goes, as low as it decorously can. Another was the reverse, extremely wide at the top—almost off the shoulders—its frontline midway between high and low, taking form of a wide letter "M".

Afternoon dresses call for attion as necklines descend ever lower. They are often magnificently scooped out and partly filled in again with chiffon, tulle, lace or silk. Many deeps Vs are used with attractive outlining. Fichus are in the front line—draped high or low, wide or narrow; attractively scooped, draped or flowered.

Plaid Wool Street Dress

VERA WINSTON



EVERY IMPORTANT collection shows its own interpretation of the street dress, so that women who enjoy wearing a trig, comfortable dress while on their busy daytime rounds, should find a wide choice. A typically smart version is this design fashioned of light weight wool in shadow plaid, gray plaided in brown with brown bone buttons at the square yoke. The slit neckline takes a surplice curve that seems to terminate in the one curved slit pocket at the hip-line which is a nice piece of figure flattery. The dress is slit at one side, and buttons down one side, as do so many of the smartest clothes for Spring.

Handicraft Study Creates Interest

Halifax. (CP) — The Nova Scotia department of trade and industry has set up a handicrafts centre here.

"One of our big problems in establishing the centre," said Miss Mary Black, director of the division, "was in convincing some of the women selected for the courses that they could really leave their families and come to us for instruction."

Members of the class live at the handicraft centre. The former C.W.A.C. barrack buildings here have been adapted for teaching the various crafts. There is a small kitchenette where students can prepare their own meals.

"The families," says Miss Black, "soon learn to look after themselves."

Sidney School Area News

During January and February the Sidney Township School Area Board found it necessary to hold two special meetings besides the regular monthly meeting in order to cover the large amount of business. Mr. H. M. Rutter and Mr. Roy Harry having been returned by acclamation, the personnel of the Board is the same as last year. Mr. James Campbell, Stirling, R.R. 4, was reelected chairman for 1949, with Mr. John Sargent, Belleville, R.R. 5, to act as vice-chairman.

Mr. Murney Mason, of the McFarland Construction Company was present to inquire about the use of the stone quarry on the Bayside property. It was left in the hands of a committee to look into the matter and report as soon as possible on the quarry lease. The Board decided to renew its membership in the Ontario School Trustees 'and Ratepayers' Association for 1949. Insurance policies for S.S. No. 4 and S.S. 17 schools were ordered renewed and the premiums paid.

Reforestation Planned

The suggestions for reforestation of Mr. W. E. Edwards, Zone Forester for this district, were discussed. Mr. Edwards has made a complete survey of some of the rougher land on the Bayside farm and outlined the species of trees that would be suitable for planting in the various areas. It was decided to make a start on the plans which had been formulated last year. An order of one thousand white and Scotch pines from the Department of Lands and Forests, was approved. These are to be planted on the island by the school children, where they can be observed as a trial plot. The secretary was instructed to reply to a letter of Douglas H. Ross, Corbyville, that the Board is interested in his reforestation project, but if plans materialize, the pupils would have all they could handle.

FATE UNCERTAIN—Count Jacques Duge de Bernonville, shown as he appeared in a Montreal court Monday, faces the threat of further government action to deport him to France, following a court ruling which freed him and his family Monday. The count is wanted in France to stand trial on charges of collaborating with the enemy. (CP Photo)

A slightly-used Gestetner duplicating machine with the same guarantee as a new machine was purchased at a reduced price of $153. It will be used for reproducing circular letters, outline maps for social studies, examinations, tests or any work which the teachers would need reproduced in large quantities.

Attendance Records

The December reports showed that the Johnstown pupils under Mrs. Aileen Booker had won the attendance banner for the third successive month. Only two pupil-days were lost during the month. Glen Ross and Turner's schools were next with 98.3 per cent and 98.11 per cent respectively.

It was decided for the purpose of awarding the banner that any day lost by schools being used for polling booths or closed by Board's orders would not be counted against their record. In January, 'flu made serious inroads into the ranks of the teachers as well as the pupils. The best record at date of checking was that of the Bayside pupils under Miss Beryl Gilbert with 96.05 per cent.

W. I. Delegation

The Board was very pleased to have a delegation consisting of Mrs. James Sine, Mrs. Morley Phillips and Mrs. Harold Phillips from the Wallbridge W.I. offering to pay for or share in the cost of some improvements to the school. The installation of blackboard lights or some similar project were suggested. They also have offered prizes to pupils in Wallbridge and Maplegrove schools with the best records in spelling and other subjects. The Board thanked them and promised that their offer would receive careful attention.

A project which had been under consideration before the Area was formed was considered favorably by the Board. This was the erection of a 12 ft. extension on the west end of Marsh Hill School, to serve as a teacher's room, cloak room, and a kitchen when used by the W.I. of that community. Subject to the approval of the Department of Education, the Board voted to accept the offer of the men in the community to furnish the labor for erecting it, provided the Board supplied the material. Chairman James Campbell and Harry Brown were named as a committee to oversee the purchase of material and the building of it.

Fuel Contract Awarded

The contract for supplying wood to those schools where it could not be gotten locally was given to D. Latchford at $15 per cord delivered to the schools. This amounted to 28 cords.

The secretary was authorized to send to the Foxboro and District Film Council the fee for 1949 for the three schools formerly enrolled. The representatives are the same as last year.

The Sidney Teachers' Association is holding its February meeting at Bayside on Thursday evening. The main items on the program are a discussion of the system of Entrance marking and a demonstration of a filmstrip machine.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

"I'm at Grand Central."

"Stay there. I'll meet you at the information desk in twenty minutes."

Rosalie told herself that she had called him merely to say hello and good-bye, but she spent the next twenty minutes giving herself a fresh make-up.

Norman, looking distinguished in a loose polo coat, was waiting at the appointed place when she reached it. He took both of her hands in his and searched her face. "Rosalie, darling, I thought I should never see you again. Why didn't you write to me?"

She was so glad to see him. So happy because she could see the admiration in his face. She said simply, "I ran away from you, Norman."

"And now you're back and you are never going to run away again. Are you staying at the Rankin?"

"No, I'm going on to Elmford sometime today — as soon as I can get Marion on the telephone. I've been calling ever since ten this morning."

He tucked her arm under his. "Then there's no point in calling for an hour or so. We're going somewhere to find a quiet corner and talk. And I'll tell you how much I've missed you and how much prettier you are than when you went away."

The quiet corner he found was in a hotel facing Central Park where soft stringed music played a background of harmony for their conversation. There wasn't much for them to tell each other. Rosalie, having admitted that she ran away from him, refused to pursue the subject and covered up her pleasure at seeing him again by chattering about the beauties and the pleasures of her trip. She did not mention either Cecil or Charles. They seemed very remote at that moment.

"Things have picked up a bit in the Street," Norman told her, "So I've dropped my extra-curriculum activities. After you left, I couldn't bear to be a professional escort any more."

"I never thought of you as a... a professional, Norman. And\I think it was perfectly honorable. In times like this people have to earn a living . . . Now, I've got to try Marion again."

She came back a little later with a woebegone face. "I can't understand it. It's so unusual for her to be away all day."

Norman was elated. "Her bad luck is my good luck. You're going to stay over to dinner. I'm dining with some friends— Fritz and Louise Ashland — and they'd love to have you. Fritz and I are trying to put over a little deal, and while we talk about it, you and Louise can get acquainted."

Rosalie thought that was a very happy idea. Norman rang up Louise and reported that she would be delighted.

The Ashlands had two floors in a beautiful old house on ashington Square. The rooms, like Mrs. Ashland, were bright, modern and very chic. Rosalie was a little awed by the decor. She'd never seen a parchment and gold drawing-room, a dining - room with photographic murals decorating the walls so that one seemed to be looking out of windows onto enchanting marine views. The lemon and magenta of Louise Ashland's bedroom left Rosalie speechless. The Ashlands must be frightfully rich.

Louise Ashland was twenty - eight. She looked thirty-five. She was chic from the top of her elaborately simple hair-do to the tip of her expensive slippers.

She said, "Miss Bates, we've heard a lot about you, and we're so glad you could come down with Norman. Mr. Ashland and Norman are engaged in something frightfully important, so you and I will have a chance to get acquainted."

The dinner, which was not very well cooked, was served by a sullen maid. When they had finished Louise said, "Come along to my bedroom while these boys get business off their minds."

Rosalie asked if she might telephone, explaining her efforts to her hostess. Elmford 5-6552 did not answer. Rosalie said, "I'm really frightened now."

"Why don't you ring up some friend in Elmford?" Louise suggested.

"Why didn't I think of that before?" Rosalie asked for Estella Brown's number. Estella would know about every one and everything.

Estelle did. Marion and Tom had left that very day for Great Barrington to visit Marion's mother during Tom's holidays. Rosalie breathed a great sigh of relief.

"I'd better telephone a hotel for reservations. I'm not going home until they return. It would be too lonesome."

Louise remembered the things Norman had said to her about Rosalie's money. She said cordially, "Nonsense! We wouldn't think of letting you go to a hotel. We've a guest room and if you'll put up with out poor lot, we'd like you to stay here. We see a lot of Norman anyway and you'll be seeing him. The dear boy is simply crazy about you . . ."

So, Rosalie, moved into the blue and silver guest room to share the Ashland's "poor lot."

And was soon to learn what a poor lot it was indeed.

Louise left late in the mornings to go to the decorating shop where she said she earned "a pittance, but so necessary, my dear. You wouldn't understand about these things," Louise sighed. "You have no idea how hard it is to maintain a front."

Rosalie looked up from the chaise - longue where she was having coffee with her hostess. Louise's spacious closets were open and Rosalie could see the rows of lovely clothes hanging there. She smiled. Rich people, she supposed, always talked about poverty.

Louise always did. "That dreadful maid! But, Rosalie, if you cannot afford a decent one, you have to take what you can get." . . . Or, "Darling, I'm expecting the cleaner this morning and I'm just out of checks. Could you let me have ten dollars? I'll pay it back to you." But she never did. And Louise suggested that they meet for lunch. She would mention a very expensive restaurant, adding, "It's frightfully smart." Rosalie paid all the checks.

Rosalie didn't pay the checks when she went out with Norman. They went to the movies, dropped in at little bars late in the afternoon, ate dinner together at the hole - in - the - wall restaurants where the food was good.

"When Fritz and I put that deal over, Rosalie, I'll show you a real time." Norman had forgotten that Rosalie had had a real time with him before she went to Bermuda. At her expense. But Rosalie never thought of that either. She was thinking how nice he was. How fortunate she was. And that the Ashlands were pretty nice to her, and to Norman. If a successful man like Fritz was taking Norman into a deal, it must be because Norman had the makings of an important business man. Rosalie felt proud that he had so much time for her.

"How do you like the Ashlands?" he asked her on one occasion.

"I'm fascinated by them. She's so smart and they have such a beautiful place."

"You're much more attractive than she is, Rosalie, and if you liked to live . . . well, as they do, you would do very well."

Rosalie began to have visions of herself as mistress of a modern apartment, of afternoons that would see her in a smart hostess gown preparing little tidbits and cocktails for when Norman and his friends dropped in after a day at the office, as Louise did.

Up to that time, Rosalie had no idea of how the Ashlands actually lived. She was to find that out.

She came in early one night and found them in a bitter quarrel, Louise in tears. Fritz flung himself out of the house saying that he was going to the Yale Club for the night.

Louise, devoid of make-up, her eyes reddened from weeping, was no longer the chic New Yorker; she was a pitiful wife, a woman.

"Sometimes I can't stand it!" she said. "You're rich, Rosalie, and you have no idea how crumby this is."

"But it's beautiful, Louise," Rosalie protested.

"Beautiful!" the other girl said bitterly. "Wondering if the furniture company will back a van up to the door when you have guests? Wondering how much longer the landlord will let the rent go?"

Rosalie said, "Why, Louise, if you can't afford a place like this, why keep it? Why don't you move into a smaller place?"

"Because we can't afford to," the other girl said between tight lips. "We have to keep up a show while Fritz tries to put over another of his endless deals. We've got to look successful. Anyway, it would be just as hard to pay the rent on two rooms. We don't actually own the clothes on our backs!"

The first light of day shining through the silver cellophane curtains in the Ashlands' guest room woke Rosalie. It was only a little after seven but she got up at once, and on silent feet padded about the room, gathering up and packing her belongings.

When she finished, she wrote a check for fifty dollars and enclosed it in a note to Louise. The note read:

Revived Old Tune As Fighting Song For Georgia Tech

By STERLING SLAPPEY

Atlanta (AP)—A swarthy, little Italian barber will be memorialized next month with a marble statue because he was the man who made famous "I'm A Rambling Wreck From Georgia Tech."

Mike Roman, the little barber who used to work out orchestrations while he clipped hair at the Georgia Tech "tonsorial parlor," died in 1928, the night before he was to leave for California to see Tech win in the Rose Bowl.

At the time Mike was both the college barber and the Tech bandmaster. In those days the Yellow Jackets couldn't afford to send their band to California but Coach Bill Alexander was taking Mike because he helped make the school famous through the war song.

In the flurry of going to the Rose Bowl, of beating California 8-7 when Roy Reigel ran the wrong way and of returning with the mythical national championship, Mike's friends missed his funeral and for 20 years none of them knew where he was buried.

Last fall a Teck alumnus was searching records of Greenwood Cemetery for another grave and came across the name, "Mike Roman" and the location of the grave. It was completely unmarked.

A few days later a collection was begun to memoralize the barber-bandmaster who orchestrated today's version of "Rambling Wreck" and made it one of the best known of all football songs. In a way the collection would help make up for neglecting Mike for 20 years.

The fund topped $600 in two weeks but Morgan McNeel of Marietta, Ga., a prominent marble company executive and Tech graduate, began work on an $800 tone. McNeel's firm would make up the difference.

Body Reburied

Mike's body was exhumed and reburied on a prominent lot at Greenwood. The stone will be finished next month, properly inscribed and ceremonies will be held at its erection. Hundreds of Tech alumni of the '20s will be present when Mike's given the kind of monument they think he should have.

No one at Tech knows who wrote the music or words of "Rambling Wreck."

The best guess anyone has as to the origin of Tech's lyrics is that the 1894 football team worked them out on the way to a football game with Auburn.

If that origin is correct then the song failed to stir the team. Tech took its worst football defeat in history the next day 94-0.

Between 1894 and 1908 the tune was hummed and played on the piano with one finger—it wasn't a school song. In 1908 the first orchestration of "Rambling Wreck" was made.

Later Mike joined the Tech band and barber shop and he was entranced by the song. He re-orchestrated "The Wreck" and at one time held a copyright on his version.

The song caught on during the years when southern football first became a big part of the nation's fall sports program. Today it's spirited enough to make rival Georgia's coach Wally Butts say:

"I'd give any two halfbacks I have if Georgia had the song, "I'm A Rambling Wreck From Georgia Tech."

GLORIOUS GLORIA RETURNS TO STARDOM

Gloria Swanson, one of the most famous of the movie stars of yesteryear, is signing on the dotted line to stage a return to the screen she glorified for a quarter of a century. She is putting the seal on a contract with Paramount to star in the Charles Brackett-Billy Wilder story, "Sunset Boulevard," a movie about Hollywood. With Miss Swanson here is William Meiklejohn, Paramount executive. —Central Press Canadian.

Named "one of the most notorious Nazi collaborators," Count Jacques de Bernonville and his countess smile after a Montreal judge had ruled they should be allowed to remain in Canada. Charges of collaboration were voiced in House of Commons by Allistair Stewart (CCF, Winnipeg North).—Canada Wide.

Doctor and Wife Chased Out Of France by Communists

Montreal, Feb. 24 (CP)—Mrs. Michel-Lucien Seigneur, wife of a 45-year-old French physician said to have been a Nazi collaborator, said Wednesday she and her husband were "chased out of France by the Communists."

Dr. Seigneur's name came up in the House of Commons Tuesday night at Ottawa as a sixth Frenchman given haven in Canada.

"We had to obey the Marshal (Marshal Petain). This was our only crime. That is a crime the Communists don't forgive."

"Who is this Col. Romain Petit who declared my husband was an inspector with the Nazi SS troops?"

(Mr. Stewart had said he had received his information on Dr. Seigneur from a Maqui officer named Col. Romains Petit.)

"We do not know this Col. Petit " she said. "My husband was never an inspector with the German SS. Can you imagine a Frenchman working for and with the SS troops?

"Here is the truth: We lived in Verrieres, 15 miles from Poitiers. My husband was a doctor, visiting his patients in about seven communities in the area.

"The Communist group was very active in Poitiers and in the department of Vienne. We were quickly denounced.

Life Became Untenable

"Living in such a place as Verriers became untenable. The danger of being maligned and tricked by the Communists was ever present.

"Abbe Boiteau, parish priest of Verrieres, now dead, knowing my husband and family were endangered by proximity to the Communists, advised us to leave this small French centre. That is what we did.

"Two days later we learned from friends that our house had been pillaged and laid waste. Then for three long years it was our plight to travel about France always on the move. One day we found new hope. We had decided to go to Canada.

"With a passport belonging to a friend of my husband, Dr. Seigneur was able to leave France and enter Canada. He has been here for two years.

"How about the immigration service?" A reporter asked. "My husband made the necessary approach in accordance with the law. In March 1948, we went before an immigration commission and in November, 1948, we were admitted as residents of Canada, fully authorized by the competent authorities.

WAGES NEED NOT

cent hydro power shortages, he said. They had been caused by "political meddling" in hydro affairs. Mr. Drew not only had been "the leader of the hydro band but he played every instrument in it himself."

Mr. Salsberg, Mines Minister Frost and C.C.F. members engaged in a free-for-all debate over Old Age Pensions that brought speaker M. C. Davies to his feet for the second successive day to ask for order.

Mr. Frost demanded the L.P.P. member name municipally owned old age homes on which Mr. Salsberg charged the government was "sponging." Mr. Salsberg said the government was placing a burden on these institutions by eliminating the additional $10 a month from old age pensions when pensioners were admitted to municipally owned homes.

Mr. Frost charged the L.P.P. member with "creating dissatisfaction." That was why the CCF groups had refused to be seated near the two L.P.P. members in the legislature he added.

Critical of Pensions

Leslie Wismer (CCF-Riverdale) interrupted shouts from front benches to say the CCF was a "separate and distinct" party like the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Salsberg described the $30-a-month regular old age pension as "the darkest blot on the record of this government."

Mr. Thornberry said the government "have not nailed a two-by-four" to ease the housing shortage. The Speech from the Throne had said 5,000 homes were built last year with the help of legislation which allows the government to assume second mortgages.

But the government had "merely aggravated" the problem by helping people to buy houses, when there were no houses to buy, Mr. Thornberry said. This had contributed to a rise in house prices.

London Spectator of 1711 Proud of High Tone of Paper

North Battleford, Sask. (CP)— As interesting as it is rare is Volume 17 of The Spectator, published in London, England, in 1711. A copy of the paper is owned by H. Gallagher of North Battleford.

He picked up the copy some years ago during one of his many journeyings in the Canadian Northwest. It is in excellent condition, the paper well preserved and the printing legible.

The Spectator was published by Joseph Addison and Richard Steele from March 1, 1711, to December, 1712.

The paper's scope—in the volume owned by Mr. Gallagher — is indicated in Number 262. In it the writer says readers would find "no fashionable touches of infidelity, no satires upon priesthood, marriage and the like topics of ridicule" within its pages.

He said he had barred from them "everything that savors of party, everything that is loose, and everything that might create uneasiness in the minds of particular persons."

Of women's oratory, one of the essayists noted "they are possessed of some things which men want, fainting fits and the like, which I have seen employed with good success."

This was in reply to a correspondent who complained:

"I have a spouse who is so great an orator in this way that she draws from me what sums she pleases. Every room in my house is furnished with trophies of her eloquence—rich cabinets, piles of china, Japan screens and costly jars. She is seized with periodical fits about the time of the subscriptions to the new opera; and is drowned in tears after having seen any woman there in finer clothes than herself."

To "Mr. Estcourt in his House in Covent-Garden" came the cheering news from Sir Roger de Coverley's estate at Coverley that "the hogsheads of neat port came safe, and have gotten the good reputation in these parts."

He bade Mr. Estcourt prepare "a snug room" for the feast to which Mr. Spectator had been invited, and warned him "you know my supper is only good Cheshire cheese, best mustard, a Golden Pippin, attended with a pipe of John Sly's best."

Ladies' hoods of every hue were the mode in this period, so much so that the parish vestry saw fit to proclaim "All the ladies who come to church in the new-fashioned hoods are desired to be there before Divine Service begins, lest they divert the attention of the congregation."

What Happened to Flora MacDonald?

(From the Edinburgh Scotsman)

With "Bonnie Prince Charlie" packing cinemas throughout Scotland, there is a new interest being taken to the Jacobite cause. And the question the film-goers are mostly asking each other, as they leave the theatre, is "What happened afterwards to Flora MacDonald?"

Flora MacDonald was 24, two years younger than the Prince himself when she helped Charles Edward Stuart in his escape. At the time she was staying with her brother to South Uist and met the Prince when she was over visiting friends in Benbecula.

The Hanoverians were closing in on him, and Charles's position was desperate when, disguising the Prince as Betty Burke, the sewing-maid, Flora took him back with her to her parents' home in Skye, whence he escaped to the mainland and eventually to France.

The bravery of this young woman personifies for us the courage of thousands of nameless Highlanders who, at any time during his last desperate months in hiding, could have denounced Prince Charles to the English and claimed the reward of £30,000 offered for his capture.

A few hours after her part in the Prince's escape was finished, Flora MacDonald was arrested and, with her faithful Gaelic maid Kate, was taken to Dunstaffnage Castle for a few days and then by way of Leith to London.

She was imprisoned in the Tower for some weeks, but seems to have been well and kindly treated, and was shortly afterwards removed and officially lodged in a private house.

At this house she received a visit from Frederick, Prince of Wales, who was curious to meet the "Pretender's deliverer" and hear her version of the affair. Apparently he was satisfied, for as he left he was heard to say, "The best plan, I think, will be to send the young lady back to her own country" and very soon afterwards she was acquitted.

Soon she was settled happily at home again in her beloved Skye, with her mother, step-father, and family, and in a short time she became engaged to Allan MacDonald, whose family were dearly loved by her own.

Allan was a captain in the 84th Regiment, but retired on half-pay on his marriage and settled down with Flora at Flodigary, a small property given to him by his father. They had seven children, five sons and two daughters, and for 23 years the life of the MacDonalds "glided on as peacefully as the unruffled lake."

In 1773 she received a visit from Doctor Johnson and his friend Mr. Boswell, whom she invited to sleep in the room which had been at one time occupied by Prince Charles. Flora appears to have enjoyed the visit of the illustrious writer, but disapproved not a little of his great dislike of the Scots!

In 1775, like so many other Highlanders before and after them, the MacDonalds set out to seek their fortunes in America, where they settled in South Carolina.

During the American War of Independence Allan joined the British Loyalists, and was afterwards imprisoned in Halifax. On his release the family decided to return to Scotland.

Flora MacDonald died in Skye on March 5, 1790, in her sixty-ninth year, and a sheet on which Prince Charles had slept, and which she had preserved for many years, was used as her shroud.

In Italy, the young Prince she had aided had grown to be an old man, dissolute and unhappy like so many who have failed at their greatest hour.

In 1860 a new tombstone was placed over Flora MacDonald's grave in Skye, in the land she loved so well and served so loyally. On it were engraved these words:

"In the history of Scotland and England is recorded the name of her by whose memory this tablet is rendered sacred; and mankind will consider that in Flora MacDonald were united the calm and heroic fortitude of a man, together with the unselfish devotion of a woman. Under Providence she saved Prince Charles Edward Stuart from death on the scaffold, thus preventing the House of Hanover incurring the blame of an impolite judicial murder."

Spinning Experiment Aids Cotton Growers

New Delhi — (Reuters) — A new micro-spinning technique suitable for Indian cottons and which makes it possible to estimate with reasonable accuracy the spinning quality of even small quantities of lint, is one of the experiments carried out satisfactorily in India during last year, according to the annual report of the Bombay Technological Laboratory.

Valuable assistance was given to cotton growers by helping them select improved types which will bring better monetary return to the cultivator and prove more acceptable to the trade and industry, the report said.

The improved strains of cotton, mainly of medium and long staple now cover 56 per cent of the total cotton area in the Dominion.

Tests on medium Indian cotton regarding suitability for the manufacture of hosiery yarns are also reputed to have been carried out satisfactorily.

TRAINED NOSES

The untrained nose can detect about 20 odors, the chemist about 200 by smell, while the perfumer recognizes about 2,000 scents, according to perfume authorities.

RAILROAD PIONEER RECALLS THRILLS OF GOOD OLD DAYS

Edmonton (CP)— Peter Batter, Western pioneer, celebrated his 90th birthday here recently and mourned "the good old days." For a reason too.

It's been years since he stood off 500 armed Indians, or gave up a rancher's daughter with a dowry of 100 head of cattle to marry another girl or even ordered a $5 gallon jug of good Scotch whisky for the "end-of-steel" at Winnipeg.

Pete came to Canada from Cleveland in 1882 and started spike-driving for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as the railway was being built across the prairies.

"They paid me $1.50 for a 10-hour day and I said to myself, "this country's fit for neither man nor beast' but with 25 cents in my pocket, chances of getting out of it were mighty slim. Time I had enough money, I didn't want to leave," Pete recalled.

The Riel Rebellion tension was at its height as Pete and his crew laid steel across the prairies between Medicine Hat and Calgary. One day a raiding party of 500 Indians descended on them.

"They had a rifle apiece and we had five among us," the old timer said. "It took a lot of nerve to go on laying the track with them getting closer and meaner looking all the time.

Missionary Intervened.

The railroaders held their ground until a missionary, Father Lacombe, convinced the Indians that the railroad would be of advantage to them.

By spring 1887, Pete's thoughts had "lightly turned."

Only eligible girl in the immediate vicinity of his prairie home was a rancher's daughter whose dowry included 100 head of cattle and $1,000 in cash.

So Pete, who had saved up $750, returned to Cleveland "to pick me out a wife."

At Cleveland, his first proposal was refused. The girl's mother pointed out that in Canada, Indians frequently killed white people and ate them. After a 10-day courtship, he married a pretty dishwasher and brought her to Canada.

At 90 Pete attributes his longevity to hard work, long-lived ancestors and "a little liquor now and then —just for the health mind you."

Banishes Crowsfeet Claims 78-Year-Old

Montreal —(CP)— An old people's home is the last place one would expect to find the "fountain of youth" but Aaron Henigman says that is where he developed it.

He is a 78-year-old inmate of the Hebrew old people's home here and describes himself as a "half-baked chemist."

He claims he suffered embarrassment due to an "ugly, coarse and blemished complexion." So he did some experimenting with chemicals and claims to have come up with a lotion which softens skin, stimulates circulation, causes wrinkles and "crowsfeet" to disappear. He uses it himself but won't divulge his secret formula."

PS: He's still got some wrinkles but claims his skin is much improved over five years when he had "bags under the eyes like wrinkled prunes."

Western Canadians Counting On Law of Averages to Prevent Recurrence of Spring Floods

By JACK AVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Feb. 24 (CP)—Western Canadians are counting on the law of averages, plus experience, to prevent a recurrence this spring of 1948's million dollar floods.

Public works officials say that under nature's own rotating system, floods of last year's magnitude come on the average of only once every 30 years. Then too, they say, western Canadians learned much last year and will know through experience how best to combat the threat of inundation.

But provincial officials add that it is a bit early to predict what the spring will bring.

British Columbians are watching the situation with some concern. Last year flood damage was estimated by provincial authorities to have exceeded $25,000,000 with the Fraser River reaching its highest level since 1894.

In Alberta where the coal mining districts in the central part of the province bore the brunt of last year's floods, public works officials have expressed confidence over the outlook for this spring.

Towns and villages in Saskatchewan which were waterlogged for weeks last year are making their own arrangements in case of recurrences. Steps are being taken to insure the safety of machinery and other equipment which might be damaged by water. Residents at such places as Roche Percee in the southern section of the province, inundated last year, are prepared to move valuables to higher ground.

In Manitoba, where the Red River Valley became a bloated lake last spring, splitting the province from the United States border to Lake Winnipeg, conferences are being planned between American and Canadian officials to consider what steps should be taken against floods.

Residents along the Souris River, which courses through western Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan, say floods will come in their district, however, if even average snowfall occurs in March.

The same fear has been expressed in other sections of the west. Heavy winter snows gave vent to the belief that while flooding won't be as severe as last year, it'll be enough to dampen more than spirits.

Pre-war Economic Standards Not For Great Britain

Lake Success, N.Y. Feb. 24 (CP)—Britain Wednesday told United Nations she is not interested in returning to pre-war economic standards and is turning instead to new social and economic experiments.

"For us, the social and economic standards of the pre-war years are not things to be recovered but to be repudiated," Christopher P. Mayhew, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the Economic and Social Council.

"It is clearly time to cease talking of the 'recovery' of Britain. We have long passed that stage."

Mayhew spoke during discussions in the 18-member council on the world economic situation.

The debate, which opened Monday, is expected to include late this week an outline of President Truman's "new bold program" of aid to under-developed countries.

This program was blasted Wednesday by Poland's Julius Katz-Suchy. He described it as "an attempt to arrange for investors to have suitable places for investments abroad."

After Katz-Suchy also flayed the Marshall plan, Mayhew said that

"To describe aid from the United States, as some try to do, as enslaving is...ridiculous."

"We have not the slightest intention of modifying our economic or social or our political plans to qualify for aid," he added.

Mayhew said Britain has a "great deal" to learn from the United States in some production fields. But, he added, as Britain's economy develops by the use of British methods "America will have a great deal to learn from us."

Describing Britain's economic strength,, Mayhew said "big problems still face us but we are no longer interested in 'recovery,' but in breaking fresh ground, in terms of new social and economic experiments.

Doubt Expressed By Opposition P.E.I. to Benefit

By The Canadian Press

Doubt that Canada's smallest province, Prince Edward Island, would benefit from Newfoundland's entry into confederation was expressed by an opposition member at Charlottetown Wednesday.

Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, leader of the six Progressive Conservative members in the Prince Edward Island Legislature, said during Throne-Speech debate that he wondered what Newfoundland competition would mean to P. E. I. fishermen who already could not find proper markets.

Labor and religion occupied the Quebec Legislature, while five other provincial houses continued their debates on the address in reply to the Throne Speech.

At Quebec Premier Duplessis branded some leaders of Quebec Catholic syndicates as "asobteurs" and was supported by Labor Minister Antonio Barrette. Premier Duplessis said "certain labor chiefs have at heart their own interests, and not the interest of the workers."

The Quebec Legislature gave second reading to a government bill concerning collective agreements between municipal and school bodies and their employees. The house also approved a motion by Rene Chaloult, Quebec County Nationalist member, asking that the federal government appoint a representative to the Vatican.

Premier Duplessis said that failure of Canada to be represented in "The City of Scintillating Light" was an unfortunate gap in Canada's representatives abroad. He could not understand why there was a Canadian representative at Moscow, but none at the Vatican.

Called Waste of Time

The Ontario Legislature continued Throne-Speech debate with Labor Minister Daley saying that a "levelling off process" was due in the Canadian and United States business economies. Such a reression could be met by a reduction in profits.

At Winnipeg, Premier D. L. Campbell said a motion of non-confidence by Edmond Prefontaine (L-Carillon) was "a waste of time." Mr. Prefontaine recently left the coalition ranks.

The Saskatchewan Legislature was also on Throne-Speech debate, with W. J. Patterson (L-Cannington) attacking the C.C.F. government's experiments in socialization.

Mr. Patterson asserted that the only businesses taken over by the Regina government that were successful were those where the principle of "monopoly or compulsion" applied.

At Edmonton, H. J. MacDonald (L-Calgary) in Throne-Speech debate, said the Alberta Royal Commission on child welfare had supported a claim of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. He said its report said the I. O. D. E. was refused the co-operation of the welfare department in investigating the child welfare system generally.

TRADE, TAXATION

If that loss was necessary, it should have been borne by the people of all Canada and not just the farmers, said Mr. Rowe.

There was no certainty that the wheat agreement would be extended beyond 1950 despite the fact farmers had sold their wheat in the last four years for prices lower than the world price.

Denouncing the government's taxation policies, Mr. Rowe said they were imposing a "crippling burden" on the country, threatening to "stifle the third of our people" and raising the cost of living. In the last year, the government had collected $200 a family more than it actually needed.

Dollar Parity Criticized

He criticized the government's action in raising the Canadian dollar to parity with the United States dollar in 1946. He said he would not be surprised if Mr Abbott announced suddenly some night that the dollar is to be devalued at 90 cents.

The "brain trusters" of the finance department apparently could give no explanation for revaluing the dollar in the first place.

Mr. Martin said by March 31, Federal aid would be authorized for 13,000 new hospital beds, about one third of a five-year objective.

A total of ..625,000 has already been allocated to the provinces for provincial health surveys.

The government aimed to eliminate T.B. as a major cause of death and illness within the next generation. The number of X-ray examinations in Canada would be increased by 1,000,000 this year.

ISRAEL, EGYPT

Keeps New Lines

Significantly, Egypt concedes that insistence upon the Jews retiring to their Oct. 14 lines would not serve the "basic purposes and spirit" of the armistice. These were the lines whence Israel launched her two offensives in October and December and won the Negev. She never returned to the old lines, even though the United Nations Security Council twice ordered her to do so.

The formal signing was at 10:30 a.m. in the Yellow Room of the Hotel Des Rhodes where Dr. Ralph Bunche, acting U. N. mediator, made his headquarters during 42 days of difficult negotiations.

The ceremony was the first open meeting since negotiations began here Jan. 13 to end nine months of intermittent war.

Photographers were allowed to take pictures during the signing and reporters were admitted to the proceedings.

Col. Mohamed Ibrahim Seif Eddin and Col. Rahmani signed for Egypt. For Israel the signers were Dr. Walter Eytan and Elias Sassoon of the foreign office, and Col. Yigal Yadin, chief of staff.

No Forecast Made

Only other speaker at the abbreviated mid-week sitting was W. D. Wylie (SC — Medicine Hat) who said the time had come for the government to provide money needed to complete immigration projects in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

At the House opening, External Affairs Minister Pearson said it is too early to tell whether Christian missionaries will be able to function properly in communist China. There had been reports from that area but they were inconclusive.

Finance Minister Abbott said he could not forecast when the next relaxation will be made in restrictions on imports.

Prime Minister St. Laurent promised to consider the possibility of a government statement on ways and means of increasing the flow of United Kingdom goods to Canada.

In the debate, Mr. Rowe said Canada is not accepting enough imports from the United Kingdom. As a result Britain was turning to trade with countries which would buy her goods or enter barter arrangements.

"I have never seen such a fiasco as was made of our negotiations with the United Kingdom," said Mr. Rowe.

Mr. Gardiner had tried to blame the drop in exports to the United Kingdom or the Empire trade agreements signed by the Conservative government in 1932. Under those agreements, said Mr. Rowe, Canada was sending a greater percentage of her products overseas than at present.

Taxation Criticized

Mr. Gardiner had not only lost the U.K. markets, but he had also caused Canadian farmers to lose between $350,000,000 and $500,000,000 in the Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement.

Iraq Approves

Shortly after Bunche announced Wednesday that Egypt had agreed to the signing, he disclosed that Iraq had decided to approve whatever agreements are reached by the "neighbors of Palestine." These are Egypt, Syria, LeBanon and Trans-Jordan.

Saudi Arabia announced that she had not taken active part in the Arab war against Israel. Yemen, seventh member of the league, also has not taken an active part.

LeBanon already has been engaged in preliminary negotiations with Israel.

The pact provides that the Egyptian brigade trapped at Faluja, 30 miles southeast of Tel Aviv, since mid-October, will be withdrawn to Egypt beginning tomorrow. The movement is to be completed within five days under U. N. supervision.

Jews Keep Most of Gains

Rhodes — Following are highlights of the Israel-Egyptian armistice:

Jews keep most of their gains made in fighting in October and December, including Beersheba.

They give up Bir Asluj, 25 miles south of Beersheba, which is demilitarized, and Aluja, farther south of the Egyptian border. These are the only two points from which they must withdraw.

The Jews are to be allowed to maintain defence garrisons in 25 Negev settlements and southern Negev outposts.

Egyptians keep Gaza and a thin coastal strip. They give up Beit Hanun, five miles north of Gaza, which is demilitarized.

The Egyptians withdraw several miles into Egypt from their Palestine frontier, except at the coast, creating a demilitarized zone. They keep an outpost at Abu Awugeila, 17 miles inside Egypt from the frontier.

The Egyptians withdraw from the Jerusalem - Bethlehem-Hebron area through Israeli lines. They also withdraw from the Aluja pocket, 30 miles southeast of Tel Aviv, where a brigade has been trapped since mid-October.

Exchange of prisoners to start within 10 days.

A commission of three Egyptians, three Jews and American Brig. - Gen. William Riley of United Nations observers staff to supervise armistice.

CLAIMS VATICAN LINKED WITH "DARK FORCES"

Bulgaria Considering New Religion Law

Sofia, Feb. 24 — (AP)—Foreign Minister Vassil Kolarov told the Bulgarian parliament Wednesday night that the Vatican is linked with "dark forces" attempting to stir up a new world war.

He made his charges as the communist - controlled legislative body considered new restrictions on religion. The proposed new religion law came up as the hour of trial approached for 15 Protestant clergymen accused of criminal activities against the state.

The 15 include the heads of the Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and Pentecostal churches in Bulgaria. They get into court tomorrow, charged with treason, spying for the United States and Great Britain, and illegal money dealings.

The Kolarov-sponsored religion bill would make the Greek Orthodox Church the "only people's church" in the country. It would give the foreign ministry tight control over connections between church groups in the country and groups outside Bulgaria.

Kolarov asserted that the Vatican "does not conceal its aims. It is the unreconcilable enemy of the Soviet Union people's democracies and communism. It is altogether in the service of dark forces which today are attempting to fan up a new world war."

Ordered Out, Report

Kolarov indicated the Vatican's Apostolic delegation in Bulgaria had been ordered out of the country. He said it is superfluous, since the new constitution guarantees freedom to all religions.

The Apostolic Mission, he said, can be considered "completely through." This ends, he added, a "humiliating episode" for Bulgaria.

Kolarov told parliament that churchmen in Bulgaria must be ruled by Bulgarian laws and the existing social order.

(Pope Pius told an extraordinary consistory in Rome Feb. 14 that Roman Catholic clergy and members of the faith are bound by conscience to resist "unjust laws" when such laws contradict divine and human rights.)

Kolarov declared that Roman Catholic bishops now are required to report to the Vatican regularly on economic and political information in their areas. He said his proposed law would prevent Roman Catholic clergy in Bulgaria from being "turned into agents" and relaying "state secrets" to a "foreign political headquarters."

The 15 Protestant leaders were charged in a government document Wednesday with using religion as a "cloak" for "criminal activities."

Kolarov promised the trial would receive the "widest publicity."

Premier Sun Fo Will Pay Visit To Nanking

Nanking, Feb. 24 — (AP) — The Premier Wu Te-Chen flew here from Hong Kong today with word that Premier Sun Fo would come to Nanking within three or four days.

Wu denied a rift existed between Sun and acting president Li Tsung-Jen. Li, meanwhile, was in his hometown of Kweiling. National Assembly delegates there asked him to speed peace with the communists.

Wu brought a new economic program for Li's approval.

Central news agency said the Kweiling legislature presented the acting president a petition asking him to:

1. Assume full prerogatives as China's constitutional president.
2. Speed an early realization of peace with the reds.
3. Purge the government of corruption and start additional political reforms.

Li flew to Canton to try to get Sun and the refugee cabinet to return to Nanking.

Nanking members have been highly critical of Sun for fleeing to Canton in the face of the communist army advance last month. There has been some talk of an attempt to oust Sun if he does not return to Nanking.

FARMERS MAY GET TAXATION BREAK WITHIN 2 WEEKS

Will be Allowed Greater Exemptions From Taxable Income

Ottawa, Feb. 24. (CP)—About 60,000 farmers across the country may get a taxation break within the next two weeks which may allow for greater exemptions from taxable income.

An authoritative source disclosed Wednesday night that the government was preparing a new interpretation of the basic herd principle of taxation which would allow farmers and ranchers to call a greater part of their herds capital or producing assets.

The source said a government announcement may be expected within the next two weeks. It would affect principally farmers and ranchers in the west but would have far-reaching significance in all parts of the country.

Government revision of the basic herd principle of taxation first was indicated at a cabinet meeting Wednesday at which a Canadian Federation of Agriculture brief containing farmers' complaints of taxation and other matters was placed before Prime Minister St. Laurent and 12 of his colleagues.

When H. H. Hannam, president of the C.F.A. emerged from the meeting, he said Revenue Minister McCann promised complete revision of a revenue department directive issued last November which specified certain restrictions on the basic herd principle.

In general it meant that natural increases of herds of cattle, horses, swine and sheep were to be computed as taxable income. The C.F.A. complaint was that the majority of Canadian farmers maintain their herds mainly through natural increases and therefore could not claim capital or producing assets to any great extent.

The revision is expected to specify that natural increases and therefore could not claim capital or producing assets to any great extent.

Hammersmith By-election Climaxes One of Britain's Hottest Political Fights

London, Feb. 24 (CP)—Voters cast their ballots today in the by-election at Hammersmith South, climaxing one of London's hottest political campaigns since the 1945 general election.

Betting odds were about even in the contest to fill the seat in the House of Commons made vacant recently by the death of Labor member W. T. Adams.

Both parties watched the outcome closely as a tip-off to voting trends in the 1950 general election. The by-election results are expected to be announced Friday.

A grinning Winston Chuchill, in as fine fettle as ever, Wednesday night made an eight-mile tour of the middle and working-class constituency in West London, and poured it on the Labor government with blistering campaign oratory.

Labor fought hard to retain the seat and climaxed its endeavors today with a parade through the streets. The most common opinion was: "It will be close whoever wins."

Churchill, standing in an open automobile and holding a loudspeaker, boomed out his message to low rows of victorian houses whose occupants leaned from windows. Along the streets the crowds were six deep.

With Churchill rode the Conservative candidate, Anthony Fell, 34-year-old Scottish-born engineer. Opposing Fell is Tom Williems, 23, a bespectacled miner's son who served as an R.A.F. chaplain during the war and now is a history tutor at Oxford.

Churchill, waving his famous wartime "V for victory" greeting, headed an all-out drive to hand Labor its first by-election loss to the Conservatives since Prime Minister Attlee came to power. In 47 previous by-elections since 1945 the Conservatives failed to gain a parliamentary seat from Labor.

In the last general election Labor won Hammersmith South by a margin of 3,458. In 1935 the Conservatives won the seat, by a margin of 6,068 and in 1931 by 19,628.

Accusing the Labor government of "inefficiency and incompetence," Churchill said:

"Naturally they would like to do better than they have done but they are so busy disciplining, regulating us, restricting us and making our industries turn over from the profit to the loss account while nationalizing them, that they have no time to tackle a practical job like the necessary building of the vast number of houses which we need in this country."

The 74-year-old wartime Prime Minister grinned at elderly women who tried to touch his sleeve, snarled at labor interruptors, puffed at a cigar like a steam engine and waved his high-domed bowler hat when the chowds sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

He called for Hammersmith South voters to get "a good thumping majority" and show the world "you have taken a stand for freedom of the British people."

Cheers and cries of "God bless Winnie!" and "we want Winnie!" greeted him. But at some street corners women stood shouting "we do not want you!" Here and there a Communist flag hung from a window.

Both the Conservative and Labor candidates fought issues involving Communism, Fascism and partition of Ireland. Labor, during the campaign, was embarrassed by allegations of Communist "help" and the Conservatives by counter-charges of Fascist assistance.

Today's by-election was the second of four voting tests scheduled this month and early in March. Last Thursday Labor retained the Batley seat in Yorkshire. Other by-elections are pending in Sowerby and St. Pancras North.

Scotland Boosts Home Attractions To Entice Big Flow of Tourists

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

Glasgow, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Scotland is making its biggest play ever for tourists.

Most of the big cities already are crying their summer and autumn attractions, confident that the fourth full post-war year will bring in visitors and money on a record breaking scale.

Sparking the drive is the Scottish council, representative of business, industry and labor, and backed by civic and cultural organizations. Sir Steven Bilsland, financier and industrialist, is chairman, and headquarters are in Glasgow.

"We think we can offer (visitors) something distinctive in the way of hospitality," Sir Steven said.

The council is promoting a Scottish Industries Exhibition in Glasgow from Sept. 1 to 17.

Starting earlier but overlapping the industrial exhibition will be Edinburgh's third International Festival of Music and Drama.

The 1948 festival, it is reckoned, brought nearly £1,000,000 ($4,000,000) and some 300,000 visitors into the Edinburgh area.

Scots realize that in bidding for holiday crowds they suffer from competitive disadvantages. Summers are short and usually cool, and climate the year round is so damp that even the home folks get irritable.

Resort boosters concentrate, therefore, on the fun to be had, shooting, fishing for salmon, and hiking in the Highlands.

Scottish scenery is a good bet. It is indisputably picturesque, and grows on the imagination until it becomes exhilarating.

The theatre flourishes. Glasgow has its own unity theatre, which early last year made an outstanding hit during a London season. Road companies of London successes enjoy long stays in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

Scots are good cooks, and they have a knack all their own of making the same old rations taste like something different. Whisky doesn't exactly flow in Scotland, but there's more of it to be had here than in any other part of Britain.

BIG SUPERSONIC RESEARCH GRANT FOR UNIVERSITY

Will Build Wind Tunnel Near Toronto to Produce Extreme Speed

Ottawa, Feb. 24. (CP)—The government took a stride forward in the international race towards supersonic aviation today with announcement of award of $350,000 in research grants for the University of Toronto.

The University will spend $250,000 to establish an aerodynamics research laboratory at Downsview Airport, Toronto, including a wind tunnel capable of producing speeds up to 10 times the speed of sound.

The other $100,000 will cover operating costs for three years on the problems of flying planes through the trans-sonic barrier and then into speeds beyond that of sound. Previously the National Research Council did some work on an experimental wind tunnel.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Defence Research Board, said the new tunnel will be of great value in meeting the needs of the N.R.C., the board and the aircraft industry for trained research workers."

"In time of emergency," he added, "the laboratory would be available for applied research on supersonic aircraft, guided missiles and the ballistics of projectiles."

The announcement was made jointly by Defence Minister Claxton and President Sidney Smith of the University.

Dr. Smith said the key piece of equipment will be a steel sphere 40 feet in diameter, somewhat higher than a three-storey building. Air will be pumped from the sphere to create an almost perfect vacuum. Then it will be sucked back into the sphere at supersonic speed to observe its effect on stationary models.

Work on shock waves already is in progress at the University of Toronto. A 12-foot shock tube was constructed last year by graduate research workers. Using gases under various pressures, the group can send shock waves down the tube at speeds up to 3,000 miles an hour. In time they believe this equipment will generate speeds of 8,000 miles an hour.

Stratocruiser Record

Honolulu, Feb. 24 (AP)— A Boeing stratocruiser Wednesday made a 2,150 mile test flight from Fairfield, Calif., to Honolulu in nine hours and 50 minutes, a record for the route.

40 Cologne Children Back from Ireland

Cologne, Feb. 24 (Reuters) — A party of 40 Cologne children returned Wednesday after spending 2 1-2 years in Ireland. They were the first to return of about 350 children taken to Ireland to regain their health and strength.

Serving Life Term Wrongfully 29 Years

New York, Feb. 24 — (AP) — A court ruled Wednesday that John McAllister, a 52-year-old prisoner, has been serving a life term wrongfully since he was 23. The court set aside two of four convictions against him and said he probably will be released. The life term was imposed because the two convictions, now set aside, made him a fourth offender.

Mother Rescues Babe From Blazing Carriage

Barrie, Feb. 24 — (CP)—Mrs. Ross Turnbull rescued her five-months-old daughter from her blazing carriage here Wednesday. The infants' forehead and face suffered first degree burns. It it believed the fire was caused by a flying spark from a nearby tin of ashes.

Paper Issued by Govt. Printers During Strike

Buenos Aires, Feb. 24 (AP)—Residents of this city today eagerly grabbed up copies of their first local newspaper in almost three weeks as the morning paper El Mundo published with the aid of government printers. Printers on strike at all local papers over wage demands made no attempt to prevent delivery of the issue.

GUILTY OF THEFT

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) Howard Fox, 20, yesterday pleaded guilty to the theft of $2,976 and was remanded for sentence till March 2. He was arrested in Port Arthur two days ago with Peter Warnholtz, who pleaded guilty to receiving and was remanded until March 2.

Detectives said Warnholtz planned to fly to Winnipeg when he was arrested.

Seven Countries Reach Agreement On Defence Clause

Way Cleared for Prompt Completion of the Pact

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—The seven countries negotiating an Atlantic security treaty are understood to have reached substantial agreement on the draft of a defence clause, covering action in event of an attack.

This has been the greatest single issue between the United States and western European governments in the long negotiations which opened last summer. The accord now reported is regarded by diplomats as clearing the way for prompt completion of the pact, probably in about two weeks.

While the wording is still secret, the basic provisions are understood to make these two points:

1. An armed attack on any one of the Atlantic powers—the United States, Canada, Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—shall be considered as an attack on all of them, and each country undertakes to assist in meeting the attack in line with its rights of self-defence under the United Nations charter.

2. Each country will decide for itself the particular actions, including possible use of armed forces, that it will take in meeting the attack.

These principle provisions would be reinforced by other articles. These articles would provide for almost continuous consultation among the members of the alliance, and for co-ordinated defence planning once the treaty comes into force. The idea is to anticipate any emergency which might arise. At the moment of action each country could determine its own measures in relation to the general plan already worked out.

2,000,000-Volt X-Ray Machine Suggested to Hospital

Hamilton, Feb. 24 (CP)— A 2,000,000 volt X-ray machine for cancer treatment was suggested Wednesday night by Dr. J. B. Neilson, superintendent of the Hamilton General Hospital, to a meeting of the hospital board. Dr. Neilson said the machine, which would be the largest in Canada, would cost $75,000 and installation would cost another $23,000. The room containing it would require 16-inch concrete walls with an eight inch lining of lead.

Students Stage Strike For Teachers' Pay Boost

Garfield, N. J., Feb. 24 (AP)—Approximately 400 students at Garfield high school Wednesday staged a brief strike, demanding a pay raise for their teachers and a new school building.

Chinese Share Devotions With "Pure Dragons"

Sungei Kluang, Penang Islands, Malaya — (CP) — Thousands of Chinese made a pilgrimage recently to one of the most unusual houses of worship in the world, Snake Temple, a wayside shrine perched atop Pure Cloud Cliff.

For a moment it seems like many other Oriental temples. There is the thick perfume of incense, the grey smoke of joss sticks and joss papers, the murmured prayers of Chinese women—one imploring the deities for fertility so she can bear a child, another pleading for a husband lost at sea.

Then, as your eyes focus in the smoky dusk, you draw back in amazement.

"Pure dragons," the guide whispers in Cantonese.

"Pure dragons" to him — but snakes to you. Green and white grass snakes by the hundreds twine langorously inside lamps, around dry twigs on the joss tables' earthen jars, on picture frames. Drowsy from the sweet incense, they slither slowly across the floor underfoot. Some are two and three feet long; others, newborn, are the size of angleworms.

No one pays them any notice except the stranger. They are not the object of worship, as foreigners usually believe. The pure dragons are there only by coincidence.

Three Deities

Perhaps they are wise and some to worship, too. Perhaps, like the faithful, they ask the three deities of Cho Su Kong, on the centre shrine, to provide for them; or murmur to Kim Hua Foo Jin, goddess of expectant mothers, on the left, or Ti Tsang, on the right, who can release those in hell from suffering.

One legend says that a century ago a Chinese business man built a home on Pure Cloud Cliff. A priest told him it would be wise to turn it into a temple. The business man refused. That night hundreds of pure dragons drove him from the house and it became a temple. There are a half-dozen other stories.

But whatever the reason, thrice each year thousands of Chinese make the four-mile pilgrimage from Penang town.

So do the snakes. It is hard to believe, but most days there are only a few score snakes in the temple. On festival days there are hundreds. The temple keeper says this strange phenomenon has occurred for years.

"The pure dragons are wise," he said, but he seemed to be talking to the green serpent on the chair beside him and not to the visitor.

BRIGHTON & MURRAY DISTRICT

Brighton and Murray— — On Thursday evening last in the recreation room of Smithfield Church, the members of York Road W.I. en ttreaeteinhdirWMq Road W.I. entertained their husbands. Owing to much sickness a number were unable to be present. However, over 60 men and women sat down to a very satisfying supper while some of the daughters served.

Rev. Wm. Sunter offered grace. After supper the president, Mrs. A. Hayes, crlled fr the singing of the institute ode, and the repeating of the institute creed.

The guest speaker, Mr. Duncan from Batawa was called on and gave an interesting address on "Citizenship," which while serious was interspersed with humor. Guest artists, four young people from Trenton delighted everyone with their vocal, violin and piano solos also with a piano duet.

The secretary, Mrs. R. Hill, called the roll and the husbands were requested to respond with "My Wife's Best Quality." Some responses were serious, others funny, altogether it created much merriment.

At the close Mrs. Hayes thanked all who had helped to mak the evening such a success.

Mrs. Gilbert Waite is seriously ill in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Clayton Nix, Brighton, entertained some of the Lawson Settlement ladies at a quilting.

Ladies of Smithfield W.A. h quilted different afternoons at the home of Mrs. Chas. Langman.

To Mr. and Mrs. F. Doran (Phyllis George) Belleville the gift of a baby girl. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. John Freeman were feted by their family, other relatives and friends. The occasion being their 37th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Ernest Seward, Toronto, visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. Alford Seward over the weekend.

GOOD FOR YOU— DIGESTIBLE AS TOAST!

How to Make Perfect Pancakes

1. Measure ingredients carefully. All measurements are level; use standard measuring cups.
2. Stir only until flour is moistened. Over-stirring makes a less tender pancake. The little lumps in the batter will come out in baking.
3. Be sure griddle is correct temperature. The griddle is just hot enough when a drop of water will bounce for a second before evaporating or when a spoonful of batter browns on one side in one minute.
4. Grease griddle very lightly using an unsalted fat. Pancakes will not stick to a griddle that has been properly seasoned. To season a griddle, cover it with a thin layer of unsalted fat or oil; heat griddle until fat begins to smoke; turn off heat and let griddle stand overnight. Remove excess fat before baking pancakes. Never scour a griddle without seasoning it again.
5. Pour batter for each pancake on the griddle quickly. Spooning the batter is not recommended, because the first spoonful starts to bake before the second one can be added.
6. Turn pancakes only once. Bake until cakes are covered with bubbles and edges look dry. Turn cakes and bake until brown on other side. Don't pat cakes or turn them more than once.
7. Serve pancakes "hot off the griddle". Stacking the cakes and letting them stand tends to make them soggy.

New Type of Stucco Tough Material for Cheap Homes

By LAWRENCE N. ELDRED

Chicago, (AP)— If you would still like to build a good low cost house, here's a ray of hope for you.

Builders have modernized a type of construction that went out of favor 20 years ago but now is having a remarkable revival. It is stucco.

Instead of the old style magnesite stucco slapped on top of wood lath, they have a reinforced type which becomes a fireproof, insulated, one-inch steel and concrete wall.

They claim it is cheap to build and maintain yet is impervious to rotting, termites, climate and temperature changes, and has an attractive appearance, good insulation properties and durability.

It has been tested all the way southward from Edmonton and Winnipeg, where temperatures swoop to at least 35 degrees below zero. Advocates claim it saves hundreds of dollars on the building of houses, thousands of dollars on apartments. It saves more hundreds in annual maintenance costs and winter heat loss, say they, adding that in some communities these savings are enough to pay for the house.

A prime mover in the comeback of stucco is the Keystone Steel and Wire Company, Peoria, Ill., maker of a galvanized steel netting which takes the place of lathing. This taunt steel fabric knits into the stucco to create both a permanent binding and structural strength for anything from a cottage or ranch-style home to a three-storey or more apartment buildings.

Another advocate of stucco is the AFL Plasterers' Union. In speaking for them and as president of the Plasterers' Institute, Byron Dalton said stucco is "mighty fine. It's fireproof. It's a kind of concrete, and if concrete can take it on the highway, surely it can on a wall.

"Furthermore," he added, stucco needs no painting. Color can be mixed right in. That's what makes Hollywood so beautiful, with all its smooth-walled, nicely tinted houses."

He said a stucco job took about two men to a house, and added that "there are more plasterers than materials these days."

Starting with the wood frame under —structure of a house, workmen tack onto the joists a covering of waterproof paper. This is followed by the galvanized steel netting which comes in rolls 150 feet long and three feet wide. It is laid flat against the paper and attached with furring nails at eight inch intervals. This sets the mesh away from the paper about 3-8 inch so the stucco can get a good grip on it.

The two plasterers require about a half day to apply one coat to a five-room house. A total of three coats —scratch, second, and finish —are needed, with one to three weeks of "curing" between one coat and the next.

E. M. Lurie, director of the National Foundation for lathing and Plastering, Inc., also discussed the labor situation, estimating there are more apprentice plasterers now than ever, many of whom are specializing in outdoor plastering.

He said the cement supply is improving but didn't expect it to be much easier until mid-year, even though production is about double pre-war levels.

Lurie noted that, while stuccoing normally is a summer-only job, some northern communities are successfully building with stucco all winter. Canvas coverings big enough to shied an entire house are heated so the stucco can be applied and cured properly.

Britain Rushing To Get First Jets in Skies

London, Feb. 24 — (Reuters)— Britain is rushing to put her first jet bomber in the skies, Air Minister Arthur Henderson said Wednesday in a memorandum accompanying air estimates for 1949-50.

They will be of exceptionally high performance and the first of them is expected to fly in the very near future, the air minister added.

The estimates showed that though Britain will have 70,000 fewer airmen and airwomen in the coming year the R.A.F. will cost £207,450,000 — £34,450,000 more than the previous year.

A supplementary estimate named the additional sum of £16,400,000 which will be needed during the year.

The increase, Henderson explained, is due to measures taken or to be taken to strengthen the air force in aircraft and equipment. Increases in prices and improvements in pay and allowance also helped to boost it.

Publication of the air estimates Wednesday now makes it clear that Britain plans to spend a total of £788,300,000 on her three services — sea, land and air — in the coming year. This includes the supplementaryy estimates for all three.

Henderson said in his memorandum that "steps are being taken in collaboration with the air forces of France, Belgium and Holland to build up our joint defences against air attack, using common types of equipment and a common operational procedure. Arrangements have been made for the supply of British aircraft to these Allied air forces."

Blockbuster Was Called "Cookie" From Humorous Incident in War

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 24 (CP)— Why was the blockbuster bomb christened "Cookie?"

Because, says a new book on Britain's wartime arsenals, Lancashire factory workers mistook one for a steam boiler and tried to instal it in a canteen kitchen.

Why was one room in the same factory called "The Beauty Parlor?"

Because women workers applied their glamor paint there. Forced to wear a protective face cream, the women complained it was unsightly. So the management tactfully issued a cream "specially tinted to enhance the wearer's complexion." There were no more complaints.

Novelest Ian Hay (real name Maj. Gen. Hay Beith, C.B.E., M.C.) recounts these episodes in "R.O.F.," a 100 page account of Britain's Royal Ordnance factories for 1939 to 1948.

He tells how 44 such factories, compared with three before the war, fought long hours and air raids to earn Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's tribute:

"They knew we needed munitions, more munitions and ever munitions. They were determined that we should get them, and we did."

The factories employed 350,000 men and women, most of them worked two 12 hour shifts daily, including Sundays. One worker in the Liverpool area said he didn't see daylight in seven months.

One factory had a "card index nightmare" — there were 40 workers named Ann Clark.

Headed by the 1,400 acre Royal arsenal at Woolwich, the factories produced more than 5,000,000 small arms, 4,000,000 shells, bombs and mines and 6,000,000,000 rounds of small arm ammunition.

Strikes were practically unknown and absenteeism negligible

Twenty-two of the 44 factories now employing 44,000, are being kept open for production in emergency.

Unhappy Home Life Blamed For Career of Crime

St. Catharines, Ont., Feb. 24— (CP)— An unhappy home life Wednesday was blamed for Gerard Dennis' career of crime.

The mother of the self-confessed jewel thief, Mrs. Joseph Dennis, said in an interview she had a "terrible life" with her husband who "forced a divorce on me" in 1934.

Dennis was arrested in Cleveland O., last week and now is being questioned by police in White Plains N.Y. Police claim he stole loot valued at $1,000,000, some of it from the Hollywood homes of movie stars.

"In my desperate struggles to keep my three children, they, of course, had no money at all, Mrs. Dennis said. "It was a pitiful existence. I got money from friends and from giving singing lessons."

But a neighbor — who declined to be identified —said "Gerard was wild as a youth and nobody could do anything with him."

The neighbor said it was "the statement of a coward" to blame his life of crime on the fact that neighboring children were not allowed to play with him.

His father was sent to Kingston penitentiary in 1929 for embezzling.

Mrs. Dennis said she decided to go England in 1934 but "a week before I left for England my husband stole Gerard from me."

Police records here show Mrs. Dennis charged her son with being an incorrigible in 1934 when he was 14. He ran away before sentence could be passed.

Driving Snow Filled Barns to Eaves

By ROBERT TURNBULL
(In Kansas City Star)

The stories associated with the fabulous Paul Bunyan are almost equalled in the accounts of the recent blizzard which struck the Northwestern Plain states. The storm was a universal topic of conversation among livestock men for the National Western Stock show.

Many of the ranchers had suffered heavy losses in the storm and all in the area of the heavy snow and strong winds had been greatly inconvenienced. Many too, were not able to get to the show because of drift-blocked roads or because of efforts being made to find cattle or sheep still hidden on the ranges.

One of the most fantastic stories concerned a small herd of dairy cattle—11 in number—which the owner was able to get into his barn on his farm near Sterling, Colo.

As the story was related by a representative of the John Clay commission firm, the gales that accompanied the storm blew snow into the barn until it was filled solidly to the eaves. The cattle all were smothered to death as they stood in the barn and they are there today, packed in snow.

Because of the huge drifts around the barn, it will not be possible to remove the dead cows until the snow thaws, probably in may.

Another rancher said three horses in his barn had been lost the same way and that he would not be able to remove them until the sun melted the snow.

A stock show visitor who lives in a small town in Wyoming related that he had not attempted during the storm to remove his motor car from his outdoor garage. When after four days, he went to get his car, he opened the garage doors and found the building filled with snow from floor to ceiling.

This blowing of snow into buildings was one of the major effects of the storm.

On the famous Wyoming Hereford ranch at Cheyenne, many of the highly bred bull senior and yearling calves were in feed lots with sheds open to the south. The sheds were well bedded.

Asked to relate their experience in the storm and what they had done to protect their cattle, George Lazear, son of Robert W. Lazear, the manager of WHR, told this story:

"The morning the storm began, was bright and clear. There was no indication of a storm until about 10 o'clock when the wind began to get colder. Snow started falling about 11 o'clock and all through the day the wind got stronger and the snowfall heavier. By Monday the wind was blowing 40 to 50 miles an hour and the temperature had dropped to 10 below zero. Tuesday gusts of wind were reaching 65 miles an hour.

"We actually didn't do a thing to get in our livestock because nothing was possible. No man could have withstood that cold, wind and snow, and if he could it would not have been possible to have turned cattle on the range against the wind and drive them to shelter. We had about 600 cows on the range and they drifted with the wind. Luckily, drifts piled so high that they covered fences so that instead of the cows piling against a fence, they walker right over it on top the snow."

The bull calves in the sheds faced a different peril, as Lazear explained. The snow drifted into the sheds until it reached within a few inches of the roofs at the top. Wednesday when the storm subsided and ranch hands went to the rescue of the calves with a bulldozer and tractor manure loader, they found the cold animals in the back of the sheds where they had a very narrow corridor remaining against the wall. The bulls were fed and watered and some responded readily, while others were slower to recover from the ordeal.

Only 15 inches of snow fell at Cheyenne as compared to three and four feet in Nebraska, but the drifts were tremendously deep because of the heavy winds. Snow was blown completely off the hill tops.

Indicative of the depth of the snow is a drift in George Lazear's yard at his home on the ranch. The drift is fence high. Instead of attempting to cut a pathway through the gate, he has cut steps in the drift up to and over the fence, making a veritable snow stile. It probably will be there until Spring, he said.

Otto Fulscher and Sam Fulscher had similar experiences at their ranch at Holyoke, Colo., with bull calves in a shed with a metal roof.

The snow blew into the shed, gradually filling it up clear to the back. As the snow piled in, the calves continued to move around until finally their backs touched the roof. Still the snow blew. The young bulls eventually forced the roof from the building.

On a sheep ranch north of Greeley, Colo., the rancher was able to get his 1,200 head of ewes into a pen, but as snow blew in and drifted, fences finally were covered. The sheep drifted from the pen over the tops of the fences and all were frozen to death. Suffocated perhaps is a better word, because as the ranchmen explained, most of the livestock died because their nostrils were covered with snow and ice rather than from cold alone.

Charles W. McIlvaine, Hayden, Colo., of the Bolton and Davis Livestock Company, said they had 10,000 sheep at Rawlins, Colo., which were in bands of from 1,200 to 2,000 head. In order to reach the sheep, he related, it was necessary each morning to break a road with a bulldozer on a "cat" tractor, which preceded wagons carrying hay and grain.

"It is a mighty expensive operation," he said, "especially when you consider the sheep would have got most of their feed themselves had there been no storm."

The sheep are ranging on a ranch of 176,000 acres, which indicates the size of the feeder's problems and the extent of open territory over which the wind could blow.

Good Housing Lures Aussies to Desert

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Shortage of housing in Australia has ended the Commonwealth railways' constant battle to get staff to man the desert stretches on the trans-continental railway.

Last week the Melbourne offices of the railways were besieged with men who were willing to take their families out to the lonely little stations dotted across the Australian desert.

Reason for the sudden interest in these out-of-the-way jobs was the announcement that each job carries with it a home at the nominal rental of $2.32 a week.

Most of the men seeking the jobs were young war veterans who have been forced to live with their parents-in-law, or in single rooms. By occupation they ranged from clerks to blacksmiths.

Several newly-arrived migrants were among the 35 families finally selected by the railways.

The houses are claimed by the railways as the best working men's homes in Australia. They have three bedrooms, a living room, kitchen, laundry, bathroom, sleeping-porch and a verandah. Each is fully insulated and fitted with a kerosene refrigerator.

Where six or more children are together the government provides a school teacher. Children in smaller settlements are taught by post.

Seek Man's Story at Ancient Site South of Baghdad

By MUSA HABIB

Baghdad (AP)—A joint United States archaeological expedition which started work in Iraq last year will be engaged for several seasons to come in the task of unfolding the story of the growth of man.

Dr. Donald E. McCown, who headed the combined expedition of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago and the University Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, said the limited results obtained in the introductory work last November and December "have been most promising."

The group, which plans to resume work in full capacity next season, is pursuing its study of man's early years on the site of Nippur, now known as Nuffar, a short distance from Afek in the Diwaniyah Ilwa (province) about 100 miles south of Baghdad.

The ancient site of Nippur is one of the great landmarks in the early civilization of Iraq (Mesopotamia). The history of Nippur is a long one, running from the prehistoric Al-Ubaid period (at least 6,000 years ago) down to the 10th century A.D. Its greatest importance was in the third millenium B.C., during the early Sumerian and immediately following periods.

Although Nippur was never a political capital of southern Mesopotamia it was, in a sense, the religious capital of the land. It was the home of Enlil, chief god in the Sumerian pantheon, at that remote period.

Nippur became less important in the second millenium B.C. with the rise of Babylon, when Murdok became chief god, but it continued to be a large and important city. The present remains cover about 180 acres.

The American expedition which started work last fall is not the first American group to undertake excavations in this important area. Nippur was the site of the first archaeological project in Iraq more than 60 years ago.

Cuneiform Tablets

From 1888 to 1890 the University of Pennsylvania had a field party there and Nippur became famous for the large number of tablets in cuneiform writing discovered in one mound containing the temple scribal school.

Enlil's ancient home and school, Dr. McCown said, "conceal many secrets yet to be revealed and the expedition plans to work for many seasons until Nippur contributes all its highly important evidence for the story of the growth of man."

Dr. Naji Al-Asil, director of Iraqui department of antiquities, said an Iraq expedition under Fuad Safar has resumed excavations at Eridu, the most ancient abode of civilization in southern Iraq.

The expedition began work on a new site about a half mile southeast of the Ziggurat area which was the site of the excavations the last two seasons. These excavations uncovered three important findings.

1. A series of superimposed temples, 17 in number, mostly of the Al-Ubaid period. The last three temples belong to the hitherto unknown cultural period which has been named the Eridu period (about the fourth millenium B. C.)

2. The Al-Ubaid settlement of houses, streets and public buildings.

3. The Al-Ubaid cemetery where more than 1,000 well preserved tombs were exposed. This discovery has been termed of great significance.

Clock Hobby Keeps Family on the Go

Kitchener, Ont. (CP)—If ever a family surrounded itself with a hobby, that family is Elmore Henning's at Milverton.

There are three Hennings and 50 clocks in their little house just off the main street. They ring out the hours and the quarter-hours. If you want an undisturbed night's sleep, then you cautiously stop the grandfather clocks on your way to bed.

Clock collecting has been a Henning hobby since boyhood. Now 39, the collector boasts a variety guaranteed to make an antique dealer's eyes roll. These clocks date back to the time of Columbus and work forward through every century and almost every country of the world to present-day clocks which he makes himself.

No harsh alarm stirs Mr. Henning weekday mornings. A musical clock in a nickel case timidly plays "Sweet Mary" for 15 minutes. A dozen more clocks in the bedroom check it for accuracy.

Big Variety

These are the clocks of other nations: A Swiss wag-of-the-wall dated 1816; a German wag-of-the-wall brought to Canada in 1820, and a series of novelty clocks bearing cherubs or other accessories.

In the halls there are grandfather clocks from Scotland and Switzerland. In the living-room, a French battery clock and a 400-day clock from Paris exchange ticks in broken English with an English 400-day clock with revolving pendulum. A clock with a swinging Dutch girl for a pendulum beats rhythm with a black ivory elephant.

In the kitchen collection there is a mystery clock without any apparent mechanism, yet it returns to the correct time when you try to confuse it by moving its hands. Flush against the wall, there is no movement behind its mirrored face. There is nothing on that mirror except the two hands and 12 numerals. Yet it is a clock and it keeps accurate time. Mr. Henning won't tell how. It is flanked by revolving pendulum clocks, miniature clocks, glass-encased clocks and just plain, everyday clocks.

Mr. Henning started buying alarm clocks in his school days. He has since bought antiques at auction and private sales from Kitchener to Stratford. It is a tribute to his ability as a clockmaker as well, that 50 clocks in the house keep time accurately.

Kashmir Fights —Against Rats

New Delhi — (CP) — There has been no "cease fire" in Kashmir — against vermin and rats. Mass invasion by rodents is the latest menace army doctors are fighting in Jammu, and a 'pied piper' would be most welcome.

While rat traps and other orthodox remedies have worked, when available, necessity has spurred a resourceful soldier to devise his own technique—slanting beer and rum bottles with bread or sugar inside. Mice crawl in but can't crawl out.

However, so far the rat pro-

Sincerity Prompts Church Attendance

London — (CP) — A survey to determine why people go to church, published in the British Weekly, says that a congregation is attracted by sincerity and leadership on the part of the minister rather than by his personality or showmanship.

Among other things the investigators found that:

1. In successful churches youth clubs, socials, parties and dances, while helping to attract people to church, are "always subordinated to the main religious motive."

2. Churches with the best attendance usually have a fairly austere program of week-day activities, in which Christian leadership courses and guild meetings play a greater part than Scouts, Guides and dances.

3. There is little evidence that popular churches draw their adherents from other churches. "Most of their people would otherwise be unattached."

4. A large building is a handicap where the congregation is small. "What is desired is a partitioned section which can be enlarged as the congregation grows."

Proper Cooling Of Cream Needed For Best Flavor

Toronto — More and more creameries are increasing the premium paid for first grade cream over second grade, an official of the Dairy Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, said recently. The majority are now paying a premium of five cents per pound butterfat while others have increased their premiums to an even eight and in some cases ten cents. A small few are still at an the minimum premium of three cents a pound butterfat, the amount permitted under the Dairy Products Act.

Creameries are now realizing that poor quality cream, which produces low-grade butter, actually brings a liability. High quality cream, it is pointed out, is an asset to both producer and creamery.

Chief Flavor Defects

Chief flavor defects, causing second grade cream, are reported to be of stale, unclean, metallic, bitter and stable nature with stale flavor most prevalent.

Department inspectors state that to the average person staleness seems to indicate a flavor developed because of age. In the case of second grade cream this is partly correct because cream is not gathered as frequently in winter as during the summer months. However, it has been found that this stale flavor develops because of lack of proper cooling of freshly separated cream.

Many producers assume that cold air in winter is sufficient to cool cream, and do not use cold water for quick-cooling. Because of slow-cooling, bacteria growth continues quite rapidly and this results in rapid "aging" of the cream.

Water Best Medium

"When it is realized that water will cool 21 times more rapidly than air at the same temperature, there should be no hesitation on the part of producers about using the quick efficient method of cooling in winter," an official says.

"By cooling the freshly separated cream in cold water, and it can be done in a few minutes, the producer improves the lasting properties and also the flavor of his cream," he explained.

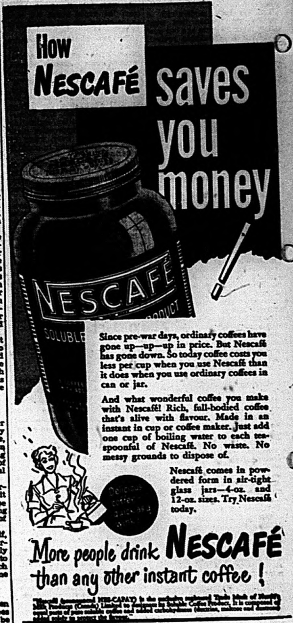
"This is particularly true if, while cooling, the cream is stirred. Stirring not only uniformly cools the cream but tends to drive off minor feed flavors which are often prevalent at this time of the year.

Keeps Better

"Once the cream has been quickly cooled off to 50 degrees fahrenheit or lower, it can be kept sweet for several days providing the temperature of the cream does not afterwards rise above this temperature.

"With creameries placing a premium on quality, cream producers cannot afford to take a chance on neglecting the quick and prompt cooling of their cream. They should also aim at top quality and will then take no chance on their product falling into second grade.

"If a producer follows the motto of 'Clean and Cool' he should have little worry about his cream falling into second grade as most defects in cream are eliminated when this plan is followed," he said.



How NESCAFÉ saves you money

MINERAL WEALTH NEWFOUNDLAND'S BIGGEST ASSET

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) —Newfoundland is rich in natural resources, but just how rich nobody knows exactly.

It seems certain that production of iron ore will, in the next decade, become Newfoundland's chief industry but at present it ranks well behind both fishing and pulp and paper.

After Newfoundland joins Canada as her 10th province it is likely that the federal government will send experts to the island and Labrador to make an accurate appraisal of natural resources.

Most of the island's 320,000 people make their living from the sea. The fisheries—major item is salt cod—are worth about $35,000,000 a year. Forest products, including newsprint, pulp and paper, sawn lumber and pitprops, bring in about $18,000,000 and mines some $10,000,000.

Though fishermen are scattered all around the coast of Newfoundland and along Labrador's shore, miners and woodworkers are concentrated in only two or three towns. Wabana, on Bell Island, is the home of 2,500 iron ore miners. Buchans is the centre for production of ore concentrates, zinc and lead and Grand Falls and Corner Brook, the heart of the newsprint industry.

Millions of dollars have been poured into construction of fish processing plants and the industry is still expanding. Though cod occupies the predominant place in the island's fishery, salmon, herring, halibut, turbot and lobster also figure in the picture.

Development Recent

Apart from its fisheries, Newfoundland's development started 50 years ago when the island-spanning railway was completed. Copper had been discovered in Notre Dame Bay in 1864 but this industry finally folded up in 1900.

First iron mining was done on Bell Island in 1895. Since then some 45,000,000 tons have been exported, mostly to Canada where it is smelted at Sydney, N.S., by Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, owners of the Bell Island mines.

The mine levels run more than a mile out under the sea on the west side of the island, which lies in Conception Bay near St. John's. Cable cars move the ore about a mile to loading piers on the other side of the island.

All workable pulpwood limits in Newfoundland are held by two paper companies — Anglo-Newfoundland Pulp and Paper Mills. The Northcliffe interests of London set up Anglo-Newfoundland in 1909 and Bowater's acquired the paper mills at Corner Brook in 1938. Anglo-Newfoundland also operates mines at Buchans. Bowater's has recently expanded until it is the biggest paper mill in the world. Most of the export from both paper towns go to the United Kingdom.

Labor's Plans For New Forest To Hit Gypsies

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New Forest, Hampshire, England — (CP) — In the House of Lords in London there's fine talk about what they'll do to make more useful the 93,000 acres in the New Forest.

But here, among the trees, Granny Hughes, 80, stirs her supper in an iron pot and mutters gypsy curses on men who would turn her out of her forest home.

This is an old quarrel. Among these trees kings hunted and outlaws took their toll. The common folk had the right to graze their beasts in the forest and in time they formed their own government, the Court of Verderers, to which they elected good men to see the forest laws were kept.

For nearly 1,000 years the New Forest trees sheltered the gypsies, the grazing cattle and pigs, the fleet deer. When the trees became old, they were cut down and used to build the ships that defended Britain's coasts.

The feudal rulers vanished, but the commoners remained and the Court of Verderers held its power. The First World War opened the forest for military training and the Court of Verderers took its fee for damage done. It happened again in 1939, and now the Lords say that only these payments saved the ancient court from insolvency.

Time Moves On

In London they say time has moved on and the Court of Verderers now must have representation on government organizations, a further 8,000 acres must be enclosed for forestry and other purposes, and fees charged for grazing must be changed.

The Lords have given second reading to the necessary legislation and soon it will be before the Commons.

Here, these handsome plans seem more difficult than they do in London.

Granny Hughes and more than 100 of her people live in forest glades where there have been gypsies as long as there has been a forest.

"My people have been here longer than the squires and I don't want to leave," said Granny.

In the Lords, they had heard of the gypsies and a peer asked Lord Chancellor Jowitt what he proposed to do about them when the forest changes are made.

Jowitt said it was "an awful problem . . . Unless and until we have found some method of housing these people and some place to send them to, it is very difficult to see what we can do.

"It is fair to say these gypsies have been in the forest for centuries and they have nowhere else to go."

SMELLY SEAWEED

Looe, Cornwall, England — (CP) — Rotting seaweed caused such a bad odor here that residents had to keep doors and windows closed. Motorboats towed harrows along the harbor-bed in efforts to dislodge the weeds.

NON-STOP CALLIGRAPHY

During the Middle Ages it was the custom to write letters together in lines without breaks or pause marks for either words or sentences.

Englishman Likes Canadian Freedom

Edmonton — (CP) — When Robert E. Ryder of Middlesex, England, stepped off a train in Edmonton recently, he summed up his feeling about Canada this way: "This is for me."

A former construction foreman, farmer and winner of the Victoria Cross in the First World War, he intends to make Edmonton his home. He is the fifth member of his family to move from England to Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryder and their 16-year-old daughter Brenda settled in New Brunswick in 1946. They bought a farm but later decided to join relatives here.

They emigrated to Canada because they "couldn't stand being tied down by the government," Ryder said, adding they like the "free and easiness" of Canada and Canadians.

Ryder won his V.C. when he was only 20. A bronze statue of him by Epstein stands at the entrance to the Middlesex Guildhall in London.

He served for a time in the Second World War but was discharged because of war wounds and "football shins." During the 1920s he played soccer.

DUSTY DUST JACKETS

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Dust jackets on some English books now selling in Australia are printed on the back of R.A.F. maps. Some of the bombing targets in Europe are marked "War-Secret."

NOT RED BUT PINK

The words red tape, denoting official inaction or delay, originated in England in the 19th century when legal and official documents were tied in a pinkish tape.

Park House Lease Voided by Death

Vancouver — (CP) — All who love to roam the trails and roads of scenic Stanley Park here are asking, "what's going to happen to Frank Harris' little frame cottage?"

Frank Alfred Harris, 88, died recently following a short illness and with him went the lease to the house granted him by the park board in 1933 when he retired after 44 years' service as a civic employee.

Under the terms of the lease the house was his as long as he lived for rent of one dollar a year.

Still living in the quaint dwelling are two of his daughters and one son.

They take a hopeful view that the board will let them live in the house they have learned to love.

After Many Years Suffering He Tells of Grand Relief

Praises Syntona for Relief of Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Excess Acidity. Is Now Free of Rheumatic Pains and Throbbing Headaches.

W. S. BARNARD

"Anything that will help a person the way Syntona helped me deserves the highest praise you can give it," said Mr. W. S. Barnard, well known Canadian National Railways engineer, who resides at 129 Essa Road, Barrie, Ontario, in a recent interview:

"My stomach troubled me for many years and I took so many different things without benefit that nothing seemed worth trying any more," said Mr. Barnard. "After my meals I would get a heavy, distressed bloated feeling, followed by gassy cramps and sour acid risings. I felt sick and nauseated and sour liquids came up in my throat. I would pick and choose my food and many days I didn't feel like eating at all. I felt overtired all the time and couldn't get my proper sleep at night. Often when I got up mornings, I had a throbbing headache and rheumatic pains in my limbs and muscles. My back was lame and sore.

"I had been disappointed with so many things that I even hesitated to try Syntona, but a friend recommended it so highly that I finally began taking it. Why, almost from the first my food began to digest better and it wasn't long before I could eat hearty meals and have no trouble with gas, sourness or indigestion afterwards. I kept right on taking it and now I am free of headaches, the aches and pains have gone out of my limbs, back and muscles and I sleep well at night. As a result, I have more energy and I don't get tired as easily as I did before.

"It is certainly great to feel so well once again and I am glad to recommend this medicine to any one suffering as I did."

Yes, and many people can profit in a similar way by taking the advice of Mr. Barnard. Syntona acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, improving their action. It aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Fight Caterpillars With Imported Wasps

Johannesburg — (CP) — Many fruit-growers and bee-keepers fear that the thousands of parasite wasps, being imported from the United States to attack the karoo caterpillar pest in South Africa, will eventually grow into an army of bee-killers and fruit stingers.

Such fears are groundless, said an official of the Department of Agriculture. These insects, he said, resemble the wasp only in appearance, and do not have the same habits or appetites.

They are only a quarter to a third of an inch long, and it will take years to ascertain just how effectively they are attacking the karoo caterpillar.

The reasons for importing these insects, it was stated is that the natural parasites which attack the caterpillar are not doing their work properly, and the pest is increasing. The parasite wasp attacks different species of caterpillar including the cutworm, the bollworm and also the common meal moth.

"Safe" Job of Car Wrecking if Speed Slow

(By William Haslett Upson in the Ford Times)

If you are a perfect driver, you will never cause an accident. You may, however, become involved in an accident caused by somebody else. And if you are human you are almost certain sooner or later, to scrape a fender, smash a headlight, or even wreck your car.

This raises the question, "Is it possible to wreck you car safely?" The answer is "yes— provided you are a safe driver."

Many people think you can be a safe driver merely by becoming a skilful driver. One of these admirers of dexterity was telling me the other day that the two most important things for a driver to learn are:

1. How to back into a tight parking space.

2. How to stop and start again on the incline of a hill.

This of course, is baloney. I have known plenty of people who could not do either of these things and who have driven for years without ever hurting themselves or anybody else.

I knew a woman who once attempted to back into a parking space on one of the main thoroughfares in Schenectady, N. Y. She missed the parking space entirely, and gently sideswiped three parked cars. The noise of crumpling fenders so startled her that she became panic-stricken.

She let go the wheel and started screaming. Pedestrians scrambled for safety. Slowly her car backed along the highway for a hundred yards, wobbling this way and that.

It looped around a corner into a side street and started backing across a lawn toward a porch on which a baby was peacefully snoozing in its kiddie koop. The screams of the driver were heard by the mother. She carried the baby into the house just before the car backed into one of the porch pillars and let half of the porch roof down.

There was a lot of excitement and a lot of talk about this afterward. There was also a lot of expense. But nobody was hurt. The car and the porch had been wrecked with complete safety to all concerned.

I knew a charming old gentleman in Akron Ohio, who if he once got stalled going up a hill, could never get going again.

The technique of releasing the brake andengaging the clutch was too intricate for his one track mind. He could never coast back to get a fresh start because he never learned to steer while going backward.

My friend never got a mechanical hill hold, but he borrowed a trick from the horse and wagon era.

He got a large block of wood with a chain attached. Whenever he got stalled on a hill, he would step out of the car in a dignified manner, place the block behind the rear wheel, attach the end of the chain to the rear bumper, climb back into the car and drive slowly off. The block of wood would drag along behind the car. When he got to a level place, he would stop and retrieve it.

All this was inconvient but it never involved the old gentleman in a serious accident.

I have known countless other clumsy inefficient and ignorant drivers who never seem to get hurt. I once knew a college professor who never learned to shift gears. He drove all over the city of St. Louis in low and he lived to a ripe old age.

What, then, is the secret of safe driving? It is skill? Is it perfect control? Is it avoiding all mistakes? No.

The terrible examples I have been discussing made all possible mistakes except one. The one big mistake they never made was speeding.

These people caused a lot of annoyance, but they saved their own skins. They gave pedestrians and other drivers plenty of warning and plenty of time to get out of the way.

The moral is plain. If you are a perfect driver, you can go weaving through traffic at 70 miles an hour. You will never cause an accident. And if all other drivers are perfect, they will never cause an accident.

But if you are human, and other drivers are human, somebody sometime is going to make a mistake. You will be much better off if you follow the practice of my clumsy friends and make your mistakes slowly.

That way if you wreck your car, you have a good chance to wreck it safely.

Pro Hockey May Invade England Next Season

Montreal, Feb. 23 (CP)— The Hockey News, a weekly publication in a copyrighted story today said professional hockey may invade England next season to take in the English National League.

The paper said Percy Nicklin, general manager of Harringay Arena and a pioneer hockey promoter in England, has conferred with President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League on behalf of the English clubs and a further conference will be held.

Nicklin hopes to work out satisfactory arrangements between organized professional hockey and the eight clubs of the English League.

Potential N.H.L. players would spend a season or two with English clubs to gain experience. Salaries of players and of a coach to look after N.H.L. interests would be paid by the English teams. Salaries would be comparable to those of the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

Nicklin, formerly of Brandon, Man., has been boss of Harringay arena since the war and it is known he has mooted the idea of pro hockey for British rinks for at least two years. It is believed that any professional setup would be outside the control of the British Ice Hockey Association, governing body of hockey in Britain which is tied closely with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

At London, John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, secretary of the B. I. H. A. who is "Mr. Hockey" in Britain and Europe, is expected back from the continent Friday. But a source close to his office said Nicklin's negotiations may be "premature."

Officials at Harringay and Wembley, the two largest arenas in Britain, aren't talking.

Contrary to Understanding

Midland, Ont.—George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said that a Montreal report that professional hockey may be seen in England next season was "directly contrary to the understanding I had."

"The last I heard on the British outlook toward pro hockey was that they were not anxious to experiment with it," said Dudley, "but there may be circumstances which have caused them to change their minds."

If there was an arrangement between organized pro hockey and the eight clubs of the English league, the British Ice Hockey Association would still function as it has other minor hockey interests, Dudley said. In view of this the C.A.H.A. would continue to deal with the B.I.H.A. although a new agreement would probably be necessary with professional hockey authorities.

Link With Trafalgar in Danger

There are two ships of the line inexistence today which fought in Trafalgar, writes the naval correspondent of the London Times. One of the them is Nelson's Victory, restored by public subscription (organized by the Society for Nautical Research as as nearly as possible to her condition and appearance at the time of the battle, and reverently preserved at Portsmouth in one of the oldest dry-docks in the world now dedicated solely to her use. The other, thought built under another name, has for more than 140 years past been H.M.S. Implacable.

Future at Stake

She is still afloat; but though for many years past preserved with loving care, first by the late Wheatly Cobb and since his death by a committee of the same society which secured the survival of the Victory, she is now in grave danger.

A scheme for preserving the Implacable is still under close and sympathetic examination by those on whom it will rest to decide whether it is practicable and justifiable. It is hoped that the decision, which is to be given by March 31, can be affirmative. Among the most interesting sights to be seen in Oslo are three Viking ships dating from the ninth century, the period of Norway's preminence upon the seas, preserved in the state in which they made their famous voyages, some of which extended even across the Atlantic. In England only the Victory commemorates the period when British sea power reached its height and to see her the Londoner or visitor to this country must go to Portsmouth. London should have her own monument to that great age; and if the efforts now being made on behalf of the Implacable which are supported by the London County Council and the Georgian Group, prove successful the gap can be filled.

Built in France

It has been objected that the Implacable, being French-built is not suitable to be a British memorial but the navy list is full of French ship names which first appeared there when their bearers were captured in battle, and incorporated in the British Fleet. The Implacable is not only a survivor from a great age— she is also a standing witness to its greatness, and though she fought against the British Fleet at Trafalgar and was indeed one of the four enemy ships which survived that memorable battle, a fortnight later she was captured by the squadron under Sir Richard Strachan and brought a prize into Plymouth. She had still before her a century of service under the British flag.

She was laid down at Toulon in 1797 and launched three years later as the Duguay-Trouin —a name famous in French naval annals of two centuries earlier. In 1808 she narrowly escaped capture by H.M.S. Elephant in the West Indies, but saw no further active service after Trafalgar, when, as one of the van under the command of Dumanoir, she was at one time in action against the Victory herself. She made a gallant fight of it on November 4, 1805, when brought to action in company with her three escorts by Sir Richard Strachan and did not haul her colors down until her captain, Claude Touffet, had been killed and she had nearly 150 casualties.

Given New Name

It was after a refit at Plymouth that she was renamed Implacable and began her long service as a British ship, which included active service in the Baltic in 1808 —when she outfought and captured the Russian 74 Sevelod —and off the Syrian coast under Sir Robert Stopford in 1840. When she left the Mediterranean for home in 1842 she carried proudly on her main truck the golden cock awarded supremacy in those drills with sails and spars which were then the navy's test of the smart ship" and well-trained ship's company.

That was the end of her seagoing career but not of her useful service. After 13 years in reserve she became the training ship for boys at Devonport and continued in that service for over 50 years. But in 1908 "wooden walls" were no longer in fashion, even for the training of newly entered youth; and after a century of service in the Royal Navy she was becoming expensive to maintain in the first-class order that naval tradition demands. So she was condemned by an unsentimental Admiralty to be sold for breaking up, a fate from which she was saved only by the personal intervention of King Edward VII.

GaspeIs. Covered With Gannets

(By Walt Sawyer, in the Christian Science Monitor)

When the gannets flock together there's some feathery, fantastic sights to see, especially if you're agile and quick with the camera shutter release.

Three miles from the shore at Perce on the Gaspe coast lies the island of Bonoventure, a provincial and federal sanctuary for birds. It forms a rugged circle about 2½ miles in diameter, rising at its highest point to between 500 and 600 feet above sea level. The northeast shore is precipitous and jagged, but therein lies the chief interest for bird lovers.

From April to September the shelving cliffs are literally covered with migratory sea fowl. Many species are represented on this sanctuary, but it is pre-eminently the summer home of the gennet, and Bonaventure is not only one of the most interesting colonies, but the largest of gannet colonies on the North American continent.

The birds are plentiful and all sorts of photographs can be taken, but this pastime is by no means easy for the timid. Practically all the cliffs are inaccessible from either sea or the inland part of the island without ropes and other suitable climbing paraphernalia, and the shale ledges are often apt to crumble under foot.

The gannet is one of the most graceful creatures of wing and feather, about three feet in length but with a wingspread of over six feet. They are clumsy and amusingly awkward on the feet, but one of the most accomplished bird performers when in the air. The beak is long, powerful, and spear shaped, while the jaws extend backward beyond, the eye, bare of feathers, and is capable of considerable damage. The mature birds are snow-white, with brownish dark tips on the wings, and a buff crown shading off to white at the back of the head.

Both the take-off and the landing of the gannet are of peculiar interest. This bird in the take-off unfurls its wings in sequence from the humerus outward, and this is true even when the bird is alarmed, although then the action is far too quick for the human eye to perceive. While this takes place, the feet push the body forward and over the cliff till the last contact of the toes with the rock and the unfurling of the pinion at the wrist is simultaneous.

The homecoming is still more interesting. At first there are a few reconnoitering flights over the nest with leisurely wing movement, with the head and tail depressed forming an arc of a circle. More frequently the gannet may come straight in from the sea, swinging up toward the nest, crying loudly, and applying brakes to stop the momentum. The body is raised to an angle of 45 degrees or more, tail depressed and wings spread. Even the great webbed feet are raised and held against the air.

Finland's Govt. Breaks Tie on Second Vote

London, Feb. 24 — (Reuters) — Finland's Social - Democrat government had a close call Wednesday on two votes-of-confidence, but came out the victor after they held a two-vote margin in the second ballotting.

The Helsinki radio reported that the government won a 97 to 96 vote on the first confidence motion but that a recount showed the vote to be 97 to 97. This tied count, the Finnish radio said, meant the government would fall.

However, a short time later, a second vote of confidence was taken with the government coming out ahead 97 to 95.

THOMASBURG

Couple Guests Of Honor On 50th Anniversary

Last Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Martin, Thomasburg, were guests of honor at a dinner at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Tweed, on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Their marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adams and was performed by the Rev. Balfour, then of Thomasburg circuit. The bridesmaid of fifty years ago was Ivy Adams (Mrs. Henry Blakely) now deceased, and the best man was Ferman Martin, a cousin, now of Detroit, Mich. He was unable to be present but sent a gift and congratulations.

For forty-nine years, Mr. and Mrs. Martin lived in Hungerford township on the farms now occupied by Stanley Webb, Albert Martin and Albert Palmateer. One year ago they moved to Thomasburg village where they now reside.

Active in Church

Their family consists of one daughter Jennie (Mrs. A. McTaggart) and one son, Albert and ten grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Martin have been actively connected with the church work at Bethel and later Thomasburg, Mr. Martin holding the office of steward for many years. Fraternally Mr. Martin has been a member of the Orange Order for many years and also the I.O.O.F. Lodge at Thomasburg. Others present were Mr. Martin's only living brother, Archie, and Mrs. Martin of Selby, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Holland, Milton McTaggart, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Martin, Jean, Vera, Eva and Elsie Martin, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Webb and Miss Doris Alexander of Roslin. Mrs. W. J. Webb is an only sister of Mrs. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Webb were also celebrating their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary on the same date.

Gifts Presented

After all had done justice to the delicious dinner, Mr. Albert McTaggart, acting as master of ceremonies and assisted by Albert Martin, presented the guests of honor with a radio on behalf of those present.

Mr. Martin made a suitable reply thanking all for their gifts and good wishes. Among other gifts were two cups and saucers from Elliott Orange Lodge. They also received numerous cards and messages of congratulation including a telephone call from a niece in Manitoba. The evening was pleasantly spent in music and readings and all join in wishing them many more years of health and happiness together.

Counterfeit U.S. $20 Bills Turn Up In Toronto Restaurants

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)— Three counterfeit United States $20 bills turned up today in separate downtown Toronto restaurants, police reported.

They said the money was part of a large quantity of bogus currency, believed smuggled from the U.S. The three bills bore the same letter and serial numbers as the cache of more than $15,000 recently found by police in an Oshawa house.

An international counterfeit ring, which police believe may be led by Donald (Mickey) McDonald, notorious escaped convict, was uncovered as a result of the Oshawa raid.

Earlier, police said the counterfeit $20 bills were "so good it was difficult to tell them from the real thing."

A general police alert was issued today for members of an international counterfeit ring, who passed three bogus United States $20 bills in separate Toronto restaurants overnight.

Merchants and restaurant owners were warned to watch for two men, both about 35, who passed the bills. The alleged counterfeit ring members hired a taxi to take them to the restaurants.

Narcotics Charge Laid

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP) —Percy Brenzel, 45, and his wife Arlene, 28, were charged today with illegal possession of narcotics following a police raid on their midtown Toronto hotel room.

Police said the pair met a third party on a downtown street and received a quantity of drugs. When police raided their room, Brenzel fought with them in an effort to escape.

PAVED ROADS, SNOW FREE, DRY

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)— All paved roads in southern Ontario today were generally snow-free and dry, officials of the Highways Department announced. Driving conditions throughout the province are "excellent," the officials said, but more snow is expected on northern highways,

Revolution in the North

The greatest invention in winter transportation that ever hit Canada, a brand new type of snowmobile, is making its debut in the north country. Designed by a Canadian concern for trappers, hunters, and those who live north of Canada's 53rd parallel, it can go anywhere on snow or ice, at a mile-a-minute clip, and is the master of any snowdrift. It is powered by a regular auto motor in the rear, its six rubber tires run on a highly flexible tractor-track and the steering is done through two skis in front. Man Who Mediated Armistice Signed In Palestine, Dr. Bunche, Is Grandson of a Slave

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 24 (CP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche, who mediated the armistice signed today in Palestine, is the grandson of a slave.

He took over as the United Nations' acting mediator for Palestine after a King's grandson, Count Folke Bernadotte, was murdered last September by assassins' bullets.

Since then Bunche has worked unceasingly to bring fruition to the patient, courageous work started by the Swedish nobleman.

Bunche is reported to have worked 18 hours a day during the last month, gently pushing the Israelis and Egyptians into an agreement.

This is the tribute paid by Walter Eytan, leader of the Israeli delegation to the peace talks on the Island of Rhodes.

"The main share of the credit for the successful conclusion of our labors must go to Dr. Bunche, the acting mediator and chairman of the conference, whose inexhaustible patience and almost superhuman capacity for hard work have earned the admiration of all."

Bunche, 44, has worked hard through his life to gain recognition.

An American Negro, he is one of the world's leading scholars in the field of race relations.

His father, a barber, and his mother, a musician, died in Detroit within three months of each other when he was 12 years old.

The soft-spoken Bunche worked his way through the University of California. Later he took a doctorate in government at Harvard University and was an instructor there.

He was a professor of political science at Howard University, Wash., D.C., and studied at the London School of Economics and at South Africa's Capetown University.

For three months, he lived among the tribes of the Kenya Highlands in Africa as a tribal citizen.

His training and service as United States adviser on colonial problems at nine international conferences fitted him for the post of director of the U.N. trusteeship division.

Rangers Playoff Hopes Sag After Win by Boston

(By The Canadian Press)

The bumping, bruising Boston Bruins still have a slim chance to win the National Hockey League championship this year.

But it's just that and no more. It would take a real winning streak on the part of the beantowners and an accommodation slump for the league - leading Detroit Red Wings. And this isn't likely off past performances.

The Bruins pulled to within eight points of Detroit Wednesday night with a 3-2 victory over the hapless New York Rangers.

The Rangers sank deeper into the league cellar and their dwindling hopes of making a playoff berth faded a little more.

Kenny Smith broke a 2-2 deadlock in the second period to score the winning goal.

Chuck Rayner was yanked in the final minute of play, and the Rangers tried to even it with a furious six-man attack, but the stalwart Bruin defence and goalie Frankie Brimsek repulsed all threats.

Jimmy Peters opened the scoring half way through the first period, beating Rayner with a 15-foot blazer.

Then the Rangers went ahead 2-1 with little Tony Leswick setting up both goals. Ed Laprade slapped the puck in from the crease and Dunc Fisher clipped the other past Brimsek at 18:55 from 10 feet out.

It only took the Bruins 27 seconds to tie the game, however, when Paul Ronty made good with a 20-foot shot.

Tonight, the Montreal Canadiens will make an attempt to pull further away from the threatening Chicago Black Hawks when they meet them in Chicago. Only three points separate the two teams, with the Canucks holding down the fourth and last playoff position.

Detroit kept their shooting irons in trim by pasting Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior League 10-2 in an exhibition game at Quebec Wednesday night.

EYES IN DANGER

Montreal — (CP) — Nearly half the 1948 injuries in heavy machinery injuries in the province of Quebec were eye injuries, Class Nine Safety Association reports. 1,613 eye injuries needed medical attention.

Toronto Marlies In Favorable Spot Of Playoff Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros are in a favorable spot today in their Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" playoff series.

Wednesday night the Dukes downed Owen Sound Mercurys 8-3 to take their best-of-seven semi-final series four straight games. The win gave the Dukes a weeks' rest while they wait for the winner of the Kitchener - Hamilton finals.

Meanwhile, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen went up 3-2 in their best-of-seven semi-final series by defeating Hamilton Tigers 4-3.

In the Junior "A" loop, St. Catharines Teepees bested Oshawa Generals 6-4 to go up 1-0 in their best-of-three quarter final playoffs, and Stratford Kroehlers came out of 90 minutes and 42 seconds of play with a 6-5 win over Toronto Marlboros. The victory gave the Kroehlers a 1-0 lead in their best-of-three quarter final series.

The long rest for the Marlies could be the payoff decision in finals. The Dutchmen and the Tigers are currently waging a tough battle that already has resulted in loss of a player from each club. However, the Dutchmen can wind up the series if they can score a victory Friday.

At Toronto, the Dukes had little trouble with Mercurys. They took a 2-1 lead in the first period, made it 5-2 in the second and then outscored the Mercurys 3-1 in the final period.

Ray Hannigan and Scotty Mair paced the winners with two goals each, while Johnny McLellan, Gord Simpson, Johnny McCormack and Chuck Blair scored singletons. Owen Sound markers were scored by Mike Shabaga, Tommy Burlington and Doug Gillespie.

Tigers to Protest Game

At Waterloo, officials of the Hamilton club followed up their defeat by announcing they would protest the game.

Tiger coach George Redding said he would base his protest on a penalty to Harvey Jacklin, Kitchener player, which was called at the end of the first period and then withdrawn.

Referees Red Farrell of Barrie and Pat Patterson of Toronto gave Jacklin the penalty at end of the first period for dumping Clare Shillington near the Kitchener nets. An announcement made at the opening of second-period play said the penalty was withdrawn because it came after the first-period ended. Redding said play had not stopped.

Outscored in Second

Kitchener came out of a scoreless first period to outscore Tigers 3-1 in the second. Tigers got two in the third while Kitchener got one. Mike Dzuira, Bill Dinning, Ted Grasser and Don Bauer scored for the Dutchmen. Tiger marksmen were Kenny Naylor, Tom Smelle and Clare Shillington.

At Oshawa, the Teepees drove into a 2-1 lead in the first period, split two goals in the second and then outscored the Generals 3-2 in the final frame.

Fred Hildebrand tallied twice to lead St. Catharines scorers and George Sullivan, Bud Evans, Bill Buschlen and Obie O'Brien counted the rest. Dick Gamble scored two goals for Oshawa, with singletons netted by Dick Hall and Dusty Blair.

The Kroehlers came from behind a 4-3 count as they went into the second period, and split two goals in the period. They then fought three action-packed overtime periods to get the only goal.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NOSTALGIA INC.

Not since the winter of 1921-22 when Ed. Thomas' rampaging Belleville intermediates barged through the Big Six League of that colorful era undefeated, has Belleville had a team that has compiled such a proud record to date as the CNR Diesels. Thus far since their 1948-49 debut the Diesels have snorted their way to nineteen victories with but two defeats marked on the opposite side of the ledger. True one of the victories was not won on the ice, this happening when the Kingston Aces agreed to play a four-point game.

The Diesels, born of a last-minute decision on the part of the rejuvenated Canadian National Railways Athletic Association, blossomed forth from a mediocre squad on "paper" to a powerful striking force on the ice. They swept through the Belleville and District Hockey League to win the title of that loop, and have since established an enviable undefeated record in the fast Senior "B" group of this district, winning all nine with one to go.

Perhaps two outstanding reasons form the secret of the scintillating success of the Diesels to date, one is the fact that they are well-balanced with plenty of reserve strength; the other, perhaps the more important, that there is not an iota of dissension, disagreement or enmity among coach, manager, association officials and players with no jealousy existent among the latter.

From the moment they first stepped on the ice for the initial practice last November to their close win over Kingston Nylons last Friday, the closest harmony has reigned in the ranks of the players. This is especially noted when the former Northern Electric Company front line of Don Barrett, Keith MacDonald and Johnny Semark, starry opponents of the Diesels in the City League finals, fitted into the Diesel Senior "B" scheme of things like a hand into an old glove.

The Trainmen have not suffered from that coachs' bugbear player jealousy. True at times some players have performed brilliantly, some of them consistently; but there is no grouching or sulking in the dressing room. Rather there is congratulatory back-thumping and hand-pumping. Players slap a brother player's buttocks with the flat of the stick in a "well-done, bub" gesture following a score. There's none of this "Whathehellareyatryingtodo, hog the puck?" stuff. Team spirit and close co-operation are the key notes of the Diesels.

Particularly noticeable is the fine co-operative spirit between Maurice Lefort and bespectacled Art Plumley, Diesels netminders. The boys alternate in the "bar-the-door" job, and each is the first to congratulate the other at the end of a game. Both boys are outstanding netmen, rated among the best in the district.

With Plumley and Lefort, the Diesels defence of Vern Geyer, Clare Williamson, Mark Storms, "Huck" Reeves and Speedy St. Louis are conceded by sportswriters of other towns in the group to be the best in the set-up. The front lines of Barrett, MacDonald, Semark, the two Meagher brothers, Al and Bernie, Jackie Wardaugh, Gerry Moher, Tim Williams and Doug Bastedo form a trio of hard-hitting high-scoring lines which can travel at top speed going both ways. One of the best assets of this hard hitting bevy of shock troops is their ability and willingness to back-check. This has been the downfall of many an opposing trio of speedy forwards.

Solidly behind the team and co-operating to the fullest extent is the hockey committee of the CNRAA composed of Al Wardaugh, Al Meagher, Joe Mattis, Stan Kiuner and "Mac" Carson. They have given much of their time and effort to weld the club into a harmonious victorious aggregation and thus far they have succeeded far beyond the expectation of the most optimistic fan.

And in the background are Mac Carson and Jim Ethier, manager and coach of the team respectively. These two sorrel-tops have done a splendid job and have the fullest respect and confidence of the players in their charge. They have instilled a fine spirit of co-operative harmony in the club and this perhaps is one of the main reasons why the Diesels are headed for the lucrative playoffs and most likely the playdowns.

The fandom of the city since the Diesels' remarkable success began to bloom on the District League, has been solidly behind this smooth-working aggregation. In the finals series against Northern Electric, they played to capacity crowds in Memorial Arena. During the current Senior "B" schedule, the ice palace has been packed whenever the Diesels perform. It is needless to say that the SRO sign will be hung up during the group playoffs, and if the Diesels come through with the group title, as they should, seats for playdown games will be scarcer at game-time than body-checks in a European hockey match.

Manager Bill Cook of the Belleville Rockets junior "B" team informed us late yesterday that the game scheduled for Friday night in Kingston between the Rockets and the Kingston Navy has been postponed till Thursday, March 3rd. What are we going to have to do? Wait until July 1st to see the playoffs?

NOT FRACTURED

Maurice Lefort, stellar Diesels goalie is not injured as seriously as was at first believed. He received a severe injury to his hand which was thought at first to be fractured. Recent examination, however reveals the Lefort mitt to be badly bruised. Bon garcon, ce Maurice.

New York Feb. 24 (AP)—Bernei Reynolds has probably lost a match in Madison Square Garden March 11 with Joe Baksi because of injuries suffered in beating Walter Hafer last night at Manhattan Centre.

Joe Vella, manager of the Fairfield, Conn. Heavyweight prospect, said a severely cut left eye and a swollen ear probably would force him to postpone the Baksi fight.

Reynolds won easily over Hafer, the Maysville, Ky., heavyweight he knocked out in seven rounds in 1947. This time it went the 10-round route.

Whitby Red Wings Triumph Over Faltering RCAF Flyers 9-2 In First Game "A" Finals

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A powerful Whitby Redwings team soared out of the west last night and their potent pinions nailed a fluttering Trenton RCAF Flyers team solidly to the mast in the first game of the three-of-five finals series in the district OHA Intermediate "A" group. By the time the feathers had settled the score was 9-2 in favor of the high-flying Wings from Whitby.

The second game of the series will be played at Oshawa on Friday night, starting at 7 p. m. with the third game scheduled for Memorial Arena here on Monday night next.

Flyers were shorthanded. "Pop" Middleton, Bullock and Lawlor were not in uniform; the first pair being absent due to official duties, while Lawlor boasts one of the best "shiners" seen in these parts for some time. He tried, 'tis said, to stop a flying stick, when the Flyers won a startling victory over the powerful Gananoque squad by an 8-5 score on Monday night. He may not see action for at least a week.

The Redwings, aided and abetted most admirably by a newly acquisitioned front line from Bowmanville, Messrs. Gilhooley, Yourth and Yuille were full value for the victory. They had a husky hard-checking defence with forward lines that skated both ways and checked Bob Thompson's Flyers off their feet in practically the entire game.

Hard-checking Game

It was a heavy-checking bruising stayle of hockey wtih both teams using the torsos to good effect. Referee Ken McNaught however kept the boys well in hand, dishing out seven penalties, four of them going to the winners.

It was a case of a good team doing everything right and the opposition doing the opposite.

Whitby by clicking on all wings while Flyers at times were mediocre in their efforts to get organized. It was fast, though roysterous hockey for the first two periods, then the Flyers became more or less disintegrated and the ramping Wings flew through to score six goals that almost turned the game into a rout.

Without deteriorating from the fine performance staged by the Wings, Flyers were away below their usual form. Perhaps they had given too much to that Gananoque victory. But in any event if last night's Whitby performance is a criterion, these Wings will be tough to beat at any time. And Flyers must need be at full strength and in fine fettle if they intend winning group honors.

It was good hockey, as was said before for two periods. Whitby grabbed a 2-1 first period lead on goals from Furey and Heffering, with Nicky Sargent, diminutive Flyers centre, firing home the lone Flyer goal. It was better hockey in the second with Gilhooley whamming home the rubber from J. Burkhart for the only goal of the period. Play roughened considerably in this frame with four penalties handed out by officials.

Lowe Scores Three

Gilhooley started the third-period fireworks at the two-minute mark. Lowe, Whitby forward, flashed into sudden brilliant form and fired home a hat-trick trio of goals in the next five minutes of play. Yuille and Dalby added two more and with ten seconds to go McLeod got the second Flyer marker.

The hero of the piece was young Mr. Keays, Flyers goalie. Time after time he outguessed the rampaging Wings' forwards and stopped enough rubber to insulate the "Queen Mary". Lowe with three goals was another star with Messrs. Gilhooley, Yuille, Yourth, and the Burkhart brothers standing out for the Wings.

Nicky Sargent, McLeod, Ault, Sherman and Brackenbury turned in a good job for Flyers with Hughes doing well in the thumping division.

The teams:

Whitby — Goal, P. Burkhardt; defence, Heffering, Gilhooley; centre, Yuille; wings, Dalby, Dilling; subs, Lowe, Furey, Gourth, McCoy, J. Burkhardt, B. Burkhardt, Bird, L. Yuille, Cliff Mayne.

Trenton Flyers — Goal, Keays; defence, Robertson, McLeod; centre, Sargent; wings, Miller, Brackenbury; subs, Sherman, O'Connell, Ault, Anderson, O'Meara, Pendergast, Pelessier, R. Jackson, Hughes.

Summary:

1st Period

1. Whitby, Furey (Heffering) 8.20
2. Whitby, Heffering (Gilhooley) 14.50
3. R.C.A.F., Sargent (Miller) 18.40

Penalties — J. Burkhardt, B. Burkhardt.

2nd Period

4. Whitby, Gilhooley (J. Burkhardt) 11.40

Penalties—Ault, Lowe, Hughes, Miller.

3rd Period

5. Whitby, Gilhooley (Furey, Gourth) 2.40
6. Whitby, Lowe (Bird, Gourth) 3.40
7. Whitby, Lowe 7.06
8. Whitby, Lowe (Gilhooley) 8.50
9. Whitby, Yuille (Mayne) 11.40
10. Whitby, Dalby (Dilling, Yuille) 12.30
11. R.C.A.F., McLeod (Sargent) 19.50

Penalty — Yuille.

Officials — Referee, Ken McNaught; linesman, V. Goyer.

Barber Trims Auto Dealer

(Memphis Commercial Appeal)

We were slightly amused by the barber's recital of how he evened the score with the automobile dealer. It seems the dealer came in for a shave, and after he was settled in the chair discovered he also was getting a haircut.

"All I want is a shave," he protested.

"Ya gotta get a haircut if you want a shave," the barber snarled. "I didn't want that spotlight on the car you sold me, but you made me take it."

A few minutes later the automobile man's hand was gripped gently but firmly. "No manicure," he yelped.

"If you want a shave, you want a manicure," the barber insisted. "Remember those gadgets I had to take?"

Shoe shine, hair singe, massage and shampoo followed, the dealer bitter but subdued. All he wanted was a shave.

WOLVES BOW TO CZECHS

Brna, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 24—(CP) — Sudbury Wolves, Canada's touring hockey team, bowed to a Czech team from Brno Wednesday night, 4-3.

The Canadians, who came to Czechoslovakia after finishing second in the world championships at Stockholm, won their first match of a Czech tour 6-4 Tuesday night at Bratislava.

Jim Russell scored two of the Canadian goals Wednesday night and Bill Dimock added the other.

Manitoba Chalks Up Fourth Win In School Spiel

(By The Canadian Press)

Manitoba chalked up its fourth straight victory Wednesday night in the Canadian High School curling championship, defeating the only other previously unbeaten rink, Ontario 8-6. In other games, Saskatchewan nosed out Quebec 9-8 and British Columbia defeated the North West Territories 11-9. Alberta, the seventh rink in the tournament, had a bye. Main interest was centred in the Manitoba-Ontario match as both foursomes previously boasted three victories against no losses. In four round play, Manitoba chalked up their third victory by defeating Alberta 12-9. Ontario turned in victory No. 3 by downing the previously unbeaten Saskatchewan entry 13-8.

The Ontario entry, from Dryden High School and skipped by Ray Cook, took full advantage of Saskatchewan misplay to earn the decision.

At Mont Tremblant, Que., the highest of the Laurentian slopes was reported today in great shape for the Dominion downhill, slalom and combined ski championships Saturday and Sunday. W. and J. Georgas represent Owen Sound, Ont.

A spring stake schedule listing 21 major races on the flat and over hurdles was announced Monday for Belmont Park, with $47,500 pared from purses as compared with a year ago.

Brooklyn Dodgers added the 11th Negro baseball player to their organization Wednesday when they signed James Edward Pendleton, 23-year-old right-handed hitting shortstop. The player was assigned to St. Paul of the American Association.

Promoter Raoul Godbtut announced at Montreal Monday that the bout between Canadian welterweight champion Johnny Greco and Beau Jack, scheduled for March 14, has been postponed one week to March 21 at the request of Jack's handlers. It was the second postponement of the fight, which will be the fourth meeting between Greco and Jack. Jack, former world lightweight king, won twice and drew in the previous bouts. Meanwhile, Greco left Wednesday for Toronto where he will taper off training for his non-title fight with Pete Zaduk next Tuesday night.

Tempers flared and fists flew Wednesday night as Windsor's Assumption College Purple Raiders racked up their 16th basketball victory of the season by defeating Detroit Institute of Technology 50-42. It was Assumption's sixth straight win.

Officials of Kitchener Greenshirts in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B loop Wednesday night protested their game against Hamilton Aerovox last Monday when Aerovox defeated them 4-3. Coach Lloyd Grass said that the referees allowed the time clock to run during a penalty shot which resulted in his team losing three minutes of play The Greenshirts lead the best-of-seven series 2-1.

Will Call Up Two Players From Marlboros

Toronto, Feb. 24. (CP)—Managing Director Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs said Wednesday night that the injury-riddled National Hockey League Club expects to have two players from the Senior Amateur Marlboros in the line-up against Chicago Black Hawks here Saturday.

Expected to join the big league club, for one game at least, are Ray Hannigan and John McLellan of the Senior Dukes. Plans involving two members of the Junior Amateur St. Michael's College were dropped after Wednesday's workout.

Vic Lynn, one of four Maple Leaf forwards injured last week-end may be in condition to play Saturday, said Smythe. Lynn however will need a helmet to protect a head wound if he gets in the line-up.

Honus Wagner 75 Years Old

Carnegie, Pa., Feb. 24. (AP)—Baseball's "Mr. Shortstop" today celebrated 75 years of living.

Bandy -legged, barrel-chested Honus Wagner said he'd "stay in baseball as long as it will have me."

The "Flying Dutchman" retired from the playing ranks in 1917 after a 21-year major-league career. Most of his marks still stand—tribute to the bulking shortstop the late John McGraw called the "greatest player in baseball history."

Honus went back to baseball in 1932 as a scout and coach for his beloved Pittsburgh Pirates.

"It still is great to be alive," Honus declared. "I feel the same but the years seem to go by more quickly."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Along the Beach

Manager along Jacobs Beach say Sandy Saddler will never get Willie Pep in the same ring with him again. . .Charley Johnston, Saddler's manager, is resting up his ex-feather king . . . Harry Markson, the able and busy managing director of the 20th Century Sporting Club, hopes to get Marcel Cerdan to fill in his April 1 Garden date in a non-title affair. It's Markson's only open Garden date before the circus moves into town. . . If the middleweight champ can't make it here in time he'll probably box for Larry Atkins in Cleveland later in the month. . . One reason for Joe DiMaggio's popularity (besides his big bat), is his easily recognizable faces. . . his long, sharp beak stands out. How many current ball players would you recognize if you met them in the street?

Cleveland Barons In Second-Place Tie With Hornets

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons moved into a second place tie with Pittsburgh Hornets in the western division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night when they overwhelmed the Springfield Indians 7-1.

In other games Wednesday night, Hershey rolled to an 8-4 victory over Philadelphia Rockets and Buffalo Bisons upset Indianapolis Capitals 5-1.

Pete Leswick scored his 32nd and 33rd goals of the season to pace the Cleveland attack while Thomas (Red) Williams, Ken Schultz, Bob Solinger, Bob Carse and Johnny Black each scored once. Johnny Holota had four assists. Doug McMurdy tallied the lone Springfield goal.

Hershey improved their second-place position in the eastern division by their victory over Philadelphia.

Andy Branigan scored early in the first period for the Bears, but the Rockets tied the count on Sam Mulholland's goal and pushed out in front on two more by George Defelice and Harry Pidhirny before the end of the session.

The Bears let loose their heavy artillery with five goals in the second period and two more in the finale. Norm Larson and Mark Marquess led the attack, each with two goals, while Silvio Bettio, Frank Mario and Gordie Bruce added single counters.

Phil Hergesheimer of the Rockets notched the 245th goal of his A. H. L. career.

At Buffalo, the Bisons took a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Ab DeMarco and Joe Levandoski. Murdo MacKay of the Bisons and Calum MacKay of the Caps each scored in the middle session and Floyd Curry and Joe Lund added the fourth and fifth Buffalo counters in the final session.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Ed Kryzanowski and Paul Ronty, Boston, who each picked up two scoring points as Bruins edged New York 3-2.

Hard of Hearing But Has Good Time With Boys

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP)—All the shouting in the dressing room after Maple Leafs of the N. H. L. worked out Wednesday was because they were talking to their oldest fan.

Alfred Veale, 90, is hard of hearing but he had a good time with the boys. He lives at Nestleton, 15 miles north of Oshawa, but moves here with a daughter every winter so he won't miss the Leaf home games — he hasn't missed one in 12 years.

His favorite player, centre Ted Kennedy, said he hoped Veale would be coming to see the Leafs for another 90 years. Coach Clarence Day shouted "You never coached a hockey team or you'd never have reached 90."

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 24 (AP)—Alan Ladd, back at work after a European jaunt and an illness, will stick to action in his movie career.

Looking fit after his convalescence, Alan has a role similar to his first big break in "This Gun for Hire." The film is "After Midnight" and is full of action. That's okay with him.

"I talked to theatre men in England and France when I was over there," he says. "And they preferred to show action pictures. Anyone can understand a fight even if he doesn't know the language."

Ladd also keeps busy with his transcription firm, which produces four air shows, one with him. The company is keeping an eye on television he adds.

Groucho No Slouch

Groucho Marxs is going to be a grandfather for the second time. His son and daughter-in-law are expecting another child. Grandpa Marx also has a daughter 2 1-2 years old and is planning to take her to the zoo this week. "They will be the first animals she's seen, outside of my relatives," he said....

Groucho tells me he's slowing down this year. In 1948 he wrote and rewrote a play, took it to New York, did two pictures, his air show and eight guest shows. "That's too much for a grandfather," says he....

Out of the Mothballs

Hollywood press members will have to start dusting off their soup and fish attire. They'll be the majority of the audience at the austere academy awards event and the thing will be formal. Larry Parks and Al Jolson keep getting mail intended for the other. So they have agreed to meet once a week to exchange the mis-directed mail ....

Howard Keel is in training for the lead opposite Judy Garland in "Annie Get Your Gun." The six-feet-three fugitive from the London "Oklahoma!" Company weighs 193 pounds. The studio wants him trimmed to 183.

FOR SCIENTIFIC STUDY

Rare Arctic herrings, too scarce in number to destroy by dissection, have been radiographed in Canada for study of their skeletal structures.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No telling what some cities would do without the Minnie Joneses. Tending store, keeping house, and goodness knows what else, are side stuff. She is always being drafted on some committee or other.

There is one in every community. At least one. Her capacity for taking on a variety of duties is prodigious. No man could stand so much of so many things so many times.

My lecture in any city is under the sponsorship of some local club group. Always their profit from it is for a charitable or other worthy purpose. Much advance work is done by them.

They need a capable chairman and chief whatchamaycallit. Times are when their presiding officers are too busy with other matters. Who do they get? What is their call? "Oh, Min!"

Min also has time for a bridge game with me after lecture. She may not even play a good game, if any. But in many cases she does. As when she was south in this deal:

♠8 4 3
♥A Q 4
♦10 9 7
♣Q 7 5 3

WEST
♦6 5 3
♣K 9 8 4 2

EAST
♠Q J 10 7 2
♥J 10 8 3
♣J 10 6

SOUTH
♥K 6 5 2
♦A K Q J 4 2
♣A

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 D	1 NT
3 D	4 D
5 D	Pass

The south jump on the second round promised eight tricks. Why? The jump guarantees tricks enough for a game. A responder shows three. To make 11, south must have the balance.

Although north promised three in the first response, it was not with a raise. The raise from three to four consumed the third trick.

West took two spades and led the third. If trumps are pulled, what happens to the clubs? And what about the south fourth heart? Yah. What about that heart? You tell me.

Driver Remanded

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — Virgil Barkman, 43-year-old Toronto barber, Wednesday was remanded to March 2 on a charge of manslaughter. Barkman gave himself up to police as the driver of the car that killed Robert Miller and injured his fiancee, model Helen Billson.

He gave himself up after a widespread weekend search for the driver of the car that failed to stop after hitting the couple as they were returning from a dance.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ED ROMAINE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Feb. 24 (CP) — Signor Primo Carnero, one-time ambling alp of the boxing world and now a big attraction in the wrestling trade, is a possible example of the worm turning and making a tidy profit of it.

It looks that way to a Canadian sports writer who visited the former world heavyweight champion is San Francisco and had some illusions rudely jolted.

Following his visit, Reg (Vancouver Province) Moir writes:

"I never got over the initial shock of finding Carnera is not the mountain of lard and stupidity I had been led to believe."

Allaring Alp

"It took me about half-an-hour to find that I had met a man who had a sense of humor, and a disposition to be exceedingly obliging to reporters — even if they come from Canada."

Reg says the big man still has a voice that seems to come out of a cave but he has mastered enough English to get along without much trouble.

"Carnera now is earning between $2,500 and $5,000 a week. He keeps most of it and figures that in about three years he'll be wealthy."

Painful Past

Carnera returned to his native Italy in 1936 after a boxing career in the United States that produced a lot of adverse publicity.

He was allegedly swindled of most of his money and was plastered with the most derogatory adjectives sports writers could lay their typewriter on.

"The pooblic," Moir quotes Carnera as saying, "ees fonny. Today you beeg bom, tomorrow beeg star."

Found Unconscious In Hatch After Many Days

London, Feb. 24 — (Reuters)— A bearded, barefooted man, believed to be a Pole, was found almost unconscious aboard the freighter Sheaf Field at Salford, England, early Wednesday, six hours after dockers had begun unloading timber.

For 11 days on the voyage from Poland the crew heard knocks from the hatch where the man was found, and dockers began work last night to trace the tappings.

Bacon was found in the small space in which he had hidden himself, but there was no container for water. He is believed to have been there for at least 14 days.

CHRYSLER PRODUCTS UPPED

Detroit, Feb. 24—(AP)—Chrysler Corporation Wednesday announced price increases averaging 6.66 per cent on its new Plymouth, De Soto, Dodge and Chrysler models.

All the new models have been completely redesigned. Chrysler Corporation reported an outlay of $90,000,000 in developing and retooling for the new cars.

The new Dodge models go on display in dealer showrooms tomorrow. They will be followed in the next few weeks by the new De Sotos, Chryslers and Plymouths.

Arab Countries Will Follow Egypt's Example

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 24 — (AP) — The signing of the Israeli - Egyptian armistice at Rhodes appeared today to have removed the last major obstacle to a lasting Palestine peace.

The other Arab countries were expected to follow Egypt's example and sign similar agreements in the immediate future. This would leave only the question of converting the temporary agreements into a permanent treaty of peace.

The armistice was signed just a little more than 22 months after Britain called on the United Nations to tackle the job of settling the Holy-Land problem.

It is debatable just how much the U.N. had to do with settling the Palestine question and how much was contributed by Jewish arms. The final settlement, at any rate, is likely to follow closely the boundary lines laid out by the U. N. General Assembly in the Palestine partition plan of Nov. 29, 1947.

Aubrey S. Eban, Israel representative at the U.N., said the armistice "represents a significant achievement for the United Nations."

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, former United States representative at the U.N., was more cautious about giving the world organization full credit. He said, however, that the situation might have been much worse if the U.N. had not intervened.

Both Jews and Arabs carefully avoided claiming victory, but it was apparent the Israeli people here were jubilant. An examination of the long agreement seemed to indicate the Egyptians made more concessions than the Israelis.

One question not yet answered is how the population of Egypt and other Arab countries will react to the armistice, which in effect amounts to factual recognition of the State of Israel.

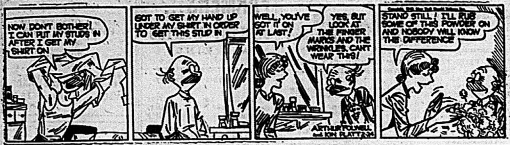
MR and Mrs. — By Arthur Folwell—Ellison Hoover



NOW DON'T BOTHER! I CAN PUT MY STUDS IN AFTER I GET MY SHIRT ON GOT TO GET MY HAND UP UNDER MY SHIRT IN ORDER TO GET THIS STUD IN WELL, YOU'VE GOT IT ON AT LAST!
YES, BUT LOOK AT THE FINGER MARKS AND THE WRINKLES. CAN'T WEAR THIS!
STAND STILL! I'LL RUB SOME OF THIS POWDER ON AND NOBODY WILL KNOW THE DIFFERENCE

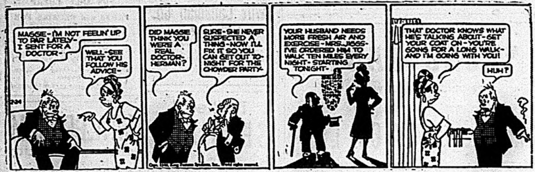
BRINGING UP FATHER—By George McManus



MAGGIE-I'M NOT FEELIN' UP TO PAR LATELY-I SENT FOR A DOCTOR-
WELL-SEE THAT YOU FOLLOW HIS ADVICE-
DID MAGGIE THINK YOU WERE A REAL DOCTOR-HERMAN?
SURE-SHE NEVER SUSPECTED A THING-NOW I'LL FIX IT SO YOU CAN GET OUT TO-NIGHT FOR THE CHOWDER PARTY-
YOUR HUSBAND NEEDS MORE FRESH AIR AND EXERCISE-MRS. JIGGS-I'VE ORDERED HIM TO WALK TEN MILES EVERY NIGHT-STARTING TONIGHT-THAT DOCTOR KNOWS WHAT HE'S TALKING ABOUT-GET YOUR COAT ON-YOU'RE GOING FOR A LONG WALK-AND I'M GOING WITH YOU!
HUH?

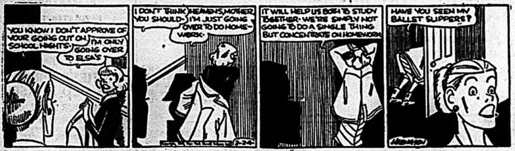
PENNY

By Harry Haenigsen



YOU KNOW I DON'T APPROVE OF YOUR GOING OUT ON SCHOOL NIGHTS-
I'M ONLY GOING OVER TO ELSA'S
I DON'T THINK YOU SHOULD-
HEAVENS, MOTHER I'M JUST GOING OVER TO DO HOME-WORK-
IT WILL HELP US BOTH TO STUDY TOGETHER-WE'RE SIMPLY NOT GOING TO DO A SINGLE THING BUT CONCENTRATE ON HOMEWORK
HAVE YOU SEEN MY BALLET SLIPPERS?

Little Benny's Note Book

The dentist pulled pop's tooth out by extraction this afternoon, and ma was waiting for him to come home, saying, Oh dear, he'll probably feel like mizzery personified, with his face still full of novocaine and everything, and Mrs. Hewes is particulilly counting on us to go over and play bridge this evening, oh dear. Well I wont even ask him how he feels till after dinner, she said.

Which she didn't, cooking liver and onions in his special honor, andafter dinner he was sitting in his private chair feeling his face with the ends of fingers every once in a white as if he wasn't sure it was still there or not, and ma said, Well William, it must be a nice feeling of good riddance to know your tooth is out. It must be a great relief, she said.

My dear, you have no idea, pop said. I feel as happy as the souse at the New Year celebration who wants to climb up with the orch-[illegible] and [illegible] the drum. I can hardly restrain myself from using the wall for a drum and my head for a drum stick, he said, and ma said, Oh dear.

I feel like a lark, pop said. I could shake the house with sutch a riotous volume of sound that the naybors would break in with a policeman. I could fill the whole place with silverf music by smashing all the lite bulbs with an umbrella as I leeped hither andyon with gay abandon, he said and ma said, All rite, all rite, I understand. Dont go into any deeper explinations for land sake. At least I hope yon injoyed your liver and onions, she said.

When was that? ppo said, and ma said Oh dear, I think I'd better telefone.

Which she did, telling Mrs. Hews they wouldn't be over on account of pop not feeling quite normal.

IT'S A CINCH RUSTY DIDN'T GET IN THIS HOUSE! IT'S NOT OCCUPIED. AND IT'S LOCKED UP TIGHT!
LET'S HAVE A LOOK AT THE OUTBUILDINGS THERE'S A BARN--AND A SHED!
MEANWHILE THE HIGH WIND HAS DRIFTED THE SNOW ALMOST TO THE ROOF OF THE SHED WHERE RUSTY IS.
GOOD NIGHT, TEX! NO USE LOOKING HERE! HE COULDN'T HAVE GOTTEN IN HERE WITH A BULLDOZER!
I'M AFRAID YOU'RE RIGHT, PARDNER!
MR. MILES, IF TEX CALLED YOU FROM HALL'S GAP, THE VAN MUST BE SOMEWHERE ON THIS STRETCH OF HIGHWAY
IT WOULD SEEM SO, BUT THE POLICE SAY IT POSITIVELY DID NOT COME THROUGH HERE!

Cocktail Parties Overdone

The social capers of the nation's capital are under fire.

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon launched a depth bomb into every suspended cocktail glass in the city with his attack on that fabulous institution known as the Washington cocktail party, Josephine Ripley writes from Washington to the Christian Science Monitor.

Too Many Parties

Too many high government officials spend too much money on too much high living, the outspoken legislator charged from the floor of the Senate. They give too many cocktail parties and go to too many, in his opinion.

These sentiments have found a few plaintiff echoes in party-going Washington. Freshman Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois who is just being initiated into the capital social and legislative whirl, finds that the cocktail hour in Washington often extends to such proportions that it interferes with his work in Congress.

Former Undersecretary of the Treasury A.L.M. Wiggins has spoken his mind on the subject in positive terms. Government officials can't cover the cocktail circuit and still do their work properly, he maintains.

To representative Keefe of Wisconsin, cocktail party bids pose no problem at all. "Just say no" is his solution.

From the usual attendance at Washington cocktail parties, it is apparent, however, that the "noes" are a small minority.

Caterers here serve on an average four big cocktail parties daily around the calendar. At the height of the social season, the avid party-goer may take in as many as three, winding up at a dinner party at eight.

Embassy affairs are the most colorful. These are usually given in honor of visiting celebrities. Diplomatic courtesy assures a large and select attendance.

But such functions are not run-of-the-mill. The majority of Washington cocktail parties are on a less formal level. The occasion may be a visiting governor whom a congressman wishes to honor. Or a prominent social hostess may pay tribute to a high government official.

Cocktail parties are often used as a means of paying back social obligations en masse. Then there are the astute public relations specialists who feature cocktails as a method of luring the press to interviews.

Better Company

Newspaper people are attracted to cocktail parties mainly because they think they may see some high officials with whom it would be useful for them to talk. And high officials go because they feel they may meet some of the newspaper people by whom it would be worth while to be quoted.

Other officials may be drawn to these occasions because they figure they may meet some bigwigs in a higher echelon with whom it would be good to be seen.

Another classification of party-goers is the in-and-outer. This is usually a busy official who hasn't time for the cocktail interval but who feels that for political or professional reasons he ought "to show" at the event. Pleading pressing engagements he puts in an appearance only briefly, declines the profferred glass, and departs. And his name is properly recorded in the social columns as among those present.

While the non-drinker is the exception at Washington functions, he is not a curiosity by any means, and his tastes are not ignored by the thoughtful hostess. The cocktail table at most parties is stocked with pitchers of tomato or fruit juice for the teetotalers and an independent "tomato juice, please" will often set off a series of "me too's."

Just Grape Juice

A few dauntless hosts about town have the temerity to trust their social success to non-alcoholic liquids. Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster of Maine are famed for successful entertaining without benefit of a stimulant more powerful than white grape juice, on which many a newcomer to Brewster affairs has been known to become mildly exhilarated in the belief that he is drinking champagne.

While there is no indication as yet that the recent furore has had any effect on the pace of Washington social life, outbursts such as that of Senator Morse serve to focus a revealing public spotlight on what former Undersecretary Wiggins calls "one of the greatest evils in Washington today."

Animal Twins Used In Dairy Research

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — New Zealand is leading the world in animal husbandry research and pastoral development work in the opinion of the Hon. A. J. Dennett minister of agriculture in Victoria Austrialia. He recently spent a month visiting the Dominion's research stations.

Dennett claimed that Dr. C. P. McMeekan, superintendent of the animal research station at Ruakura, and Dr. E. Bruce Levy, director of the grasslands division of the department of scientific and industrial research, have become world figures and are due for much wider acclaim overseas.

Already the work done with identical twins in animal research at Ruakura has produced remarkable results and the method is being copied in several overseas countries. The basis of the method is that as identical twins have the same genetical background, and differences which appear when the twins are separated and managed under different conditions are due to environment. Exhaustive tests have shown a high degree of concordance.

In the last five years 200 sets of identical twins have been assembled at Ruakura for dairy cattle improvement investigations. In butter-fat production tests it has been shown that one set of identical twins will give results as accurate as could be obtained with two groups of 50 cows selected at random. It will also be possible to solve problems within five years which would take scores of years by other methods.

New Zealand's grassland research work has resulted in large areas of country having a remarkable stock-carrying capacity. Visiting farmers often think that sheep in the fields have been specially mustered whereas they are actually the normal number of animals that feed off the area all the year round.

Grassland management discoveries are being applied with increasing effect to areas which were previously unproductive, resulting in the opening up of country which for various reasons was thought incapable of carrying stock.

Imported Spuds Drug on Market

London — (CP) — Importation of Eire potatoes to build up reserves was followed by a heavy British crop in 1948, and a loss of £206,250 ($825,000) to the British treasuury.

Food Minister Strachey told a questioner in the Commons that this loss would be incurred on a purchase of 30,000 tons of Eire potatoes last year. Bought at about £10 a ton the potatoes are being sold to alcohol factories at £3 to £4.

The offer to buy Eire potatoes was made in February, 1948, after a serious shortage had been experienced during the earlier winter months But when the British crop was harvested it was 12,000,000 tons, 4,000,000 more than in 1947.

Thousands of tons of potatoes were used for feed. Other similar losses were caused last spring when potatoes bought on the continent were not needed and later were shipped to Germany.

Minister Admits Crimes Against Bulgarian State

15 Accused of Treason, Black Market Money Dealing

Sofia, Feb. 25 (AP)—The trial of 15 Protestant churchmen opened today with a plea of guilty by Nikola Naumov, a Baptist minister, to crimes against the Bulgarian state.

The 15 clergymen are accused of treason, espionage and black-market money dealing.

Naumov is one of the four principal defendants as a member of the Supreme Council of the United Evangelical Churches.

Speaking in a loud, firm voice, he told the court "I am guilty," and expressed regret for his activities.

He then went into a two-hour discourse on his actions which the government alleges are treasonable.

Worked For Agents

Dressed in his black clerical suit, Naumov began his testimony.

He said he had worked for American espionage agents and had delivered military and other information to Cyril Black, then secretary of the United States Political Mission.

He said Black was "the centre of American espionage activities in Bulgaria after 1944."

(Black now is a professor at Princeton University in the United States. He previously has declared the charges were "fantastic.")

Naumov said he began collecting information for the western powers in 1938 at the time of the visit of a man named Sielbrant from Vienna, then in charge of inspection of religious functions. He said Sielbrant entrusted him with the task of collecting military, economic and political information, including the movements of troops, boundary fortifications and movements of military trains.

Arranged to Report

He said that in 1944 he visited Yanko Ivanov, a Methodist defendant, and they arranged to report to Black.

PACKERS' PROFIT 1-2 CENT POUND SAYS MEMBER

Did Not Materially Increase Cost - of - Living Liberal States

Toronto, Feb. 25 —(CP)— Ontario's cost of living was not materially increased by the meat-packing industry's profit of "not more than ½-cent a pound," J. G. Brown (Lib.-Waterloo North) told the legislature yesterday.

Other speakers yesterday were Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East) only woman member of the legislature, S. J. Hunt (PC-Renfrew North) and W. W. Walker (Lib-Welland).

The throne-speech debate next Tuesday begins what will probably be its last week with an address by Eamon Park (CCF-Toronto Dovercourt). Today and Monday the House will consider government bills.

Mr. Brown said that, considering the possibility of excessively high executive salaries, over-estimated depreciation costs, and expensive advertising, which would have the effect of reducing real profit, packing companies still made less than half a cent profit on each pound of meat.

Living standards could double or shrink depending on whether the trend of government was to "personal enterprise" or "tyrannical socialism." Socialism might be "dished up as the watered-down variety" of the C.C.F. or "in the concentrated form" of the Communists. One meant "immediate death," the other "creeping paralysis."

Miss Macphail, who said she was "a Democratic Socialist or a Social Democrat and proud of it" described the Progressive Conservatives as "the greatest defenders of capitalism. The Liberals "basically" believed in monopoly capitalism but they were "nicer about than the Conservatives" who don't care what methods they use.

In for "Squeeze Play"

The Liberals were in for "the squeeze play" because they could not "out-tory the Tories" or "out-social the Socialists." The day of the "middle-of-the-road" policy ended with former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Old age pensions of $30 a month should be increased to $40 — the amount now paid only in special needy cases, she said.

"I want $40 a month (for old age pensioners) and I want it this session . . ."

Mr. Hunt, answering charges that the government had failed to implement its election promise to assume 50-per-cent of education costs, said it had never been the intention to make equal grants to urban centres such as Windsor and rural communities such as Renfrew North where educational opportunities were necessarily fewer.

Mr. Walker, who described himself as "a Labor man" said workmen's compensation payments should be increased from 66 2/3 per cent of wages to 75. A 100-per-cent payment would be unsound at the present time. Legislation for a 40-hour work week would also be unsound but he would urge it "when and where it is possible."

POLICE CLEAR CROWD OF STUDENTS

Rome, Feb. 25 (Reuters) Police were called yesterday to clear a crowd of students who besieged a Milan girl's school demanding that the girls be allowed to come to a carnival. When their request was refused tried to storm the gates.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)— Synopsis: A storm over Georgian Bay this morning is causing rain over southeastern Ontario, snowflurries in southwestern Ontario and continuous snow across the northeastern section of the province. As this storm continues eastward into Quebec during the day cooler air will sweep in from the north and bringing slowly clearing skies and marked falls in temperature.

File $100,000 Suit Against Obstetrician

Toledo, O., Feb. 25 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Golvin of Toledo yesterday filed suit for $100,000 against Dr. A. H. Steinberg, an obstetrician, claiming that a daughter born to Mrs. Volcin had been replaced with another girl at the hospital.

Former Square-Rigged Master 102 Years Old

North Kingstown, R. I., Feb. 25 (AP)—Capt. Stephen A. Bissett, a native of Saint John, N.B., celebrated his 102nd birthday yesterday. A former square-rigged master who followed the sea for more than 60 years, he first entered the United States during the Civil War.

Rights to Vast Mingan Holdings Obtained for Less Than $50,000

Quebec, Feb. 25. (CP)—Ownership rights to the Seigniory de Mingan, one of the last remaining links with Quebec's feudal past and 288 years old today, once were purchased for less than $50,000. What the land itself cost is not known.

The vast holdings, stretching for 150 miles along the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and six miles deep, now are owned by the Labrador Company of Montreal, although Martin's Bank of Liverpool, England, holds 100 per cent of the shares.

The Quebec government has taken steps to expropriate the Seigniory at a price ranging between $900,000 and $3,000,000.

An English biscuit-maker from London, who recently said he had a claim on Mingan, estimated its worth at $100,000,000.

It all started back on Feb. 25, 1661, when Francois Bissot became the first Seigneur de Mingan. He was granted the lands by the "Western Indies Company" which held title rights from the King of France to the territory extending from Tadoussac to the Atlantic.

Bissot left Mingan to his son-in-law, Louis Jolliet, famous explorer of the Great Lakes and the Upper Mississippi. It remained solidly with the Jolliets and Bissots for more than 100 years.

Then it started to fall into may hands. Records of transactions fill volumes in the provincial archives. To complicate matters, original documents disappeared ,leaving owners without a proper claim to their portions.

Just prior to the turn of the 19th century, no less than a score of people claimed ownership to "fraction" of the territory.

Ownership became so muddled and complex that protracted court skirmishes ensued.

Finally the muddle reached the Privy Council in England whose appeal decision in 1892 paved the way for the province to come to an "agreement" with the Labrador Company.

By the agreement, signed at Montreal in 1900, the Labrador Company obtained township rights for $26,000 and subsequent payments of $1,000 a year for 15 years, a total of $41,000 in all. Presumably, the company previously had bought up all the title rights.

Meanwhile a Privy Council judicial committee had set the boundaries of the Seigniory as they stand today,

Dorion Denies Client Collaborated With Nazis

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Count Jacques Duge de Bernonville, one of the six alleged French collaborators in Canada, was described in the Commons yesterday as a political refugee worthy of asylum in this country.

Frederic Dorion (Ind-Charlevoix-Saguenay), counsel for the Count, denied that his client had collaborated with the Nazis during the war and said there was uncontested evidence that de Bernonville had assisted the Allies.

De Bernonville was a political refugee and not a common-law criminal, said Mr. Dorion, one of eight speakers to participate in continued debate on the throne speech.

Other speakers included Rev. J. H. Matthews (CCF-Kootenay East), Rene Jutras (L-Provencher), J. A. Murphy (PC-Sarnia), Leopold Langlois (L-Gaspe), A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West), E. G. McCullough (CCF-Assiniboia), and Patrick Ashby (PC-Edmonton East).

They did not touch on the question of the alleged collaborators. They mainly criticized government policy or demanded changes in policies. Some asked for special assistance for their own constituencies.

Government Lost $866,271 On Butter Imports

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP)—The government lost approximately $866,271 on butter imports last year, it was disclosed Thursday in a return tabled in the Commons for Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton).

The average total cost, including all handling and other charges, of the 15,680,000 pounds of butter imported, amounted to 73.47 cents a pound. It was sold by the crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corporation to the butter trade at an average of 67.99 cents a pound.

Imports included 2,240,000 lbs. each from New Zealand and Australia, and 11,200,000 pounds from Denmark.

The price to Australia was 67.50 a pound, to New Zealand 67.43 a pound and to Denmark 71.21 a pound.

Veteran Actor Plays His Last Stage Part

Hollywood, Feb. 25 (AP)—Roman Bohnen, 48-year-old veteran stage and screen character actor, collapsed and died last night as the curtain fell on the second act of a play in which he was appearing. His death took place at the Actor's Lab Theatre, an experimental dramatic group. The play was "Distant Isle."

Netherlands' Future Action In East Indies to be Made Public Saturday in Batavia

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 25 — (CP)—The Netherlands-Republican conflict in the rich East Indies is expected soon to reach a turning-point.

"Important decisions" on The Netherlands' future action in the area, which she has ruled for 500 years, are to be made public Saturday in Batavia.

And before March 1 an on-the-spot commission sent out by the United Nations is to make recommendations for settlement of the dispute. It will also describe what action has been taken by both parties to comply with a cease-fire order issued by the Security Council.

After four years' warfare, the Republicans continue to harry Dutch troops with guerilla tactics by which they apparently hope to gain a better position in future negotiations.

This is the position of the two parties:

The Netherlands says she wants to "promote the freedom of Indonesia in order to create a sovereign federation of Indonesia linked in voluntary and equal partnership with the Kingdom of The Netherlands." This ideal is hampered, the Dutch contend, by the Indonesian Republic's demands for conditions which would allow it to dominate the other states in the proposed union.

Won't Give Up Army Control

The Republic says it is willing to join a United States of Indonesia, but not while the Dutch insist that the Republic give up control of its own army and economic affairs.

Scene of the conflict is a string of islands stretching 3,200 miles across the Indian and Pacific Oceans. About 72,000,000 persons, including 250,000 Europeans, inhabit a land area about the size of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta combined.

Sumatra, two-thirds the size of Manitoba, is the largest island. But a majority of the population —about 48,000,000—lives on Java and Madura.

In this lush, tropical area is concentrated great wealth in oil, rubber, tin manganese, bauxite, gold and agricultural products.

Before the Dutch started "police action" in 1947, the Republicans were reported to control about 220,000 square miles of the total area of 735,000 square miles. Impartial observers estimated the population in Republican territory was about 53,000,000.

GAVE SHELTER TO GOUZENKOS FROM RED POLICE

Mrs. Frances D. Elliott Dies, Health Had Been Long Deteriorating

Ottawa, Feb. 25 ,(CP)— The woman who provided shelter for Igor Gouzenko and his family the night he fled from Soviet Secret Police died in hospital here today after a long illness.

She was Mrs. Frances Doris Elliott, wife of an unemployment Insurance Commission official. In her 55th year she had been ill with leukemia for the last several years.

Despite deteriorating health, she played an active part in the spy trials which resulted when Gouzenko, a Soviet embassy cipher clerk, informed the RCMP of Russian espionage work in Canada.

Knowing the risk she ran in sheltering the Gouzenkos she offered her apartment to them one night in September 1945, when Russian embassy staff members broke into the Gouzenko apartment and found him gone.

It was she who flicked her bathroom light to signal Ottawa police on the street below that the Russians had broken into the Gouzenko apartment.

Sense of Duty Accelerated Illness

Doctors believe her dutiful attendance at the trials of Montreal suspects in the spy investigation accelerated her illness.

Quotes Dennis Sorry He Did Not Take MD's Advice

Boston, Feb. 25. (AP)—A police captain today quoted a Canadian now held in New York on burglary charges as saying he wished he had taken the advice of one of his victims who suggested his seek hospital treatment.

The advice was given to Gerard Graham Dennis, formerly of St. Catharines, Toronto and Montreal, by Dr. James L. Peppen during a 1947 hold-up at the Poppen home here, Police Capt. Joseph P. Mahoney said.

Mahoney reported he questioned Dennis at White Plains, N.Y., yesterday. The man asked him to take a letter to Dr. Poppen expressing regret for the hold-up which netted him $49. Dennis has been accused of jewel robberies totalling $600,000 in the United States, Montreal and Toronto.

The police captain quoted the letter as saying: "I wanted to take your advice (to seek hospital treatment) but I couldn't. I was a hunted man."

In Beverley Hills, Calif., Betty Ritchie, Canadian girl friend of Dennis, is scheduled to face preliminary hearing today on charges of receiving stolen property.

CANADIANS CITED FOR WORK IN RESCUE OF FIVE

Four Airmen Are Awarded U. S. Navy's Legion of Merit

Ottawa, Feb. 25. (CP)—Before the end of this year Canadian army officers will serve in the United Kingdom under a new exchange agreement with the British Army, Defence Minister Claxton announced today.

The agreement will bring an equal number of British officers to Canada. Exchange officers will assume duties principally at schools of instruction, research and development establishments, and in staff appointments in either country.

Among Canadians now serving in the U.K., under the new plan: Maj. J. J. Williams, 29, Oshawa; Maj. W. F. Bates, 31, of Hamilton.

British officers now in Ontario: Maj. F. J. W. Moore at Camp Borden; Maj. R. White at Royal Canadian School of Signals, Barriefield; Lt.-Col. P. D. G. Young, at the Canadian Army Staff College, Kingston.

Arctic Ice Knocks Hole in Carrier During Test

On Board H.M.S. Vengeance in the Arctic, Feb. 25 — (Reuters)— Ice knocked a hole 10 inches by six inches in the stem of the bows of this 13,190-ton light aircraft carrier Feb. 15.

This information was released today.

The hole was made at watermark shortly after mid-day. Within 10 minutes about 250 tons of water had flooded the forecastle tank.

Another tank astern ship was deliberately flooded to raise the hole out of the water.

The incident was the outcome of a test to see how warships would stand up to ice.

Approaching picturesque ice barrier off Greenland, Capt. John Terry gave instructions to reduce to a crawling speed of two knots. Thousands of tons of ice were in the vicinity. The Vengeance shuddered as she nosed gently in to the outer fringe of broken ice.

Blocks up to 40 feet across and hanging eight to 20 feet deep moved aside. We passed through the ice and reached a stretch of clear water but on entering a second line of ice the hole was made.

The Vengeance at once returned to open sea and repairs were started.

Captain Terry placed a temporary embargo on publication of these details until the repairs were carried out, to prevent unnecessary alarm in Britain.

The incident occurred about 150 miles northwest of Jan Mayen Island, east of Greenland.

The holing indicates that warships would suffer serious damage if they struck ice at speed.

HAMMERSMITH S. SEAT IS RETAINED BY LABOR GOVT.

Attlee, Cabinet Meet To Map 1950 Election

London, Feb. 25 — (CP)—Jubilant over Labor's latest victory at the polls, Prime Minister Attlee, his cabinet ministers and the party executive left today for the Isle of Wight where they will meet this weekend to map the program for the next general election in 1950.

Attlee and his colleagues are expected to work on the draft in a secret conference. One of the main tasks facing the party leaders is nationalization and how far they can go to include in their program industries beyond fuel, transport and iron and steel, already achieved or promised.

Yesterday Labor won a key test of strength against the Conservatives by keeping their Commons seat in the fiercely - contested Hammersmith South by-election.

Results, announced early today, gave the victorious Labor candidate, Tom Williams, 15,233 votes to 13,610 for his Conservative opponent, Anthony Fell, a Scots engineer who was strongly backed by Winston Churchill.

The by-election was held to fill a vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the recent death of W. T. Adams.

Majority of 1,623

Yesterday William won with a majority of 1,623 votes; in 1945 Adams had 3,548.

GMC Cuts Prices On Automobiles

Detroit, Feb. 25 — (AP) — General Motors announced today a price cut, effective immediately, on all its passenger automobiles, attributing its action in part to wage cuts.

The corporation declared price cuts of $10 to $40.

This was done, a G.M. statement said, "to pass along to consumers the savings resulting from both the downward adjustment of wage and salary payments and the lowered cost of certain material items."

Under its cost-of-living readjustment of wages, G.M. today was given a total savings of an estimated $9,000,000 to $10,000,000 annually in the production workers' payroll.

Fall in Index

This followed from the fall in the United States government's cost-of-living index. The wages of 273,000 hourly-paid workers are tied to the index in a contract with the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.)

G.M. said its price reductions on all passenger cars and on its Chevrolet trucks, were effective immediately.

The reduction in the index, announced last night, costs the affected G.M. employees a two-cent hourly cut in pay.

At Oshawa, W. A. Wecker, President of General Motors of Canada, said: "There is to be no such decrease in wages in our plants in Canada and therefore no corresponding decrease in production costs so a price reduction on products similar to that announced in the United States is not indicated."

'Complete Safecracking Arsenal' Found in Toronto Garage by Police

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—A "complete safecracking arsenal' was uncovered by police today in a West Toronto garage and 50 new automobile license plates and 200 new license registration cards were seized. The discovery followed the arrest of two safecracking suspects on a north side street.

Police said the arsenal, one of the 'most complete" discovered here, included acetylene torches, electric cutters, saws, crowbars and rolls of tape.

Inspector William Cool said "the capture of the two men and recovery of the license plates and cards was an outstanding piece of work." He said the plates and cards were stolen yesterday from a Burlington garage.

"If the licenses and cards were ever circulated through western Ontario... it would have resulted in an epidemic of car stealing and thousands of dollars in loot."

Arrested were Robert Currie, 20, of Toronto, who now faces four major charges, including theft of license plates and cards; and Howard Dodds, 23, charged with vagrancy.

Investigators said they believed the suspects were "casing" a downtown furniture store where "up to $10,000" was kept in a safe.

Currie and Dodds were arrested when a police constable became suspicious of two men in an automobile. One of the pair fled but was captured later.

Currie appeared in court today and was remanded to March 4. No bail was allowed. Dodds was remanded to March 2 on $1,000 bail.

Quebec Govt. Plans Drastic Penalties If Oleo Ban Broken

Proposed Bill Designed To Protect Dairy Industry

Quebec, Feb. 25 (CP)— The Provincial government distributed today to the legislative assembly members copies of a bill to "protect the dairy industry" providing drastic fines or prison terms for manufacture, sales or possession of butter substitutes.

The proposed legislation is designed to "prohibit or regulate the manufacture, sale, placing on sale and possession of margarine and other butter substitutes."

It would authorize the provincial cabinet to adopt regulations specifying the products which will come under the ban and methods of analyzing the butter substitutes.

Permits Seizure

It would permit seizure and confiscation of margarine supplies as well as motor vehicles used for transport and delivery of margarine within the province. It would also authorize the cabinet to draw up further "measures" to apply the margarine ban.

The bill would impose fines from $200 to $500 for first offence by individuals against the proposed ban on manufacture, sale or trade in margarine and second offence fines of $500 to $2,000.

These fines would be tripled in the case of a company infringing the regulations.

Private individuals violating the proposed ban on possession of margarine would be liable to fines from $10 to $50 for a first offence and up to $100 for further offences.

Imprisonment from eight to 30 days on a first offence and up to 90 days for further offences would be imposed for failure to pay fines.

Important Phase Of Housing Act To be Discarded

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP)— An authoritative source said Thursday that because of a "lot of criticism," the government is considering discard of an important phase of the National Housing Act under which veterans acquire new homes through controlled prices.

This was the "integrated housing scheme" started by the government in 1945 when there were fears of inflation and when the veteran's need for new homes was acute.

Under the scheme, made successful through co-operation of both contractors and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, 14,000 low-cost homes were constructed in the last four years at a cost of approximately $110,000,000.

The scheme included these features:

1. By agreement with the construction contractor and C.M.H.C. the selling price of the house was controlled, with an escalator clause allowing for slight increases in wage and labor costs.

2. It specified that the house under construction be sold only to a veteran.

3. Under the scheme, C.M.H.C. could recommend to the reconstruction department that the contractor be given priorities for construction materials required.

Trenton Plane Overshot Runway, Crew Not Hurt

Trenton, Feb. 25 (CP)—Five men—the crew of a twin-engined Lockheed Ventura training plane—escaped injury yesterday when their aircraft overshot the runway of the R.C.A.F. Station here.

Luckily there was no traffic along No. 2 Highway beside the station when the plane crashed through a fence, rolled through a ditch, crossed the highway and came to rest against another fence. The plane, piloted by FO. D. M. McLennan of Trenton, was only slightly damaged.

Drew Would Give Canadian Dollar Arbitrary Value

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today declared himself in favor of placing the Canadian dollar at an arbitrary value for international exchange.

If called upon to head a government in Canada, Mr. Drew said, he would "definitely declare our dollar at its actual value" in terms of foreign trading.

This could be done within the provisions of the Bretton Wood monetary agreement which permits a valuation change of 10 per cent either way in a member's currency.

While the Canadian dollar is officially at par in terms of United States currency it is discounted in New York at rates approaching 10 per cent.

FAN APPRECIATIVE OF PLAY OF GUNNERS

There was at least one appreciative spectator at Memorial Arena last night when the Belleville Gunners midgets were playing the Midland youngsters in the OMHA fourth-round playdowns.

The stranger approached the Belleville coach. "Fine bunch of kids you've got there," he smiled "First time I've seen 'em in action. They should go places."

The coach agreed. "They are a fine bunch of boys who hope to bring a championship to their home town," he said.

"I hope they do" said the stranger. "Maybe this will help them a little."

He held out his hand. The coach stared, gulped and accepted the gift.

It was a brand new ten-dollar bill.

FIFTEEN WOLVES BAGGED THIS YEAR IN CENTRE HASTINGS

The wolf menace in Hastings County is apparently moving from its normal environment in the northern sections to the central part.

Fifteen wolves have been bagged thus far this year, the greater majority being shot or trapped in Centre Hastings, according to County Treasurer Ross Bailey.

Judge J.C. Anderson Addresses Y's Men

Guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club was Judge J. C. Anderson, who expressed his belief in the spiritual values of life so often neglected as persons, institutions and business give greater importance to less worthy causes. He expressed his opinion also that time should be taken for thought and contemplation of the deeper meaning to life. All men, he stated, would be treated more as human beings if those in authoritative positions could be freed from detail for more worthwhile enterprise.

The speaker was introduced by Don Williams and thanked by Don Amos. Ralph Black was sergeant-at-arms. The president Larry Buck was in the chair.

Reports received on Talent-on-Parade to be presented by the club in the Collegiate Auditorium, Tuesday, March 1, would indicate a sell-out for this top ranking program of the year in community entertainment.

OBITUARY

MISS MABEL FOSTER (Reg. N.)
(Contributed)

A wide circle of relatives and friends was left to mourn the death of Miss Mabel Foster at Belleville General Hospital on Friday morning, Feb. 18, after a week's illness.

Annie Mabel Foster was born at Moira, a daughter of the late Owen Windsor Foster and his wife, Sarah Elizabeth Sills. At eight years of age she moved with her parents and family to Schoharie. After finishing public school, she attended Picton Collegiate. Later she entered the training school for nurses at Wellesley Hospital and graduated with honors, winning two scholarships. She then offered her services for overseas and was sent to Camp Borden for a time, and in 1916 proceeded overseas to Orpington Hospital, Kent, England. After the Armistice was signed in 1918 she was left in charge of Orpington Hospital for a time until all patients were either discharged or transferred.

She then joined a party of nursing sisters and visited the continent, visiting principal places in France and Germany.

Miss Foster returned home from overseas in 1919, tired and worn from her strenuous duties and never enjoyed as good health afterward.

In 1924 Miss Foster went to Kingston to the Mowat sanatorium for rest and care. A short time later she was transferred to the Hotel Dieu, where she spent several months and received wonderful care and came home in the spring of 1925 much improved. About two and a half years later she was not so well and left for Christie Street Hospital, Toronto. The next twelve years were spent in bed at various hospitals and at Calydor sanatorium, Muskoka, some years at home and several months at the home of her sister, Mrs. Harold Huff.

She spent three summers at a summer home at Newcastle and it was during her last summer there she sent plans to Belleville and had a new bungalow built next to the home of her friend, Miss Beatrice Jones, Reg. N. She came to her new home in December of 1938 and had been able to be about her home most of the time since, where she enjoyed welcoming the many friends who called to see her. She also owned a summer home at Oak Lake which she enjoyed and where she spent considerable time in the summer months.

Her cheerfulness and fortitude all through her long tedious illness won her many friends, who in their turn remembered her in many ways which brightened many of her days.

Left to mourn her passing are a sister, Mrs. Harold Huff, Mt. Pleasant; three brothers, George, of Moira, Harry and Theodore of Schoharie; her stepmother, Mrs. O. W. Foster and a number of nieces and nephews.

A sister, Helen (Mrs. Jack McCullough) passed on, Sept. 8, 1929, at the early age of twenty-six years, and her eldest brother, Herbert Foster on Sept. 13th, 1945.

The Palmatier funeral home at Picton was filled to overflowing for the service, Monday, Feb. 21st at 2 p.m. when friends from far and near gathered to pay their last respects to a loved one. Rev. E. M. Caldwell, of St. John's Anglican Mission, Belleville, (which Miss Foster had attended recently) conducted the service and gave a comforting message from the text "All Things Work Together for Good, for those who Love God".

Nursing sisters and members of the Legion paid their respects by forming a guard of honor outside the funeral home.

Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Messrs. Alfred Foster, Norman Foster, Harold Foster, Melvin Dulmage, Delmer Huff and Floyd Garrison kindly acted as pall bearers.

Interment was in Glenwood.

JOHN DORAN
(Belleville - Read)

John Doran, formerly of Read, Tyendinaga township, died early Friday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James E. Boyd, 36 Oak Street. He was in failing health for some time.

Born at Ann Arbor, Mich., he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doran. He was in his 83rd. year and for many years he lived at Read, where he was engaged in blacksmithing for fifty years. He was widely known in the district and was highly esteemed. Upon the death of his wife, the former Bridget Ellen Hunt, in 1942, he came to Belleville and made his home with his daughter. He was a member of St. Charles' Church at Read and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society.

Surviving him are three sons, Charles Doran of Deseronto; Francis Doran of Rochester, N.Y., and Joseph Doran, on the homestead at Read; six daughters, Mrs. James E. (Mary) Boyd, Belleville; Mrs. Harold (Norean) O'Sullivan, Kingston; Mrs. Myron (Virginia) Casey, Rochester, N.Y.; Miss Patricia Doran, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Harold (Gertrude) Burgess, Toronto; and Mrs. Lionel (Carmel) Rich, Toronto; one sister, Mrs. James Hamilton, Roslin; also twenty grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

ALBERT LAWRENSON
(Belleville — Thurlow)

Albert Lawrenson died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Floyd Morden, 47 Henry Street, early Friday morning after a lengthy illness.

The late Mr. Lawrenson, who was in his 83rd. year, was born in Tyendinaga township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lawrenson. For fifty years he resided in the 5th. concession of Thurlow township and since October last he made his home here with his daughter. He was a member of Gilead United Church.

The last of his family, Mr. Lawrenson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Floyd Morden, Belleville, and one son, Mr. Ralph Lawrenson, Windsor. His wife, the former Rhoda Collins, died some years ago.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

HERBERT GORDON MITTS
(Madoc)

Madoc, Feb. 25 (Special) — Herbert Gordon Mitts, well-known and respected resident of Madoc Village died in the Belleville General Hospital early Friday morning after an illness of one month's duration.

Born at Crookston the late Mr. Mitts was in his 65th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Mitts. For the past 20 years he resided here and was engaged as CNR sectionman. He was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of St. John's Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Alice Ponting; and one brother, Mr. Vane Mitts of Fuller.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Barking of Dog Saves Life Of Cannifton Man

The barking of a pet collie which awakened the owner from his sleep is credited with saving the life of Daniel Mullins, Cannifton, early this morning.

Mullins was sleeping in his small cottage across from the Cannifton public school when shortly after midnight he was awakened by his dog to find the attic of his cottage ablaze. Mr. Mullins aroused his neighbors who telephoned the alarm.

The Belleville Fire Department under Fire Chief Gerald Vance answered the alarm and succeeded in confining the blaze. Damage to the cottage was held to a hole in the roof and a charred attic. The fire is believed to have started from the stovepipe where it passed from the kitchen into the attic.

POLICE COURT

Pleading guilty to the theft of of a mantel radio from the home of his brother-in-law on Station Street, Allan Misiner, age 24, was given suspended sentence for one year when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, in city magistrate's court today. The accused was also assessed with court costs of $4.50.

Inspector Hayes stated that Misiner had been staying at the home of his brother-in-law but after leaving for Hamilton had returned and entered the home through a transom and had taken the radio. The radio had been sold but was recovered.

Harold Davis of Deseronto, charged on six counts of theft as result of alleged offences in that centre, was remanded until next week for trial. In the meantime he will be given the opportunity of securing services of counsel.

Charge Amended

The request of the Crown to amend a charge against Gerald Ellis of Trenton, to read that he stole a sum of money "from" the County Registry Office, was granted. The original information had charged Ellis had stolen money the property of the Registry Office.

Evidence on the charge was heard some weeks ago and was enlarged for argument as to whether the charge could be amended after the evidence was in. Magistrate Wills ruled the accused would not be prejudiced in the charge being amended and enlarged the case until Tuesday for judgment.

Pleading guilty to three charges of theft from local places of business, Miss Jean Beckwith, age 16 years, was sentenced to a term not exceeding two years in the Mercer Reformatory for Women.

The young girl pleaded guilty to taking a three-piece suit from Wotten's Ladies Wear and two dresses from the local Sally Shop. She also pleaded guilty to taking several pieces of jewellery and other articles from McFee's.

Inspector C. Hayes, in giving summary evidence, stated that all articles of clothing and jewellery had been recovered.

Miss Beckwith pleaded not guilty to a further charge of stealing a dress from Wotten's and the Crown offered no evidence on the charge.

Shortcut Taken Responsible For Saving Child

A chance shortcut taken by Mrs. Clarence Milligan, of Hillcrest as she went to a nearby grocery store Wednesday afternoon was in all probability responsible for saving a two-year-old lad from drowning.

The tiny lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin, with his three-year-old cousin, had been playing with their wagons and had fallen into a water-filled ditch. The lad was pulled from the ditch by Mrs. Milligan who chanced to pass.

Mrs. Milligan stated that as she passed the young girl was crying and pointing toward a nearby water-filled ditch where the rear wheels of a small wagon were showing.

As the woman pulled on the wagon she saw the feet of a small boy protruding from the water. She pulled the boy from the water and shook him until he revived. The lad's mother then appeared on the scene and took him into the house.

Large Wolf Shot In Rawdon Twp.

Rawdon — On Wednesday Reginald McGee, of Wellmans, was successful in shooting a large wolf. It was displayed for a few hours at Victor Graham's general store at Wellman's Corners.

Several farmers have noticed wolves and last week one farmer shot and wounded a wolf. Later an animal answering to that description was shot in Seymour township.

On Tuesday three wolves were seen feeding on the Thain farm, sixth concession, and the men in that district are hoping to be successful in rounding up the whole bunch.

CIGARET BUTT CAUSES DAMAGE

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)— Fire which started from a smouldering cigaret butt caused an estimated $6,000 damage in a mid-Toronto dress shop yesterday. Shop-owner Louis Saltman received minor burns from the fire, which started in the cellar.

IN MEMORIAM

PRICE—In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. Prudence Price who passed away Feb. 25th., 1948.

You are not forgotten mother,
Nor ever will you be,
As long as life and memory last,
We will remember thee.

Sadly missed by sons and daughters. F25

CLAPPER—In loving memory of a dear sweetheart, Normie Clapper, who passed away Feb. 25th., 1946.

His thoughts were all so full of us,
We never could forget him,
And so we think that where he is,
He must be watching yet.
As angels keep their watch up there,
Please, God, just let him know,
That we down here, do not forget,
We love and miss him so.

Lovingly remembered by Eva Mae, Mary, family. F25

COUSINS—In memory of Mrs. Marilla Cousins, who passed away Feb. 25th., 1943.

Six years have passed but still we miss her,
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving thought will always linger,
Around the grave where she is laid.

Ever remembered by daughter Elsie and son-in-law Pete and grandchildren Douglas and Dale. F25

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to sincerely thank my friends and neighbors for their kindness to me; also for flowers, fruit, candy and cards, during my stay at Belleville General Hospital. Thank you, Lela Weeks. F25

Special Committee Will Investigate Eyeglass Situation

By The Canadian Press

Manitoba is going to set up a special committee on the legislature to look into the province's eyeglass situation.

The provincial parliament at Winnipeg took this decision yesterday after William Scraba, Liberal-Progressive member for Winnipeg, proposed establishment of a government optical plant.

A resolution put forward by Mr. Scraba, but not adopted by the House, said that the current high cost of spectacles made it impossible for many wearers to replace them as often as opticians and physicians deemed necessary. A. J. Stringer, representative for the Navy, moved for the establishment of the special committee to look into the matter.

No new taxes were announced in the budget speech in Quebec's Legislative Assembly. Provincial Treasurer Onesime Gagnon said Quebec revenues were estimated to have reached an all-time peak in the current fiscal year. But he predicted that revenues will drop in 1949-50.

The House approved by a 71 to 9 vote a government bill to extend from one to two years the terms of collective agreements covering municipal and school corporations and their employees.

Urges Pension Increase

In continuing Throne-Speech at Toronto, Agnes Macphail, C.C.F. member for York East, urged an increase in old age pensions to $40 a month. The present pension is $30 monthly, except in special needy cases where an additional $10 a month is paid.

"Anyone knows without proof from me that $30 a month is not enough in this time of high prices," she asserted.

Throne-Speech debate in the Prince Edward Island Legislature was enlivened by discussion of provincial rights and of alleged invasion of east coast fishing grounds by United States trawlers. Federal government intervention was urged to keep the Americans from fishing with beam trawlers in Canadian coastal waters.

Denies Allegation

Attorney-General Lucien Maynard of Alberta denied in the House at Edmonton that there was any "deal" to get a suspended sentence for a government official who pleaded guilty to a breach of trust charge. He said that when L. P. Danis, former director of publicity for the Social Credit government, pleaded guilty to breach of trust, the crown counsel was instructed, as is common practice, to drop two less serious counts.

Niles Buchanan (CCF-Notukeu-Willow Bunch) charged in the Saskatchewan Legislature that Hudson Bay Company men and traders who were afraid the north would be opened up were opposing C.C.F. attempts to help the people of northern Saskatchewan. He said that, when he visited far-north Athabaska constituency during the provincial election campaign last June, he found conditions 'deplorable.'"

Health Minister George Pearson of British Columbia, 68, member of the House at Victoria since 1928, advised two new members to 'stick to their principles" and then broke into tears. He told the House that "politics is the ruination of government."

Barbara Ann Willing to Meet Training Partner

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Barbara Ann Scott today said she "would be delighted" to meet Mary Rose Thacker in their own professional figure-skating championship.

The Ottawa girl, en route back home to prepare for the Minto Club Follies in which she will star, received the news of Miss Thatcher's challenge with wide-eyed delight.

"I thought that when I turned professional I'd never have a chance for competition again," she said. "This would certainly give me an opportunity for that and I'd love and try."

Miss Thatcher, Canadian and North American figure-skating titlist from 1939 to 1942, issued the challenge fro mher Vancouver home Thursday. The 26-year-old Vancouver girl, Canada's choice for the 1940 Winter Olympics which were cancelled because of the war, retired from amateur competition unbeaten in 1942.

Barbara Ann, 20, winner of the world's title twice and current holder of the Olympic crown, turned professional last June and made her entertainment debut in New York in December. She returned here last night from a successful engagement in Chicago.

"It's fine with me," Barbara Ann said, "when will it be and where?

"Mary Rose and I used to train together at Ottawa and I think it would be fun to compete against her.

"I would want an equal amount of time to train for the competition. I haven't practised a school figure since last June. I think the competition should be based on regular competition practice — with free-skating and school figures."

Barbara Ann said she is returning to Ottawa Saturday, after which she has several appearances in figure-skating-club shows during the next two months.

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Aided by a stronger United States market, the local livestock market showed gains in cattle prices of from 25-50 cents this week. Calves, hogs, sheep and lambs were unchanged.

BCI Hoop Teams Defeat Trenton

(By JOHN FRANCIS)

On Thursday, B. C. I. Juniors and Seniors travelled to Trenton, where they engaged in battle with the hoopsters of Trenton High. Both Belleville teams maintained their undefeated streaks, as the Juniors triumphed 32-21, and the Seniors won 31-17. The Senior game was an exhibition tussle, as Trenton are not in Senior C. O. S. S. A. competition.

B. C. I. V. S. 32 — Trenton 21

Sparked by Lloyd Faulkner who netted five field goals B. C. I. Juniors won their fifth consecutive victory in C. O. S. S. A. league games, and their second in as many days, as they took the measure of a less experienced Trenton team by a 32-21 count. On the whole, the game was rough and scrambly, and the Red Shirts were certainly better than the score indicated. Frank Harry was the best Trenton attacker with 10 points, and he was their only real threat. Eight of the ten B. C. I. players shared in the scoring.

The teams:

B. C. I.: Faulkner 10, McClay 4, Morris 2, Muirhead 2, Dolan, Dowsett 3, Scrymgeour 4, Loft 5, Ewald, Cameron 2.

Trenton: Beale, Smith 2, G. Harry 1, Jeffrey, Beattie, F. Harry 10, Brown, Campney 2, Collar.

Score by quarters:

Belleville	10	6	8	8—32
Trenton	2	6	3	10—21

B. C. I. V. S. 31 — Trenton 17

In the Senior game, baskets were few and far between in the first half, but in the final twenty minutes, B. C. I. splurged for 23 points. The teams looked very evenly matched at half time, when the Collegians led by only 8-7. However, in the final half, the tiring Trentonians, who used only six players, withered under the B. C. I. onslaught. Fifteen of the eighteen players in the game shared in the scoring, with Ketcheson of B. C. I. and Ethier of Trenton being the top marksmen.

The teams:

B. C. I.: MacMillan 2, Buchanan 4, Lepore 4, Summers 2, Rose 2, Galbraith 2, Pappas 2, Ketcheson 6, Dudley 4, Scott 3, Burke, Cameron.

Trenton: McConnell, Tripp 3, Jordon 2, Bayliss 2, Jeffrey 4, Ethier 6.

Score by Quarters

Belleville	4	4	9	14—31
Trenton	0	7	4	6—17

M.P.P. Receives Pair Of Hand-Knitted Sox

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP) — A remark made by Attorney-General Blackwell during last year's provincial elections, that A.A. MacKenzie had worked out his socks and wrapped his feet in kilt cutticks during his North York campaigning, bore fruit yesterday in the Ontario Legislature. Mr. MacKenzie, who won the election received a pair of hand-knitted socks from the Progressive Conservative Women of Aurora, Ont. The socks bore the MacKenzie tartan design.

Belleville Labor Council Supports Penman Strikers

Belleville and District Allied Labor Council meeting last night, went on record as pledging its complete support to the Penman strikers in their efforts, legally to win higher wages, shorter hours and union recognition.

Telegrams expressing the views of the Labor Council were sent to Hon. Leslie Blackwell, Attorney-general, and Hon. Chas. Daley, minister of Labor, Toronto.

The wire to the former stated: "Belleville and District Allied Labor Council at its regular meeting last night passed a resolution calling on you to withdraw the Provincial Police from Paris strike at Penman's Mill. We consider the use of the Provincial Police as strike breakers contrary to the best interest of the majority of the citizens of Ontario." (Signed) Thos. Rees, president.

The wire to the Minister of Labor said:

"Belleville and District Allied Labor Council urge you to continue your efforts to intervene in the dispute at Paris to get the company to follow the labor laws of this province by compelling them to meet with the union and to negotiate a just contract."

(Signed) Thos. Rees, president.

Receive No Word

Delegates Elliott and Hamblin reported that up to the present they had received no answer from the city council as to the request for a grant of $2,500 similar to the one being asked by the local Chamber of Commerce. The secretary was instructed to get in touch with the chairman of the finance committee of the city to get word of the disposition of both the Labor Council and the Chamber of Commerce requests.

Delegates Schlievert, Elliott and Barrett reported that they had met with Messrs. Wotten and Follwell of the Hydro Commission on the matter of the rumored closing down of the Hydro store on Front St. They had presented them a brief on behalf of the Labor Council pointing out that the store is a source of revenue to the city and the loss of this revenue might very well result in higher electricity rates in the city.

There is also a feeling, they said, that this store acts as a barometer of prices in this district on electrical appliances and parts, of high quality and the closing down of this store could be used by other electrical parts retailers to raise prices and make the people of Belleville pay more for their merchandise. Added to this fact that the employees would no doubt be laid off and forced to seek employment elsewhere makes the continuation of the store essential to the best interests of the working people of this community.

No Definite Answer

The delegates reported that the members of the commission did not deny the rumor that the shop would be closed down nor did they receive any assurance that it would not be.

The delegates for the Labor Council were accompanied by Messrs Gray and Fisher of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of this city.

The delegates left the commission with the thought from these representatives of labor in this city, that if there is any thought of closing down the store, the matter should be settled by the voters of this community, and not by the Commission.

No Freedom Left in Czechoslovakia Says Escaped Student Living Here

One of Czechoslovakian university students who escaped their country following it being taken over by the communists, Vratislav Stafl, 28, is happy to be in Canada.

A student of sociology and of political science, Stafl was expelled from the Prague University, when his political views did not co-incide with those of the Communist party.

He fled his country and after months in a refuge camp in the U.S. zone of Germany arrived in Bellevilel where he is now employed by a local company.

He wants very much to continue his studies in a Canadian university. Also he wants to assist fellow Czech students still in refugee camps in Germany and Italy to emigrate to a country where they will have the opportunity to work and earn their living.

Re-establish Freedom

"Their main thought is to re-establish freedom in their own country but they feel the opportunity to work and earn their own living is the important thing at the moment," he said.

The young student went on to say that the lot of a European refugee is a grim one. Many of them have no country, no clothes nor money and few have hope for the future.

With a good understanding of Czech national affairs due to his university study, Stafl told of ten years of strife in his native Czechoslovakia from the time Hitler's armies marched through in 1939 until the country fell under communist domination in February, 1948.

He was too young to enter the Czech army before his country was over-run by the Germans and until 1945 for the most part was employed in the huge Bata plants at Zlin making boots for the German army.

Reds Gain Favor

With the end of the war he entered Prague University but as early as 1945 saw the communists start to gain power in his formerly democratic country. The resistance movement was first against the Germans and then against the communists.

He saw communist party leaders gain control of government departments such as the ministry of the interior (the police), the defence ministry and education. First control of the communists was gained through the labor unions. Later all factory workers were forced to become party members or leave the plants.

Following the revolution of last February when the communists gained control, there was no freedom of study in the universities and professors opposed to the red doctrine were expelled. New students had to be "politically reliable and progressive."

Factory workers and others with families were forced through fear and intimidation to fall in line but students with "nothing to lose" through demonstration protested against the communist influence. Stafl told of President Dr. Eduard Benes speaking to the students briefly on one of their demonstrations.

Story Not Believed

No one in Czechoslovakia believes the Communist story that John Masaryk, former Czech minister of foreign affairs, committed suicide by jumping from his hotel window, he says.

Communist elections were described as being nothing like elections as Canadians know the word. Elections are open and there is but one party named on the ballot.

Following elections in May, 1948 when the communists gained power in Czechoslovakia, Dr. Benes had no alternative but to resign. With both the army and police under communist influence he could not hope to resist. But loyal to his country he refused to sign the new constitution. Dr. Benes died a prisoner in the country, where no one was permitted to see him.

The former Czech university student says that living is vastly different in his native country under the communist influence. The living standard is falling rapidly and there is no motor transport with the exception of officials' cars and trucks. Private auto owners can get no gasoline rations.

Escaped into U.S. Zone

Of his own escape from Czechoslovakia Stafl remains non-committal, other than to say he got got into the U.S. zone of Germany over the Moravian border.

Although living under dire circumstances Czech university students in refugee camps in Germany still continued their studies. Professors, also exiled, continued with lectures.

"We were without money and without clothes but it was better to continue studies because we had no work," he said.

Although feeling that he was fortunate in being able to speak the language of his adopted country and also because he had a job Stafl will still strive to better the lot of fellow students and refugees left behind in refugee camps in Germany.

"Their problems are the problems of the entire world," he said, "and anything which can be done for them will be deeply appreciated."

PLOT IN SIAM REPORTED CRUSHED

Bangkok, Siam, Feb. 25 (Reuters)—Siamese police have crushed a new plot to overthrow the government of Marshal Pibul Songkram, official sources said last night. Fourteen persons, including two officers of the Siamese Army, were arrested.

Hopeful Sign

There has taken place a step which seems to augur well for the Middle East, the signing of the general armistice between Israel and Egypt. Egypt has taken the lead in the Arab League and the hope is held that the armistice means the beginning of peace in the Holy Land and that part of the world in which the Arab States are predominant. New armistice talks are to start between Israel and Trans-Jordan and other Arab states are ready to join in.

A hopeful feeling has been created by the developments even while they are still concerned with armistice agreements.

To the South Pole

Expeditions into polar areas are not new in these days. There was a time when setting forth on such an expedition to the North or South Pole meant risks of great magnitude shrouded in a veil of the unknown. Even so late as the ill-fated Scott expedition to the South Pole in which after planting the British flag on the basis of the necessary observations, the expedition started on the return journey, every possible form of ill-fortune to an expedition hounded the Scott party and the party fell victims to the rigors of the polar region.

Today with scientific advances to aid them, scientists seeking meteorological information have comparatively safety.

Now an expedition is preparing under the joint auspices of Britain, Sweden and Norway for Queen Maud Land in the Antarctic, which has never yet been trodden by the foot of man. The aim is to set up in the Polar area a permanent weather station.

The explorers will also examine all the facts regarding the territory where amid the wintry wastes of that desolate part of the world, there is an area that is entirely free from ice and snow, lying among the jagged mountains two hundred miles inland and previously detected from planes.

Scientists will also examine the South Polar regions to find if they are warmer than they used to be, such a condition as has been reported of the Arctic area. If this should prove true, will this fact signify a world-wide change in alteration of climatic conditions? Even though this party is equipped to the latest minute with information and scientific apparatus, it will be away a long time, two and a half years — a fact which indicates something of the amount of the work to be accomplished in this practically unknown part of the globe.

Changing Climate and Tree Growth

The climate of Ungava is slowly changing, says Frank Edwards in an article in Woodland World, quoting a French expert on the Arctic, Prof. Andrea Michae. The proof is seen in the advancing tree line which is creeping more to the north. "Where trees have been merely skeletal dwarfs, good for nothing, they are growing larger. At the same time the lakes are said to be drying up in this region, another proof of the increasing warmth of the climate," Prof. Michae says.

It is generally accepted by scientists that the climate of the entire earth has been growing warmer in the past three quarters of a century and this is seen to be in line with the evidence of climatic changes in the past centuries. Scientists find evidence of this assumption in the growth-rings of trees and tree-fossils of many centuries ago. What is the reason for this change is not clear, even to the experts. The article in Woodland World says that "there is reason for thinking small changes are rhythmic in character and would cause altered climates everywhere on earth, Arctic and all."

Another factor is seen as possibly at work in the Ungava area Mr. Edwards says, "Movements at the bottom of the Greenland Sea, between Greenland and Scandinavia, would appear to be occurring. The result would be to change the course of the warm water of the Gulf Stream with corresponding changes in the climate." Here, he says, perhaps might be found the reason why Norse sailors were able to take tiny sailing ships into Hudson Bay 600 years ago. Then it grew colder, the ice returned; trees and vegetation died. We may eventually have some of the finest forest-land on earth up in Ungava. Those first observations on the advancing tree line are perhaps the earliest indication."

TALK WITH A YOUNGSTER

You do not like your teachers and the school room you abhor?
You refuse to learn your lessons? Well that's happened oft before.
This world is full of failures who had fancied, in their turn,
It was just to please the teachers they were sent to school to learn.

You can ask them and they'll tell you, as they loiter on the street,
Once they thought the trick

But they all discovered later, at some common dreary post,
By the cunning which they practiced 'twas themselves they'd cheated
most.

So the teacher doesn't like you?
Well, I'll tell you nor would I
If I did my best to help you, and you wouldn't even try.
If you scorned my every effort and my teaching seemed to spurn,
I should better like the pupils

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1929

Basil Doolittle, employee of the Bell Telephone Company for the past twenty two years, the last five years of which he was wire chief here, has been transferred to the Brockville agency of the company in a similar capacity. He entered the service of the company as a messenger and collector. He applied himself to his job and eventually became Assistant Inspector, then Chief Inspector, Senior Central Officer and finally Wire Chief. Always courteous and obliging he has made many friends. Mr. Percy McKeown of the Kingston office will take Mr. Doolittle's place here.

Miss Elizabeth Corbett and her sister, Mrs. Rogers, will leave shortly to spend a month in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Belair left yesterday for New York City and will sail from there on a cruise to Bermuda.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1919

At a meeting of the city council last evening several recommendations were adopted among which was the installing of a chlorinater at the pump house at a cost of $1,480; also that special legislation be secured to enable the city to charge frontage tax on property along streets where water service is requested and where the revenue will not be ten per cent of the original cost. Ald. Woodley and City Engineer Mills were appointed to attend a meeting of the Good Roads Association. The fuel committee reported that since the last meeting of the council the sum of $673.55 has been realized from the sale of coal and wood at the city fuel yard.

Mrs. J. N. Clarry, Hillside Street, is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. Howard J. Sharpe spent yesterday with his brother in Napanee.

Mr. Thomas S. Holgate of Bowmanville, formerly of this city, was in town today.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th., 1909

Mrs. Ida Butler, Moose Jaw Sask., and Mrs. A. Burr Gould, Brighton, are visiting their sister Mrs. P. M. Millard, in this City.

In every township throughout Prince Edward County several Farmers' Clubs have been organized by Mr. R. M. Winslow of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto. The meetings of these clubs are both interesting and profitable.

Owing to the incessant rain many places in the city were flooded today. This was more especially the case on the west side of the river. In the vicinity of James and Brock Streets and other areas in Murney Ward, many houses were completely surrounded with water as were some houses at the west end of Henry Street, near the Vinegar Works. At the Rolling Mills work had to be suspended as the building was not only surrounded with water, but water to the depth of several inches was in the building. City Engineer Lindsay is doing all he can to relieve the situation.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25th. 1899

A collie dog belonging to Mr. Charles Loucks of Corbyville was struck by electric street car No. 8 on Front St. today and it was necessary for the police to shoot the dog.

The students at the Belleville Business College visited the Canning Factory this afternoon and were interested in the process of manufacturing tin cans.

The market today was the largest for some time. Following are some of the prices: Eggs 10 cents to 12 cents per dozen; butter 18 cents to 20 cents per pound; chickens 40 cents to 75 cents per pair; ducks 75 to 85 cents per pair; geese 50 cents to 70 cents each; turkeys 75 cents to $1.25 each; potatoes 80 cents to 90 cents bag.

Mr. John Bonar of Cornwall formerly of Belleville, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. J. M. Hurley, M.P. for East Hastings, was in town today.

Mr. Thomas Munley and family of Chicago, Ill., are visiting friends here.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE GREEKS HAD A MYTH FOR IT

According to their legends, the ancient Greeks had many religious beliefs which seem foolish to us today. They accounted for the apparent movement of the sun by saying that their sun god, Hyperion, drove his flaming chariot across the sky. When a volcano began to smoke, they explained that Hephaestus, their blacksmith god, was working at his forge beneath the mountain. The coming of winter they attributed to the anger of the goddess of flowers and grain when her daughter disappeared into the underworld; spring was caused by the goddess's joy when her daughter returned.

Modern science has given us more reasonable explanations for such natural events. But sometimes we reveal equally foolish notions ourselves. On Sunday we put on our best clothes and attend church; but the rest of the week we may spend in getting the best of our neighbors by sharp business dealings, as if God cared about only one day out of seven. When in trouble, we pray fervently for help and forget our prayers immediately when all is well again. We hide our sins in darkness or behind closed doors as if God could not see them there.

Sometimes the Greeks tried to deceive their gods by burning all the inedible parts of an animal as a sacrifice and eating the good meat themselves. We are no wiser if we try to please God with anything less than the whole of our lives.

Ontario Budget Due in March

Washington Spotlight:

Birthday Sales Traditional On Washington's Birthday

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 25 — (CP) — For 3½ hours every Feb. 22, Washington stampedes joyously to the shrill, magic battle-cry of "Bargains!"

February 22 is the anniversary of George Washington's birthday —and "birthday sales" are traditional.

But minister — those bargains!

Here's what a guy could get last Tuesday if he had $35.48, a good pair of elbows and some old-fashioned fighting spirit:

Two wool suits;
One fur coat;
One typewriter;
One-fifth of a gallon of genuine West Indies carioca zombie.

The two suits could be had for $14.50 each; the ads said you could be sure they were made of wool. The fur coat would cost you $5 (that's what it said). The typewriter, at 99 cents, would be reconditioned and darned hard to lay your hands on; only five were available. Forty-nine cents would get you the zombie.

(Of course, if genuine West Indies carioca zombie wasn't down your alley, the same 49 cents could be invested in a bottle of petrushka vodka.)

"Birthday Crowds"

There's a strange mingling of dead-seriousness and light-hearted fun-making in the attitude of the "birthday crowds." But one thing's certain; if you're dead serious, you've got to have a plan —and patience.

Block-long lines formed at some stores before dawn last Tuesday. Bargain-hunters had camp-chairs and sandwich breakfasts. Most were bundled warmly against the piercing chill of 40-degree temperature.

Six persons camped all night long for a crack at the five 99-cent typewriters. The No. 1 man in line, who'd been waiting since 5.15 p.m. Monday, trudged away wearily but proudly a few seconds after the cash registers started ringing noisily at 9 a.m.

There were 80 extra policemen on duty downtown and 154 extra street-cars and buses.

Veteran bargain-seekers say the Washington Day sales were started in 1920 by Sidney H. Reizenstein at a men's furnishing store.

People seem to love it.

U.N. Mediator Given High Praise For Armistice

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

If I were a ruling king, and Ralph Bunche, United Nations mediator, were one of my subjects, I should call him before me and touch him on either shoulder with my sword, saying:

"Well done Arise—Sir Ralph!"

As a matter of fact, I think I'll confer a knighthood on him anyway. He has done a grand job in bringing out an armistice between Israel and Egypt.

That will open the way for peace talks between Israel and the other Arab countries with which she has been in conflict. As Bunche himself said to the Israeli-Egyptian delegations at yesterday's signing:

"Important history is being recorded here today. You have made a significant contribution to the cause of world peace."

Outstanding Record

This grandson of an American Negro slave has an outstanding record of achievement since youth. He was a Phi Beta Kappa student at the University of California, has a doctorate from Harvard, was a star athlete, has been a college professor, has written several books, and has served in notable positions for the United States government.

Bunche was assistant to Count Folke Bernadotte, U.N. mediator in Palestine, when the Count was assassinated in Jerusalem last September. The American took over what many observers regarded as an almost "impossible" task. In five months he has delivered the goods.

With the Israeli-Egyptian armistice effective, Israel and the Arab state of Trans-Jordan are scheduled to open similar talks next Monday. The other Arab states are giving indications that they will fall in line.

Remarkable Success

On the face of it the new-born Israel—the first Jewish government in 2,000 years—has achieved a remarkable success. She has established and maintained a "national home" which meets many of her cherished ambitions. Of particular satisfaction must be the winning of most of the Negev desert, which not only has mineral resources but is susceptible of agricultural development.

Carleton County Loses Appeal On Annexation

Toronto, Feb. 25 — (CP)—Ontario's court of appeal Thursday dismissed an appeal by Carleton county against the recent annexation by Ottawa of some 13,000 acres of adjacent area within Nepean township.

The three justices — Mr. Justices R. E. Laidlaw, J. A. Hope and F. D. Hogg — who heard the appeal will announce later the reasons for their decision.

The annexation order was issued by the Ontario Municipal Board last Dec. 6 under terms of the Municipal Act of Ontario.

The appeal was launched by Carleton county, one of several municipalities negotiating with Ottawa to establish a national capital area under the Ontario Town Planning Act. The appeal was based on the legal conflict of the two acts.

Nepean township did not object to the annexation nor appeal the authority under which Held in Jail For Illegal Entry in U.S.

Seattle, Feb. 25. (CP)— Arthur Lennox Walker, 34, was held in jail here Thursday after pleading guilty to falsely representing himself to be an American citizen.

He is a reporter-cartoonist on the Canadian Tribune, a Communist weekly newspaper published in Toronto.

Vaughan E. Evans, assistant U.S. Attorney, said Walker is scheduled to be sentenced Friday.

Walker, who was reported by Evans to have entered the United States from Canada at Blain, Wash., Feb. 5, was indicted Feb. 17. He pleaded guilty the same day.

He was accused of using a birth certificate other than his own in entering this country.

The record in the case showed that Walker told authorities his home was in London, England, and that he had lived in Edmonton and Toronto during the last two years.

At Toronto, the Tribune said in a statement that Walker has not been connected with the paper for more than two years.

"More than two years ago, the Daily Tribune used several cartoons by an Arthur Walker," the paper said. "But since then he has had no connection whatever with the paper, nor has the Tribune had any knowledge of his whereabouts."

Thos. Stone Named New Minister To Sweden

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP)—Thomas Stone, 49-year-old Minister at the Canadian Embassy in Washington for the last two years, has been appointed Minister to Sweden, it was announced Thursday.

The legation in Stockholm was opened two years ago but pending appointment of a minister it has been in charge of Fred Palmer, Canadian Trade Commissioner.

Mr. Stone is a native of Chatham, Ont. He was in external affairs from 1927 until 1935 when he left the service for private business, returing on the outbreak of war in 1939.

He has served many years in Washington at various times, also in Paris and London. His last appointment to Washington was in 1945 when he was made minister counsellor.

Mr. Palmer is expected to remain for some time in his regular post under the Trade and Commerce Department.

Mr. Pearson said no decision had been made on the replacement of Mr. Stone in Washington, nor on the consideration being given appointment of diplomatic missions to the Vatican and Israel.

Eskimo Boy is Cured But Teacher Thinks 'San' Spoiled Him

Fort George, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP) — Johnny Westaluk is back home — cured of tuberculosis—but his teacher fears that three years in a sanitorium may have spoiled him.

"You're in school now, Johnny," she said, taking a bag of chocolate bars from the nine-year-old Eskimo lad.

from Toronto to the shores of James Bay by plane and train, after he was discharged from the sanitorium. He left there 15 days ago.

But he's not entirely happy.

"I have forgotten how to speak Eskimo so how can I be one?" he said. "There are only English words that I know but I am not

WHAT? NO TONSILL ECTOMIES TODAY?

Medical colleague writes he began reading this column when he was in high school and still enjoys reading it, and(believe it or not, although the doctor's stationery bears the letters M.D., F. A. C. S., indicating that he limits his practise to surgery, he says:

"Of greatest interest to me are your teachings regarding 'cri.' Of course, every scientist in our profession is in agreement with you... May I wish you ever-lasting good humor in the face of crack-pots and die-hards..."

Thank you, Doctor. The impulse to rejoice is quickly repressed by the realization that there are not many scientists in our profession.

The doctor, who, I learn, has other degrees, including a Ph. D., in physiology and one in surgery, says he has recommended tonsillectomy only four times—in each instance for carcinoma of the tonsil. He has yet to advise tonsillectomy for child or adult for any other than malignancy (carcinoma, cancer), being fully cognizant that this operation is the most common one in everyday surgery. As the doctor says:

"Inasmuch as tonsillectomy is no prophylaxis against sore throat, acute rheumatic fever, or distant infections, certainly, the operation can be of no value."

On that point Kaiser's study (children's Tonsils in or Out) gives the best testimony available, I believe. On the ten year period following tonsillectomy in 2,200 Rochester, N.Y., school children, 52 developed rheumatic fever; while among 2,200 children of about the same age and general environment whose tonsils were not removed, 78 developed rheumatic fever in the same ten year period.

These observations made by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser outweigh any estimates or theories or convictions your favorite specialist recites when the specialist decides a child's tonsils must be removed to prevent recurring infections of one kind or another.

In the ten year period following removal of tonsils in 2,200 children 220 were still subject to frequent tonsillitis — excuse me, I mean pharyngitis, sore throat; while among 2,200 other children of the same age and environment who had enlarged tonsils but did not have tonsillectomy, 770 were subject to frequent sore throat.

The difference does not seem great enough to justify placing a child in jeopardy in my opinion. And let no parent nor doctor forget for an instant that tonsillectomy is a major operation which involves risk of life.

My colleague does not say what treatment he would employ for tonsils so enlarged that they obstruct breathing, if not tonsillectomy.

I believe the best and safest treatment for the child with symptoms of obstruction of breathing is what I call tonsillotomy—instantaneous amputation of the obstructing portion of tonsil with the guillotine or tonsillotome.

Now my colleague tells me that this clipping operation is not tonsillotomy but actually tonsillectomy, for to suffix otomy denotes merely cutting into, while ectomy denotes excision, cutting out, removal.

For once I have no yahbut. Even old Webster lets me down—Webster straddles the issue—says tonsillectomy is surgical removal of the tonsils and tonsillotomy is the operation of removing all or part of the tonsils.

In view of the fact that, notwithstanding a lot of imposing conversation by the brass "surgeons," more or less tonsil tissue is left in the throat after any such operation—and I say the more tonsil tissue there remains after the operation the better for the victim of the atrocity, in view of this fact it is difficult to understand what excuse a physcian or surgeon can give for even attempting to remove every bit of tonsil in any case save malignancy.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A mining engineer with very wide experience all across Canada's north land has come out for a holiday to the big cities and is having a rare old time meeting the rugged Canadians whose knowledge of mines is confined largely to the ticker tape in the brokers' offices.

One of a group of us plying him with questions was on the make. He has a son he would like to interest in the north country.

"What would you say," he asked the mining engineer, "is the best thing a young fellow could do in going about getting a job up in that country?"

"Can he work?" enquired the engineer.

"You mean physically?" checked the parent.

"There's not much other kind of work in the north," explained the engineer apologetically.

"Well, he's just out of college," said the father. "Graduate in arts . . ."

"The best thing a man can do," declared the mining engineer, "is to go up north and locate a settlement that is on the boom, with several mines or prospects in the area. Then let him apply for a home-site situated on the best road in the neighborhood. But he should be sure, first, that there is a good gravel pit on his home-site.

"A man with a gravel pit," pursued the mining man, "is sitting pretty. He just sits there and lets them come and take it away. Fifteen cents a cubic yard. In the mining country, nothing is more important than gravel. They have to have it for the roads. They've got to have it for all concrete and construction work. In the north country, mining is hazardous. You may or you may not have a mine. But after years of experience in the north, I would give it as my opinion that the man who locates on a home-site with a good gravel pit on it, beside a road, is the best-off of us all."

If it's money you are after, in the mining game, dig for gravel.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CREATIVE HOPE

That is a famous line — "Hope lost, all is lost." But it is very true. We live by this hope, but like everything good it has to be constantly re-created if we would live happily by it. Hope has kept many a one alive after it seemed a thing lost. It was this hope that kept Captain Rickenbacker and his companions alive until rescued, out there in the Pacific on their frail life raft.

It is hope from day to day that keeps warming our faith. It gives to us an upward look and an inward will to go on and on. Every onward march of ideas and civilization gives us hope for still greater progress and for greater justice to the humblest of this earth.

Hope is something that we must build up ourselves. Others may contribute to it, however, as undoubtedly many do, but it remains for each one of us to keep building up our own hope and keep replenishing it. Never should it run out. Never should it cease to be the one inspiration of our lives.

Hope is the warming garment of all our dreams, all our aspirations, and of all our will to be and do. We couldn't go far without it.

Stephen Crane, and three or four of his companions, escaped from a wrecked ship off the coast of Florida during the Spanish-American war. Crane wrote about it in his story "An Open Boat." For a time the oiler would row, then the Captain, then the correspondent. "None," wrote Crane, "knew the color of the sky." There was an invisible one who rowed, as well, however. Hope was rowing — and that is what brought all but one safely to shore.

We all live by hope to some degree, but there comes many a time when we have to create more of this hope in order to carry us to our objective. We can only hope for better things and better times by keeping this hope alive and passionately burning within us. We cannot afford to lose it for a single day. Hope on and you will find this hope to be "a noonday light" and a never-ending guide.

DOE RESCUED

Fort Erie, Ont. — (CP) — A yearling doe was rescued from an icy channel of the Niagara River recently by lockmen. They lassoed the animal from an eight foot wall of the channel lock after it had

Initial Price Increased

At the House opening, Trade Minister Howe announced that the initial price for wheat in the five-year period ended Aug. 1, 1950, has been increased from $1.55 to $1.75 a bushel. The initial payment, which covers all wheat delivered to the Canadian Wheat Board since Aug. 1, 1945, was originally set at $1.35 a bushel, basis No. 1 northern in store at Vancouver or the Lakeland. This price was raised to $1.55 last March.

Mr. Howe said the situation in respect to flax is "so uncertain" it would be some months before there could be a decision on a possible support price. If any farmer was in doubt about the wisdom of seeding he would advise him to go easy.

Labor Minister Mitchell said that neither the Unemployment Insurance Commission nor its advisory committee has asked for a shortening of the nine-day period which unemployed must wait before collecting unemployment insurance.

In opening his attack on the charges against the alleged collamorators, Mr. Dorion said:

"I do not hesitate to state that if the French citizens referred to by the member for Winnipeg North were Communist Jews instead of French Catholics, we would not have heard about them in this House.

"Why do we hear nothing about the six or seven Jews who were admitted to Canada last fall after having entered with false passports...

Why Make it Crime?

I ask, why make it a crime for a French Catholic to seek refuge in this country when no one dares to say a word about the Jews who are in the same situation?"

Besides de Bernonville, Mr. Stewart had named as alleged collaborators Dr. Georges Benoit Montel, Dr. Andrew Charles Boussat, Julien Gaudens Labedan, Jean Louis Huc and Dr. Michel-Lucien Seigneur.

Mr. Dorion dealt only with de Bernonville, who was successful Tuesday in having deportation proceedings quashed in a Montreal court.

Mr. Stewart had claimed that de Bernonville was appointed a military commander in France by the Nazis.

At his court hearing in Montreal, said Mr. Dorion, de Bernonville gave a sworn statement that he had been appointed military governor of Lyon by Marshal Petain, the head of the Vichy government in France.

Functions Terminated

"On Aug. 20, 1944, his functions terminated and he met that day one of the principal leaders of the French underground and informed the latter of his military forces and material which he had saved from the Germans. One-half hour later, he was arrested by the gestapo and incarcerated in Nancy. He was released when the Americans reached that city."

Mr. Dorion told how Capt. Antoine Masson of Montreal had testified of the assistance which De Bernonville gave to help allied prisoners of war escape. De Bernonville bore the scars of 30 wounds suffered while fighting in defence of his country.

The United Nations, said Mr. Dorion, recently adopted a bill of rights which states that everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.

"It is the application of that rule that we request in the case of de Bernonville," he said.

"Contending as I do that he is a political refugee, I say to the government that it is their duty to give him shelter in our country because the right of asylum is a sacred right which has always been recognized by all civilized countries of the world."

Mr. Langlois swung the debate back into its slow - moving trend with demands for better fishing harbors, improved transportation and more industries for his constituency.

Wants Better Facilities

He said if there were more and deeper harbors, Gaspe fishermen would be able to use larger boats, bring in larger catches and compete more favorably with fishermen of the Maritime provinces. He urged extension of rail facilities to Ste. Anne Des Monts.

Mr. Smith, who taunted Cabinet ministers with witty jibes, turned serious at several points in his speech and urged better superannuation provisions for the R.C.M.P. and free hospital treatment for Mountie veterans who couldn't afford it.

He warned that if Canada keeps trading away British tariff preferences for U. S. tariffs the Americans will be "in a spot to cut our throats in one minute."

Mr. McCullough attacked big business and said corporate profits in Canada rose from $598,000,000 in 1939 to $1,821,000,000 in 1947. He urged the government to take steps to curb the operations of monopolies and that it take over and operate any industry which could profit from another war.

Mr. Matthews expressed concern over reports that the C.P.R. is going to shift from coal to oil-burning engines, particularly the Crows Nest Pass area and on the Calgary to Edmonton run. The shift could well mean the "beginning of the end" for the coal industry.

Alberta's oil discoveries were one cause for the shift. But coal miners were also being blamed for demanding more wages and thus boosting coal prices.

Urged Appointment

The C.P.R. had obtained a 21-per-cent increase in freight rates, had upped food and berth prices. If it simply wanted to show a nice balance sheet and thus threaten the coal industry and the homes of its workers, the gain would be expensively brought in the long run.

Mr. Jutras urged the appointment of a Canadian representative to the Vatican and criticized the Progressive Conservative party for its policy.

He said the opposition party had accepted the Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement in 1946. Now that the agreement was in effect, the party was trying to make believe that it had had opposed the agreement.

He accused the Progressive Conservatives of "double-talk" and said they were trying to make some believe they favored the Winnipeg grain exchange and others that they favored continuation of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Murphy appealed to the government to establish a House Committee to advise Trade Minister Howe on ways of making the tourist trade a $1,000,000,000 industry.

He called for better treatment of Canadian tobacco growers. The Imperial Tobacco Company had enjoyed a record $7,193,000 net profit last year and he contended it wasn't paying enough to Canadian producers. He thought the time might have come for consideration of the "methods of certain tobacco companies."

MINISTER ADMITS

He said Black was interested in Bulgarian reaction to Communism, to the Russians and to peace treaty provisions.

At one point, he asserted: "I am sorry for my acts. I confess sincerely to the Bulgarian people and I repent my activities."

Rev. Vassil Ziapkov, alleged ringleader among the defendants, may not appear until late in the trial. He sat in the 13th seat among the defendants.

Although news reporters filled the press box and more were on their way from outside the country photographers were barred from the courtroom. It appeared a rule against courtroom news pictures would be maintained.

The clerygmen are high officials of five Bulgarian Protestant denominations affiliated with western churches. They are accused of spying for Britain and the United States.

Says All Admit Guilt

Ilia Timev, Deputy Minister of Justice, announced at a press conference that all had admitted guilt, voiced repentance and begged for "a new chance to work for the motherland." To support his statements, he exhibited 2,266 pages of depositions taken from the accused men and witnesses.

The trial has inspired intense interest throughout the world, since it follows by 17 days the life sentencing of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty in a Hungarian court on similar charges. Both Hungary and Bulgaria are Communist-governed "People's Democracies."

There is a difference in the two trials, however. Cardinal Mindszenty was the highest Roman Catholic prelate in a country 78 per cent Catholic.

In Bulgaria, Protestants are a small minority. The Bulgarian government says the four princi-par denominations involved — Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Pentecost—have 13,490 members. The Greek Orthodox Church has about 6,000,000.

Foreign Minister Vassil Kolarov has introduced in parliament a bill to make the Orthodox the only "Peoples' Church" and establish strict control over international connections by church officers.

Chief Defendants

The four chief defendants are:

Rev. Vassil Georgiev Ziapkov, 48, head of the Congregationalists and religious representative of the United Evangelical Churches which includes the four denominations.

Rev. Yanko Ivanov, 48, supervisor of the Methodist Church and deputy religious representative of the United Evangelical Churches.

Rev. Georgi Nikolov Chernev, 46, head of the Pentecostal Church.

Rev. Nikola Mikhailov Naumov secretary of the Union Board of Baptist Churches.

All are members of the Supreme Council of the United Evangelical Churches in Bulgaria.

The other 11 accused ministers are: Rev. Lambri Marinov Mishkov, 41, Congregationalist; Rev. Georgi Vassev, 48, Baptist; Rev. Haralan Ivanov Popov, 41, Pentecost; Rev. Ioncho Nikolov Diranov, 41, Pentecost; Rev. Ivan Angelov Stankulov, 44, Baptist; Rev. Zuravko Stephanov Bezlov, 28, Methodist; Rev. Zahari Spasov Raichev, 50, Baptist; Rev. Ladin Ivanov Popov, 38, Pentecost; Rev. Angel Georgive Dinev, 40, Pentecost; Rev. Alexander Georgiev Zahariev, 65, Methodist; Rev. Mitko Mateev Dimitrov, 39, Church of Christ, which is not included in the United Evangelical Churches.

Ziapkov is acused of being the key figure in the group. He is alleged to have sent information about the Bulgarian army and the extent of armaments and disposition of Soviet troops to British and American intelligence agents and to have slandered Russia. He was a member of the Bulgarian delegation to the Paris Peace Conference in 1946.

Confession Produced

Timev showed 144 pages of confession which he said were in the handwriting of Ziapkov, 172 pages by Ivanov, 250 by Chernev and 46 by Naumov.

The government indictment, announced Feb. 10 after some of the defendants had been under arrest at least since Jan. 6, charged that the defendants had been in contact with 12 British and American church leaders, welfare workers and diplomats.

Most of these foreign officials and churchmen named in the indictment have denied the charges. Among those name were Rev. J. Hutchison Cockburn, Director of Reconstruction and Inter-church Aid of the World Council of Churches; Methodist Bishop Paul Garber of Geneva, Switzerland; John Evarts Horner, former United States Acting Political Representative in Sofia; Louis Beck, present United States Commercial Representative; Mellony Turner, Principal of the Methodist-sponsored Loech College for girls in Sofia; and Robert Tobias of the World Council of Churches.

Held in District Court

Scene of the trial is the Sofia District Court, in a room seating 300.

The judge is Constantin Uudjiev, a jurist of 15 years experience. Two jurors, Luka Lulchev and Veayo Vjevizelv, assist him.

The prosecutor is Dimiter Georgi and his assistant is Todoer Tsakov.

Sixteen lawyers, 14 of them said by Timev to have been chosen by the defendants, will represent the defence.

A special box has been reserved for foreign correspondents. Tickets have been issued for official observers of the United States and Britain, who have indicated they are looking into the question of whether Bulgaria is keeping the pledge in her peace treaty to respect religious freedom.

Advance indications were that there would be no censorship of foreign press dispatches on the trial.

Denies Manufacturers Of Cars Are to Blame

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — A charge that Canadian automobile manufacturers were responsible for the corroding of car underparts was denied today by W. A. Wecker of Oshawa, president of General Motors Ltd.

The charge was made Wednesday by Deputy Roads Minister J. D. Millar in an address to the Ontario Good Roads Association. He said the manufacturers not the Highways Department were to blame for the corroding.

Mr. Wecker sand sheet metal in the automobiles is as heavy as it ever was. And every piece of chassis metal receives four coats of the best paint the industry can turn out."

American Spies Furnish 20 Per Cent U.S. Intelligence On Affairs in Other Nations

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Feb. 24. (AP)—American spies and their "contacts" abroad furnish about 20 per cent of United States intelligence about military and political affairs in other countries.

One of the purposes of a mysterious Bill approval by the armed services committee of the House of Representatives with recommendation for quick action by the House, is to encourage and compensate foreign citizens for their help to United States agents.

The American espionage system has been operating with few funds and no precise law providing for spy work or payment to informers. The House Bill, among other things, would cloak the central intelligence agency with definite authority for such operations.

To provide foreign "contacts" with assurance of refugè, it would allow the agency to bring into the United States each year up to 100 persons who had provided useful information.

American intelligence men long have complained that they were unable to match the operations of other powers, such as Britain, the former system of Germany and Japan, and now Russia.

They contended they lacked the means to buy information and could never be sure whether their negotiations were entirely within the laws and policies of their own government.

During the war, the United States co-operate closely with the excellent intelligence net of Britain. Now, with the formal alliances of wartime ended, the United States must build up its own system.

HAMMERSMITH S.

Despite the reduced Labor majority, which was typical of recent parliamentary by - elections won by Labor, the choice of the Hammersmith electorate was regarded as a vote in support of the government's program of social reform, nationalization and food subsidies.

Interest in Hammersmith was so sharp that 70 per cent of the electorate cast their ballots. A total of 28,843 voted yesterday, 7,297 more than in 1945, when Labor polled 12,502 votes to 9,044 for the Conservatives.

Williams, 33-year-old history tutor at Oxford University and a former Baptist minister, said his victory was a "writing on the wall for the Tory party."

Labor now holds 391 of the 640 seats in the Commons to 202 for the Conservatives. Two by-elections in the Labor stronghold of Sowerby and St. Pancras North are forthcoming to fill the two vacancies in the Commons.

Yesterday's was the 48th by-election since Labor came into power and the 31st Labor retained. The victory maintained the party's unbroken record of never having lost a seat to the Conservatives since 1945.

104 Living Descendants

Princeton, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—Mrs. Julia Ponting of nearby Tillsonburg, 86-year-old great-great-grandmother who has 104 living descendants, today was accorded "some sort of record."

Allen George Macdonald, born last week, was the latest in the long lineage of children and grandchildren. He is one of the few babies in Canada to have 4 grandparents, six great - grandparents and two great-great grandparents living.

One of Mrs. Ponting's granddaughters, Mrs. Royce Burnett of Princeton, said today she felt sure that 104 descendants in a lifetime is "some sort of record."

Melrose Farm Forum

Melrose Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. Earl Whiteman on Monday evening. As it was 'review night' the group listened to the broadcast. Later there was a discussion on general topics pertaining to farmers. Mr. and Mrs. Seeney of Stirling had been invited to attend this meeting. Mr. Seeney of the National Film Board showed several interesting films which were much appreciated by all present.

The Forum felt that the showing of such films greatly promoted adult education in rural areas and that all forums and other organizations should take advantage of this free service.

The hostess served refreshments. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. Wm. McMechan.

Teach How to Live As Well as How To Make Living

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Young people must be taught how to live as well as how to make a living thinks Dr. Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

The native of Guelph told the Toronto Heliconian Club last night that "the maintaining of standards of taste is what we are all concerned with."

"If I were not engaged in the work I am now doing I should like to be a teacher of one of the arts or of philosophy—any of those subjects which have to do with the quality within men and women."

Club Activities

THE ENERGETIC CLUB

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street Church were hosts to the Fifty-Fifty Club of Picton United Church.

Following a devotional period, Mr. Aspinall sang two lovely solos.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Cunningham, Guidance instructor at the O.S.D., who gave a very interesting and educational talk on guidance pertaining to both deaf and other children.

Mr. Unwin delighted his audience with two very fine piano solos.

After a few games refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

The club was delighted to welcome their Picton guests and hope they will return in the near future.

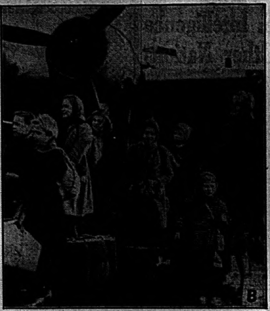
Lois Cooke and Eleanor Wright sang a duet "The Lily of the Valley". A reading was given by Pauline McCurdy and was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Hammond presided over the business period. Roll call and minutes of the January meeting were read.

Joan McCurdy in her pleasing manner favored with a solo. Eleanor Wright presented Gerald Cooke with a certificate and life membership pin having the Daisy Mission Band crest on it. After the presentation Eleanor Wright favored with a piano selection.

Underfed Children Flown From Berlin



FLIGHT TO HEALTH is being undertaken by these children filing past the propeller of a Royal Air Force 'plane at Gatow, Berlin. They are being flown out from the blockaded German capital by the British, and their destination is areas where proper food and attention will correct the undernourishment from which they are suffering. Ever since the blockade began, Americans and British, as they did in wartime, have been flying right beside each other in what has now become the world-famed Operation Vittles.

Mrs. M. Harris, 92, Lives Alone, Does Not Need Glasses for Sewing

Though marking her 92nd birthday last Saturday, Mrs. Martha Harris continues to live alone, and do her own housework at 60 Everett Street.

In spite of her advanced age, she is enjoying fair health, and unlike the majority of people, she has not had a cold this Winter.

Her hobby is fancy work and she has in the last few months pieced a quilt. She sews without glasses and writes letters in a clear hand. She enjoys having callers and a number of relatives and friends gathered at her home, Saturday, where a delightful luncheon was served, featuring a lovely birthday cake decorated with candles. She received many birthday cards and gifts.

Mrs. Harris was born at Cooper, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Allan, the former taught school at Cooper for a number of years.

Mrs. Harris has been a resident of Belleville for 47 years. She was the mother of six children, three of whom are still living, Mrs. R. Logan of Hamilton; Mrs. Edith Tucker, Belleville; and Mr. Frank Harris, Wallbridge.

Her many friends wish Mrs. Harris more years of health and happiness.

Says Women Prefer Male Bosses

Do you want a man to boss you? That is a moot question — at least among the young women who are busy building careers in the business world.

In choosing between two identical jobs, six out of ten women would choose the one with a man boss. Less than one in ten would choose a woman and the rest would choose a boss on the basis of personality, not sex. These figures were revealed in a national survey taken by the Woman's Home Companion.

When it comes right down to it, probably women don't want to be bossed at all. That's one reason why they prefer men bosses. As one woman put it, "a man is a softy compared to a woman."

While the last remark might be considered complimentary to some women, other reasons given for preferring men bosses are not. The survey left the general impression that most women bosses are cats and inclined to jealousy. One pert young thing replied: "Imagine a top-notch woman executive with a grand new hat and in walks an employee with the same hat on!" And finally, here is one utterly feminine comment: "You usually run into more unreasonable temperament in females. Nevertheless, I'd argue with the man who says so."

But what about the women who said they would prefer to work for another woman? Here are some of their answers: "I would then have a chance to get her job," said one ambitious lass. Several others echoed one who said: "I belong to the homely sisterhood. I have found that men are much more patient and considerate with attractive females, while women bosses don't discriminate on the basis of looks."

Probably the most unusual answer came from an attractive young wife, who reported to the Companion: "I'm glad my husband has a woman assistant. I think it helps to keep me on my toes, looking and acting better. Me for the male boss, if for no other reason."

Noted Lecturer To Speak to Club

Professor Shortliffe, M.A., PhD. of Queen's University, who will address the Women's Canadian Club on Monday evening next, in Bridge Street United Church Assembly Rooms on the subject, "The Nature of the Cold War," was born in Manitoba, and graduated from the University of Alberta with an M.A. degree.

After winning the award for French Scholarship given by the government of France, he joined the staff of Cornell University where he received his PhD. in 1939. Later, he was affiliated with Queen's University as a staff member, and began as Commentator for the C.B.C. on international affairs.

In 1946 he obtained Sabbatical leave for studying in France, during which time he discovered unpublished documents covering relations of Victor Hugo and other literary figures with the Civil War, and the Franco-Prussian War. Some of the documents of this research were published by the Syracuse University press.

He was also a collaborator in the preparation of Columbia Dictionary of Modern European literature which was published in 1946 by the Columbia University press.

Doctor Shortliffe is an outstanding lecturer, interested in drama, and a most popular professor with students.

Attends Golden Wedding Held In Rochester

Miss Bessie Spencer, Halloway, has just returned home from Rochester, N.Y., where, for the past month she has been the guest of her brother, Mr. Mackenzie Spencer and Mrs. Spencer, and at the same time, was present at the anniversary of their golden wedding.

On this occasion their cosy home was beautifully decorated with streamers and bells of white and gold. Many lovely flowers, the gifts of friends, added to its beauty.

Among the many tokens of esteem received were some beautifully designed gifts with gold trim which profusely covered one table making a charming picture in itself. Besides the gifts, there were also telegrams, pretty cards of congratulations and cheques.

About thirty relatives were present at the wedding dinner, presided over by their daughter, Pearl, assisted by Nancy Creager, while the honors of serving were assumed by Barbara and Lois Spencer.

During the afternoon and evening over one hundred guests called to offer their good wishes, and to show to the bride and bridegroom of fifty years ago the high regard in which they were held.

Among the many guests present, those from out-of-town were from Detroit, Mich.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Niagara Falls; New York City; Toronto; Belleville; Ottawa; Foxboro and Halloway.

Women's Institute

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

The County Home was the scene of one of the largest meetings, held by Wallbrige W.I., when Mrs. Yorke entertained the members of that branch along with visitors from Bay of Quinte and Uniondale branches.

Those present were well entertained by comments from the Fed. representative, Mrs. Morley Sine, 1st vice chairwoman of the Area, Mrs. K. Faul, Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. Weese.

Mrs. H. Gray assisted by Mrs. F. Tucker gave a talk on "Social Activities in Our Community", and outlined the work of the community of Stone Church and the projects so far enjoyed in the Stone Hall.

Following a discussion about blackboard lights for Wallbridge School it was decided to make a liberal donation towards same.

A report was given that "Care" parcels can no longer be sent to Yugoslavia consequently the branch will donate the value of a "Care" parcel to the young person mentioned and Mrs. Hamann and Mrs. H. Phillips help to select the contents.

A pot luck supper was suggested for March 9, with the social welfare committee and program committee to make the necessary arrangements.

Mrs. Nicolson read a proposed plan for hospital care. It was decided members think it over and a vote be taken at next meeting whether or not to support it.

Some re-arrangements had to be made for the next meeting. Result was that the meeting is to be held at Mrs. J. Smith's with Mrs. O. Chisholm and Mrs. C. Vermilyea as lunch convener, and Mrs. E. Evans to take the topic, "Planning a Perennial Bed".

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks extended the hostess by Mrs. J. Sine. Bounteous refreshments were served.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 25. (CP)—Hot biscuits, scones, or muffins always rate a special burst of approval when they make their appearance at the family breakfast-table.

While Oatmeal Farls or Scones may be an old Scottish favorite home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, have adapted the old-time recipe to the Canadian way of measuring and mixing.

Ingredients: one cup pastry flour (sifted), or seven-eighths of a cup of sifted all-purpose flour; three teaspoons baking-powder; one-half teaspoon salt; one cup fine oatmeal; three tablespoons shortening; two-thirds cup milk.

Mix and sift flour, baking-powder and salt. Add oatmeal. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles fine bread crumbs. Add milk slowly to form a soft but sticky dough. Knead lightly on a floured board until smooth. Roll out to three-quarters of an inch in thickness and cut into triangular shapes or rounds. Brush top of each with milk and bake in a very hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 minutes. Yield: 12 medium-sized scones.

When buying eggs wise homemakers always keep one eye on the grade mark—they know that a dozen "large" eggs will weigh 24 ounces or more, while "medium" eggs weigh between 22 and 24 ounces a dozen and "pullet" eggs around 18 ounces.

While the size of an egg, cooked in the shell or poached, makes little difference to the consumer, it can be most important in cake-making or thickening. For this reason many recipes now read "one-quarter cup egg whites" or "one cup egg whites."

Home economists of the department of agriculture have tested eggs and found that although the yolks of different sized eggs did not vary greatly, there was a big difference in the whites.

To obtain one cup of egg whites required 10 "pullet" eggs, but only six "large" eggs.

When beaten, the whites of two "large" eggs would make a generous deep meringue for a pie, whereas it would require three "pullet" eggs to obtain approximately the same volume.

Roast lamb can reappear on the table in a new and appetizing form if the cold roast is cut in thin slices, placed in a baking-dish and covered with the following tangy sauce.

Ingredients: two tablespoons lamb dripping; one small onion (chopped); 1 1-2 tablespoons vinegar; 1 1-2 tablespoons brown sugar; one cup water; one-half teaspoon paprika; one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; one-half teaspoon dry mustard; dash of cayenne pepper; one-half cup of chili sauce or three-quarters cup tomato ketchup. Salt and pepper to taste. Brown chopped onion in hot fat. Add other ingredients and combine thoroughly.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

When bride's married sister and married brother send the invitations

To me this is a most appealing idea. . .to have the wedding invitations sent under the sponsorship of both the bride's brother and her sister. Why not, if both have a special interest, perhaps practically an equal interest, in taking part in the happy planning of their sister's wedding? And of course when both are married, the brother's wife and the sister's husband are included in the wording of the invitation. The bride's sisters asks:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister wants to include in her wedding invitations, the names of her brother and sister-in-law, and the names of her sister, (me) and my husband, her brother-in-law. Would this be correct? For example:

Mr. and Mrs. James Paul Robbins
Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jones request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their sister Mary to etc.

My husband insists that this form is not right, that his name should not be included, since he is only her brother-in-law.

E. N.

Answer: An excellent idea, this double sponsorship (of course I am assuming that the bride's mother and father are not living). And always, in formal items like this, the brother's wife and the sister's husband are included, and the bride is correctly (and endearingly) referred to as "their sister." Two other suggestions: (1) There should be an "and" on a separate line between the two names at the beginning; and (2) for clear information, the bride's surname must be given (and her second baptismal name if she has one):

Mary Elizabeth Robbins

"III" and "3rd" are alternatives

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a baby, and if it is a son, I would like to name it after its father.

1. My husband is named for his father, who is living. So my husband is "Jr." Would a son of ours then be John David Bartlett, 3rd or III?

2. If my husband's father should die, would my husband then become "Sr." and our son "Jr."?

Mother-to-be

1. Your son, given exactly the same name as your husband's, would be John David Bartlett, 3rd. "3rd" and "III" and "third" mean the same thing . . . that a boy is the third with that name. Sometimes the suffix is written "III", sometimes "3rd" . . . it is question of preference . . . and less often, "third".

2. Yes. But your husband, instead of using "Sr." after his name, would simply use the name, no suffix. Your son would use "Jr." after his name.

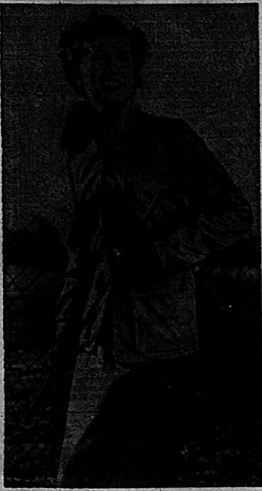
For a Golf Enthusiast



By PRUNELLA WOOD

DESIGNED FOR the golfer, but by no means her exclusive fashion, this poplin sports coat has a feminine look despite its saddle pockets and zipper closing, and it looks like wonderful hike or motor tour stuff too, to this department.

The fabric has been treated to repel water and will stay hostile to weather that leaks through repeated cleansings. Almost any soil except a real oil spot can be sponged away without total cleaning, anyway. Colors are beige, sand, blue, red, pale green and gray, and both back and sleeves are cut for easy action. We like the feminine way a scarf fits into the swank club collar of the coat.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Hands off other people's Business

As a general rule, I am very much against the idea of taking a hand in any one else's business without being invited.

If a friend asks for one's opinion on some problem, it's different. Then—but only then, I think—is it permissible to make suggestions, and even then I believe in exercising a great deal of caution in one's remarks. Even when a person actually asks advice, he rarely takes it, and he almost always resents too frank an expression of opinion.

But when anyone barges into some one else's life with entirely gratuitous advice, it is practically certain that he will not only do no good whatever but may actually do harm by antagonizing the other person.

I see no reason to change my views on this subject in order to make suggestions asked for by one of my correspondents as to how he shall go about offering some unasked advice to another man.

This is the situation in which he wishes to take a hand:

"I would like to be of service to another person but don't know just how to approach him," he writes.

"This man recently deserted his second wife during her illness due to complications caused by the children of his previous marriage. His first wife was deceased. Relatives had been taking care of these children and charging enormous sums of money for their upkeep. The wife worked, and the strain of keeping up a home at the same time most likely undermined her health.

"Through gossip I heard how terribly neglected she was, and no one dares approach her husband and tell him how very unreasonable he has been and how contemptible to desert a loving, decent wife at a time like this.

"You may tell me to mind my own business, but I feel he should be straightened out and shown how wrong he has been and that the only decent and right thing is to go back to his wife and make up for the terrible wrong he has done her. He is an extremely selfish individual, and yet I feel if someone had the gumption to tell him to do the decent thing and keep his marriage together, it might help."

Now whether this correspondent, who says he was left a widower with four small children and that he devoted his life to bringing them up himself, wishes me to tell him how he can lecture this other man into changing his attitude and behavior toward his wife or whether he wishes me to do so right here and now, is not quite clear. I have, however, no intention of doing either. Moreover, as I have already indicated, I think he should keep his hands off the situation. Apparently all that he knows of it is through gossip, and for him to go to this other man with no more knowledge than he actually has of his affairs would be, as I look at it, inexcusable effrontery.

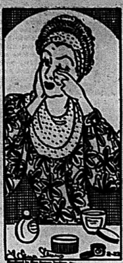
If my correspondent has good reason to believe that the woman in question is in need of friends to help her, then let him persuade her friends, if need be, to do what they can to make her comfortable in her illness and do anything else they can to lighten her load. But he should definitely refrain from interfering in any way in the personal difficulties, whatever they may be, between her and her husband.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Keeping the Complexion Tidy

Some ills of the complexion are the result of neglect. Some skins are not only neglected; they are abused. There is, for instance, the mistreated face that is scrubbed in the morning, loaded with make-up, has more make-up piled on during the daily retouching sessions, and goes to bed as is. Terrible! The skin is suffocated with cosmetics; atmospheric dust is forced into the pores. Let no girl who follows this method let loose any lamentations if she has blackheads, pimples and blotches. In plain words, she has a dirty face.



Cream should be applied lavishly

Cleanliness is the first law of pulchritude, one that brings the greatest rewards. Soap suds is a fairly good antiseptic. Usually the skin accepts it. There must of course, be descrimination in the choice of soaps; even the best and blandest may not agree with all complexions. All the suds must be rinsed away. If a cream is to be used afterward, the rinsing should be accomplished with warm water. If the skin is oily and an astringent is to follow along, it is best to use cold water.

Make-up should be removed with a cream before soap is used. If the skin is dry, an oily cosmetic should be applied afterward.

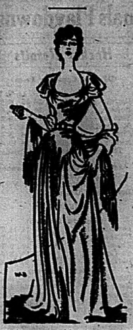
Young girls should have impressed upon their minds the need of a thorough renovating once a day, preferably at bedtime. Sebaceous glands are constantly sending forth oil; sweat glands contribute salty fluids; dead skin scales are shedding. Atmospheric dust collects. There is considerable debris to be removed. A casual swishing about with a washcloth just won't do.

A complexion brush made of bristles so firm that they do not mat down when moistened should be a part of every girl's beautifying equipment. Fluff up a rich suds on the bristles; pass them in wide circles over forehead and cheeks, and up and down over the neck. The brush acts as a stumulating element, bringing good coloring. The oily skin should be literally "shampooed"; this can be accomplished only by means of a brush. After the rinsing, an astringent should be applied with a pad of cotton. Witch hazel will serve.

An extra-dry, sensitive skin may balk at soap. Then a cosmetic meal should be used. These aids are to be found at any toiletries counter. Sprinkle some of the meal on a moist cloth and go over the flesh lightly. The starchy content of the meal will prove soothing.

On a dry skin creams should be applied lavishly; thereis no such thing as using too much cream. It should remain on over night.

Dignified Dinner Dress



Greige gown with separate scarf.

By VERA WINSTON

TODAY'S SKETCH is of a charming dinner dress suitable to almost any mature woman or young lady who wishes to make a picture of graceful dignity. The fabric is greige silk chiffon, deftly draped, with the decolette neckline caught in a pair of jeweled clips. Gathers from the yoke at the hip make for a soft skirt. There is a separate scarf with silk fringed ends.

ANIMAL WORKERS

Russia is now training elk and deer as work animals.

Fashion Flashes

A SPRING RASH of polka dots mark the new fashion picture. Polka-dotted taffeta, black on deep royal blue, is the plot for a charming one-piece, softly-handled shirtwaist dress with pockets concealed in the easy skirt folds. Studs and links on gauntlet cuffs are jet.

DRAMATIC DRESSES always attract, but there are few women who wear them well, that is, without being conscious of the costume. One beauty wears a strapless dress of black silk taffeta, veiled all oved in black net, with net ruching at the hips in lampshade effect. Ruching edges the deep decolletage. Bodice is snug, the skirt quite full.

COLORFUL CLOTHES brighten the early Spring period. For travel and general town or country wear, one designer shows an easy, full-length coat of rose and green block plaid tweed over a skirt of green jersey and a draped surplice blouse of rose jersey, in tones that match the tweed.

ALWAYS GOOD is the ensemble, which this year is better than ever. A pink wool fleece coat ties up nicely with a dress of matching pink tie silk with a woven, wine-colored dot. The dress has a deep gathered round neckline and medium-length sleeves.

HERE IS THE SAILOR, touted as the important hat for Spring. The most popular versions go in for the rounded crown, to give this favorite hat a different slant. Pink Milan straw is used for a sailor with a rounded crown and medium brim, trimmed in front with a sailor-like wing in burnished bronze feathers.

GO IN for color, if you want to enjoy Spring and the new clothes. Silk shantung is the fabric used for a frock cut on easy lines. The deep-neckline bodice is in soft mauve, the easy skirt is in deep violet and the belt, embroidered in mauve-pink, is navy.

Gunners Midgets Defeat Midland 7-3 In First Game OMHA Semi-Finals Playdowns

The Belleville Gunners Midget "B's" will take a four-goal lead to Midland in the second game of their fourth-round OMHA Midget "B" series.

Last night in Memorial Arena the kids wearing the blue and red of the Artillery, set back a smart Midland squad by a 7-3 score to grab themselves a four-goal margin on the goals-to-count semi-finals series.

The second game of the series will be played in Midland next Wednesday night.

It was good hockey all the way through with the Gunners having the edge on territorial play. They maybe took it for granted when they scored a couple of goals in the first four minutes of the initial period that the old pastime was in the bag. But they had not reckoned with a fighting gang of youngsters from Midland.

The Midland kids crept a bit close with a goal in that first period. But in the second frame a hitherto lackadaisical Gunners team came out of its lethargy.

Sparked by Peter Green who rammed home two goals in quick succession in the first few minutes, the rest of the team came to life. Lally scored a brace of quickies to give the Gunners a 6-1 lead but Drinnell came back in a neat play to end the period at 6-2.

Tough Battle

Hull made it 7-2 at the six-minute mark of the third period and from then on it was a tough battle with both teams checking hard. Midland rapped home their third goal of the game at the seventeen-minute mark, but Gunners inspired by their lead reverted to a checking performance that paid off.

Lally sped the Gunners to their victory with three goals. Peter Green, who roused from a first period lethargy, scored a brace and was credited with two assists. Allen and Hull scored singles to complete the win. Gary Schreider turned in a sparkling performance in the nets turning back the Midland threats with a fine show of goalkeeping.

Marion in goal for the Midlanders with Yorke and Drinnell turned in fine performances for the losers.

The Teams

Belleville—Goal, Schreider; defence, Green, Milligan; centre, Barrett; wings, Carey, Whelan; subs, Lally, Hull, Elliott, Allan, Jones, Thompson, Bland, Barclay.

Midland —Goal, Marian; defence, York, Drinnell; centre Wright; wings, Scott, Sturgeon; subs, Brady, Hudson, Johnson, Webb, Quinn Murday, Lalondrasse.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Feb. 25 — (AP)— If Ford Frick, president of the National League, wears a pained expression these days, it's because he was asked the other day if baseball's Hall of Fame might be moved down to New York "where somebody can see it." Frick made it clear they will move the shrine from Cooperstown, N. Y., only over his prostrate body. "I have not talked to a single man who has visited Cooperstown who has not gone away 100 per cent enthusiastic," Frick declared. "I certainly would not favor tossing overboard the work that has been done by Cooperstown to bring the Hall of Fame to New York, where it would be lost in the shuffle of a big city." Last year more than 70,000 persons found their way to the little upstate village and paid admission to the horsehide museum. A new $150,000 wing is to be added next summer, Frick disclosed.

All-American Boy

It was difficult at this end of the ocean cable to understand why British boxing fans got so stirred up over Lee Savold when he was over there this winter. The way they packed the halls to watch his exhibitions and then "guested" him at a round of tearful farewell parties, you would have suspected that Savold was the heavyweight champion instead of the fair journeyman fighter his record shows him to be. A partial explanation is at hand. Savold at weighed 270 pounds and actually fought at 240. Since he reformed Savold has been doing up to 15 miles of roadwork day after day It has reached the point where citizens of Englewood, N. J., claim he lives in their town — not in neighboring Paterson. This was not always so.

Sportsmention

An unwary Boston boxing promoter recently put on a card the same night that the wrestlers were operating in an adjacent arena. He knows better now. The boxers netted $1,071, the grunt-and-groaners $6,500. George Selkirk, the former Yankee star who takes over as manager at Binghamton, N. Y., this season, admitted he was on the spot when he told Binghamton fans: "Lefty Gomez could make you laugh and Buddy Has-

Hawks, Rangers Have Slim Chance To Make Playoffs

The playoff picture in the National Hockey League took a more definite shape today, and for the first time since the clubs started the long grind way back on Oct. 13, the experts felt safe in venturing a prediction on the four teams most likely to make the money series.

Montreal Canadiens, who have blown hot-and-cold all season, won the "big" game last night, beating Chicago 3-1 to widen their lead over the fifth-place Black Hawks to six points.

Thanks to the schedule-makers, all teams now have played the same number of games—50.

Barring a collapse by any of the four, Detroit, Boston, Toronto and Montreal should be Stanley Cup playoff contestants.

Chicago and New York, who trail the fourth-spot Canadiens by six and seven points respectively, need a string of three or straight victories to get back in the running. And on past performances, this isn't likely.

Last night's hero for Canadiens was Pivotman Elmer Lach, just rounding into top form after a long layoff because of a broken jaw. The Habitants' playmaking wizard fired the first two Montreal goals in the second frame.

Lach's markers came after the Hawks went into the lead on Roy Conacher's first-period marker, his 23rd of the season.

The Hawks, their playoff hopes hanging in the balance, battled stoutly for the equalizer, but found the rock-ribbed Montreal defence and goalie Bill Durnan a tough combination to beat.

Fired Into Empty Net

Then, at 19:53 of the finale when Coach Charlie Conacher yanked netminder Jim Henry and sent six forwards on the attack, Maurice Richard grabbed a loose puck, and fired from deep in his own zone into the empty net for the clinching counter.

Before that, Richard had to retire for repairs in the second session when he was clipped on the head by Bob Goldham's stick. It required three stitches to close a scalp wound.

Durnan was the solid man for the Habs, turning aside 29 shots. Henry was tested 22 times.

Referee King Clancy called an even dozen penalties in the rough contest, one of them a 10-minute misconduct to belligerent Bep Guidolin of the Hawks. Guidolin, sitting on the Chicago bench, tried to grab a Montreal player by the sweater as he whizzed by.

The Canadian-Hawk clash was the only game scheduled last night, but there was action in another quarter.

President Clarence Campbell announced at Toronto that a meeting of the M.H.L. governors and other top club officials will be called to discuss the questions of punishment for players who deliberately injure opponents.

Campbell said the move was prompted by an incident in Chicago last Sunday when Red Hamill of the Hawks split Vic Lynn's head for a six-stitch cut by whacking the Toronto player over the head.

Hamill subsequently was fined $250 and suspended for one game. Discussing the case last night, Campbell said he had "no apology to make" for the decision.

MEXICAN LEAGUE TO ORGANIZE

Mexico City, Feb. 25 (AP)— The reorganized Mexican baseball league will open its season March 25 with eight clubs instead of six as in the last two years.

Tomas de la Cruz, Cuban who once pitched for Cincinnati Reds, will manage Jalisco, a new entry. Other new clubs are Nuevo Laredo, Torreon and Aguila de Vera Cruz. Remaining in the circuit are Mexico City, Vera Cruz, San Luis Potosi and Monterrey. Dropping out were Tampico and Puebla.

SKATING CHAMPIONS HERE TONIGHT

A dainty slim-hipped Mercury-heeled goddess of the silver blades will flit over the gleaming ice surface of Memorial Arena tonight in symmetrical demonstration of the figure-skating artistry which won for her the junior ladies' figure skating championship of Canada in Ottawa last week.

She is demure, charming Maureen Senior of Toronto who will appear here with other champions at the Ninth Annual Winter Show of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club. Hailed as a potential Barbara Ann Scott, the graceful Toronto miss had a huge Ottawa audience agape with her marvellous mastery of the blades as she whirled through a maze of difficult figures to defeat the best junior ladies talent the Dominion could produce.

Miss Senior is a tall attractive blonde, and second-form student at Branksome Hall, swank Toronto girls school. Her smooth performance in the Ottawa championships rate her as a brilliant prospect for further honors. She will be seen here tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night in a sparkling singles and doubles performance.

Also making their first public appearance since annexing the Canadian Junior Pairs championship in Ottawa are Joy Forsyth and Roland Vincent, fellow members of Miss Senior in the Toronto Skating Club. This graceful young couple won the hearts of the crowd and the discerning judgment of judges in a superlative performance when they won the coveted junior pair title.

Last of the four stars to appear in the show tonight, but by no means least, is Mr. W. E. Lewis, whose home is Vancouver but who at present is residing in Toronto. Lewis, a spectacular artist on the blades finished second in the Senior Men's Singles Championships in Ottawa. A polished skater, Lewis missed the coveted title by the barest of margins. He is rated as one of Canada's outstanding figure skaters, and those in the know predict a brilliant skating future for this young Canadian artist.

Colorful to the last degree with a dazzling display of costume and scenic effect will be the show proper. An extravaganza in its own right, the Ninth Winter Show of the popular east hill club is rated by those who have seen rehearsal to be the best offered as yet to the public. Pageantry, parade, hundreds of performers from tots to oldsters take part in a sequence of events that should enhance the already proud reputation held by the Quinte Skating Club.

Stars of the club will be seen in individual and collective performance against a background of sparkling music. Pantomimic presentation on skates of the famous fairy story the "Nutcracker and the Mouse King" with appropriate music from the "Nutcracker Suite" will headline this phase of the program. Other colorful features, sprinkled with some rare comedy round out a show that should place another feather of success in the already well-laden hat of the club. The show will be presented tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night. Don't miss it.

BATTLE OF THE BIRDS

The main attraction on another sports front tonight through Saturday night is the Central Ontario Badminton Association tournament being staged in the Bridge Street Armouries under the aegis of the 9th Anti Tank Regt. RCA. Clubs from Oshawa, Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Lindsay, Belleville will enter the figurative lists for the various jousts in the Battle of the Birds.

• • •

Upwards of ninety players of both sexes will be here representing the various clubs, and it is anticipated that some outstanding play will be forthcoming before tournament champions are announced. Winners will take part in the provincial championship in Toronto later on. Eliminations begin tonight and will continue through till tomorrow afternoon. Titular events will be staged tomorrow evening and the various trophies presented at a reception to be held following the events. The public is cordially invited to attend the tournament.

'TWAS EVER THUS

In the column story yesterday anent the CNR Diesels we inadvertently omitted the name of that starry playmaker veteran of many hockey wars, Lee Geyer. It was an error of omission, purely. This scion of the well-known Geyer clan has been one of the stalwarts of many a Belleville hockey team. As such he is recognized as one of the outstanding front-line generals of the Diesels.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Roy Conacher and D. Bentley of Chicago widened their already healthy lead in the National League scoring race last night as each gained one point. Conacher scored the Hawks' only goal and Bentley assisted on the marker. Conacher now leads his linemate 60 to 59 in points, with 10 games left to play. Montreal's Elmer Lach won the scoring crown with 61 points last season.

Western Canada Junior Playoffs Now Under Way

Edmonton, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Main hockey interest in Saskatchewan and Alberta is centred now on the Western Canada Junior Hockey League where playoffs are under way.

In the junior loop, Regina Pats and Calgary Buffaloes hold one-game leads in their best-of-seven, semi-final series following convincing victories.

The Buffs, atop the league most of the regular playing season, blasted Lethbridge Native Sons 9-1 and Pats, downed Moose Jaw Canucks 6-1. Second encounters between the opposing teams will be tomorrow night.

The Buffs are favored to enter the finals but the outcome of the Regina - Moose Jaw series is a toss-up.

In the five- team Western Canada Senior League Capitals hold a seven - point advantage over the second-place Edmonton Flyers.

Edmonton, last year's Allan Cup champions, is 10 points ahead of the third-place Calgary Stampeders. But the Stamps and Lethbridge Maple Leafs are battling it out tooth and nail for third spot. At present, Calgary holds a one-point lead.

Saskatoon Quakers, bogged in the league cellar practically since the start of operations, have only won eight games and tied two for 18 points. Regina has 62.

In the Edmonton Junior League, where playoffs also are in progress, Edmonton Athletic Club and Maple Leafs are battling it out in a best-of-seven affair for the league leadership.

Last night Maple Leafs defeated E. A. C. 4-1 in the series opener.

Barbara Ann Scott Challenged By Mary R. Thacker

(By The Canadian Press)

Get set, Ottawa, to defend your darling. And you, Winnipeg, prepare yourself. You may be mixed up in this thing too.

Mary Rose Thacker, 26-year-old professional figure skater and Winnipeg-born, thinks she may be a better skater than Barbara Ann Scott.

Miss Thacker, now a professional at the Vancouver Skating Club, Thursday challenged the Ottawa beauty to a "world championship" skating competition. Said she: "I am confident it would be a close and good competition."

From 1939 to 1942 inclusive, Miss Thacker was Canadian and North American amateur women's singles champion. She was named to represent Canada in the 1940 Olympics but missed her change at the world title when war forced cancellation of the games. In 1942 she retired, unbeaten, from amateur competition.

At Toronto Otto Gold, former skating teacher for both Barbara Ann Scott and Mary Rose Thacker, was "quite flabbergasted" at the thought of a world championship skating competition between the two.

Gold edged at predicting the outcome but he added that the "younger element" might have the advantage, meaning Barbara Ann.

Gold, now pro of the Toronto Skating Club, thinks Mary Rose would have won the 1940 Olympic title if the contest had not been called off due to the war. "She was a very good skater."

But the challenge is "really a little out of place."

"Competitive skaters would have to have time to practise their figures," he said. "A professional hasn't that much time available."

Negotiations aimed at amalgamation of Hamilton's Wildcat and Tiger football teams have broken down.

It had been expected that Hamilton would have a single entry in 1949 competition. But it was announced following a meeting Wednesday that the Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union had brought new demands which the Interprovincial Union Wildcats would not accept.

Marcel Cerdan, world middleweight champion, will fight British champion Dick Turpin in Paris March 29. Contracts will be signed at London next Sunday. The fight will be over 10 rounds at 168 pounds—two pounds above the middleweight limit.

French promoter Joe Longman, who acts for Cerdan, said American objections to Cerdan fighting in Paris have been waived. Cerdan has contracted for a series of fights in the United States this spring and summer.

British boxing promoters are going to organize. The promoters are alarmed that the boxing board of control is trying to squeeze them out of a voice in running the sport, and have designated March 27 for a meeting to set up their organization—the British boxing promoters' association.

The two-day cricket match between the West Indies touring team and a Ceylon combined schools XI ended in a draw at Ceylon, Thursday.

The West Indies declared at their overnight score of 481 for seven wickets and dismissed the school for 178. Although 303 runs ahead, J. Stollmeyer, who captained the tourists, did not enforce the follow-on and the West Indies made 88 for four in their second innings before stumps were drawn.

Greta Anderson, Danish Olympic swimming champion, bettered the women's world record for 100 yards free style at Copenhagen Thursday. She returned a time of 58.2 seconds compared with the official record of 59.4 seconds set in 1944 by her compatriot, Fritzie Nathansen.

George Gainsford, manager of Ray (Sugar) Robinson, said at New York Thursday that he has agreed to a non-title bout in Montreal between the world welterweight champion and Gaby Ferland of Montreal.

No definite date for the match has been set but it will be early in March, depending upon how Ferland does against Freddie Addeo in a bout in Montreal next Thursday.

Retired U.S. Army Officer General Manager of Club

Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 25 (CP) — William E. Bell, retired United States Army officer, has been appointed general manager of Watertown Athletics of the Border Baseball League for the 1949 season, it was announced today.

Bell has been associated with the league for the last two years. He was business manager for the Athletics in 1947 and for Ogdensburg Maples last season. As general manager of the Athletics he replaces Joseph Tobin of Auburn, N.Y.

Watertown sports service, Inc., a local stock organization, purchased the Watertown Baseball Club franchise, 14 players on the reserve list and all the other physical assets of the club from James F. Doyle of Syracuse, N. Y., who operated the team for the last 3 years. Purchase price was not disclosed.

Ottawa and Kingston, Ont., represent Canada in the Border League.

Big Question Is Where Louis Will Defend Title

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)— The big question about Joe Louis is not whether he will defend his heavyweight championship again but where and against whom.

On the heels of two fabulous offers to fight in Chicago and Cincinnati, the champion received a third yesterday to put his crown on the line on Philadelphia.

Frank Palumbo, Philadelphia fight manager, offered the Brown Bomber $300,000 plus 47 1-2 per cent of all television and radio receipts to meet Lee Savold there this summer.

Palumbo, who gave Louis 24 hours to grab the offer, intimated he could stage the bout in Municipal Stadium which seats 110,000 for boxing; Franklin Field, which accommodates 80,000 or less commodious Shibe Park.

There was no immediate word on the latest turn from Louis, who staging a series of exhibition in the Caribbean.

Savold's manager, Bill Daly, said he would jump at the deal regardless of his own and his fighter's cut. "All I'm interested in is getting Savold in the same ring with Louis," he said.

In the last two months, promoters have offered Louis $400,000 to defend his title in Chicago and Cincinnati.

Sam Becker, wealthy Cincinnati manufacturer and promoter said he would give the champion $400,000 to meet the winner of next Monday's fight between Ezzard Charles and Joey Maxim.

Louis himself has listed Charles and Savold as the only possibilities for a summer title foe.

Ted Williams Joins Fold Of The "Satisfied"

New York, Feb. 25 (AP) —Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox has joined the fold of the "satisfied" but 70 baseball players still balked at contracts today as the major league, hurried through final preparations for spring training.

Williams became the last of the boys in the high pay brackets to agree to terms. The willowy outfielder yesterday agreed to a figure some put as high as $100,000.

Meanwhile, a roll call showed 40 athletes in the American League and 30 in the National still unsigned, with drills getting under way officially next Tuesday.

Most of these aren't serious holdouts.

The two league champions — Cleveland Indians in the American and Boston in the National—are among those having the most trouble getting their men on the the line.

The Indians have yet to reach agreement with 11 of their hirelings, including several sparkplugs of their championship drive last year.

Balkers include pitchers Gene Bearden and Bob Lemon, who won 20 games each; second baseman Joe Gordon and outfielder Allie Clark.

The Braves haven't signed six of their men, including the battery of Warren Spahn and Phil Masi, and infielder Eddie Stanky. Stanky says he expects to come to terms before next Tuesday.

Barrie Flyers Surprise Spits By Winning 6-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor Spitfires are finding life is not all a bed of roses as they enter the Junior 'A' playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association.

After coasting to the end of the regular junior schedule with a comfortable nine-point lead over their nearest competitor, Barrie Flyers, Spitfires got a rude awakening last night from those same Flyers.

Barrie invaded Windsor's own back yard to punch out a 6-3 decision in the first game of a best-of-seven semi-final series between the two. Spitfires will have another chance to redeem themselves before home fans on Saturday before moving to Barrie for the next two playoff games. But they may have learned how to expect anything in a playoff battle.

Flyers, with an injury-struck defence line, set the pace from the start with four successive goals in the first period. Gord Pennell, Don Ashbee, Gary Gordon and Real Chevrefils did the damage before Bert Giesebrecht scored Windsor's first marker, near the end of the first period.

Windsor came back with two unanswered goals in the second period by Gerry Lavergne and Larry Wilson but were unable to score in the final stanza. Bob Burcham and Bob Bingley provided Barrie's two third-period markers.

Bingley played despite an automobile accident Sunday which left him with a stitched scalp. Stan Long, with a strapped-up dislocated shoulder, was another Barrie star, providing passes on two goals.

Two Games Slated

Two O.H.A. games are slated for tonight. Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen will travel to Hamilton for the sixth game of their best-of-seven semi-final senior series against the Tigers. With Kitchener leading the series, 3-2, it could be the final game. St. Catharines Teepees will be host to Oshawa Generals in the second game of their quarter-final series in Junior League playoffs. Teepees won the first of the three-game series.

Toronto Marlboros have most of their hopes of beating Stratford Krochlers pinned on ailing Bob Hassard, centre ice star. After dropping a close 6-5 overtime decision in Stratford on Wednesday the Dukes play the second game of their Junior A quarter-final series in Toronto on Saturday.

Hassard missed the first 13 games of the series, in bed with pneumonia, and came back to place fifth in the scoring race. He still hasn't recovered his full strength from the early-season sickness and has been unable to fight off a cold which brought on a high temperature Wednesday night when the Marlies needed him most.

AUDITORS' REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

MELCHERS DISTILLERIES, LIMITED, Montreal.

We have examined the books of account and financial records of Melchers Distilleries, Limited for the year ended 31st December, 1948 and have received all the information and explanations required by us.

The Inventories of Spirits, Raw Materials and Supplies on hand have been certified to be correct by responsible officials of the Company.

The Dominion Income Tax Department has indicated to the Company that in computing the amount of profits to be assessed for the year 1948 and for subsequent years, it proposes to disallow as deductions from taxable income a substantial portion of the amounts provided for depreciation in those years. The liability for taxes as shown on the above Balance Sheet does not include any provision for possible taxes that may be payable in this connection.

Subject to the foregoing we certify that, in our opinion, the above Balance Sheet as at 31st December, 1948 sets forth a true and correct view of the financial position of the Company at that date, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the Company.

Montreal, 31st January, 1949.

P. S. ROSS & SONS, Chartered Accountants.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

To the Shareholders:—

Your Directors submit the Twentieth Annual Report of your Company covering its operations during the fiscal year ended December 31st, 1948, this being the fiftieth year of operation, since its inception in 1898.

The Financial Statements show satisfactory results.

The Net Profit for the year, after making provision for Depreciation and Income Taxes, was $115,889.88; of this amount, $75,000.00 was paid in dividends and the balance of $40,889.88 was transferred to Earned Surplus Account.

The Balance Sheet reflects an improved financial condition. Working capital has been increased by $105,324.25, and now stands at $1,103,986.12.

Concerning your plant, there is nothing of extraordinary interest to report on for the year just closed. The new machinery and equipment installed during recent years, is functioning very satisfactorily, and the balance of our automatic bottling equipment is expected to be received shortly.

Manufacturing costs were up materially, due to increased wages, salaries and extremely high grain prices. During the latter part of the year, however, grain prices eased considerably, so your directors look forward to a more normal cost in the coming year.

Sales of Gins are returning to a more normal basis. An increasing demand for whiskies is evident, especially for those of older ages. Near the close of the year, your Company released two new brands of aged Rye Whisky. These two brands are real Rye whiskies, having been made from mashes consisting predominantly of Rye grain. The ages of these two brands are 6 and 8 years. The reception given to them by the public, far exceeds our most optimistic estimates. The demand is so great and so much in excess of available supplies, that your Company is obliged to limit releases in order to protect their quality and age.

Fire insurance has been maintained at a high level due to high replacement cost of spirits, buildings and equipment.

Labour relations between the Company and its employees are amicable and a new working agreement with their Union was signed effective November 1st, 1948.

At the Annual General Meeting of Shareholders to be held on March 9th, 1949, shareholders will be asked to consider approval of a new By-Law of the Company, creating the position of "Chairman of the Board"; governing the signatures to appear on certificates of Stock and amending the various By-Laws incidental thereto.

Your Directors wish to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation of the faithful work of the officials and employees of the Company during the year just closed.

Respectfully submitted,
On behalf of the Board of Directors,
V. MARCHAND
President.

$70,000 Damage Caused by Fire, Firemen Overcome

Montreal, Feb. 24 (CP)—Damage estimated at $70,000 was caused early today when a two-alarm fire swept an Amherst street structure housing the Toycraft Manufacturing Co., an electrician's shop and a printer's shop.

Several firemen required treatment after being overcome by smoke. Thirty families from none dwelling surrounging the burning buildings were safely evacuated.

Cause of the fire was undetermined.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 25 (AP)—Just back from talks about a new program with CBS, Frank Sinatra says he wants to do more singing.

Frankie has been dickered for a half-hour show following Bing Crosby (an intriguing idea.) But he says he wants to do a 15-minute show on Tuesday, Wednesdays and Thursdays. "I want to do a lot of singing again," he remarked. "They've had me dancing and making like a comic in pictures. I want to get back to my old racket."

Meanwhile, the crooner is preparing for a rematch with Gene Kelly in "On The Town."

Gable Scared

Clark Gable finished "Any Number Can Play," but he won't start travelling right away. "The storm ruined my ranch," he tells me. "I'm going to stay home and try to fix it up again." I asked him why he seldom does radio.

"It scares me," answered the tough guy. "Besides, I'm no good on radio." He flashed the famed Gable grin and added that he was leaving himself wide open for comments about his movie work. Silly boy.

George Raft keeps mumbling about retirement, but let's look at the record. He just finished "Intrigue" for Columbia and goes right into "Red Light" for United Artists and "Bail Bond" for R. K. O. Then he goes abroad for two pictures of his own. Now, George.

Sign of the times: A well-known actor wants to sell his membership to a movie golf club. Ordinarily there's a hot market for it at $2,000 or $3,000. But the actor can't find a taker.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Frantic efforts to take tricks have killed many contracts. Plans must be made to look far enough ahead. As when south was declarer at five diamonds in the deal shown here:

♠8 4 3
♥A Q 4
♦10 9 7
♣Q 7 5 3

WEST
♠A K 9

SOUTH

♦A K Q J 4 2

West grabbed off two tricks at once with his top spades. A third spade was led. South can ruff this and it looks as if there is nary a worry about the 11 needed tricks. But look again.

After ruffing trick three, trumps could be pulled. But what will happen to the fourth south heart? If dummy trumps are gone, a place must be found for it if one opponent has four or more hearts.

There are six outstanding hearts. They could be split three and three, of course. But it happens that way only once in three times. About two out of three times they are found four and two.

Should consideration be given the clubs? Opponents have eight. An even number usually divides unequally. Expect five and three. No good unless the kings falls on the third club.

Declarer considered this and made provision. The third spade was ruffed high in south. Club ace was cashed. A small trump was taken with dummy diamond nine. A club was ruffed high in south. Dummy got in with a trump to the seven. Another club was ruffed in south.

Dummy was entered with a heart to the queen. The last dummy club was ruffed high in south, which hand was now out of trumps. But dummy got in with a heart to the ace and led the last trump from there.

On this trick was sluffed a south heart and the last west trump was pulled. Only one more trick was left in all hands. This went to the south king of hearts when dummy led his small one.

This was making dummy the master trump hand. It reverses the order of trump use. Instead of ruffing a loser, the loser is sluffed on a trump. Sort of buttering your bread on the other side.

Man Found on Track Ends Up in Jail

Brantford, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Lloyd MacDonald, 22, believed struck by a train when his body was seen lying beside a railway track near here, ended up in jail instead. The locomotive engineer who spotted the man stopped the train and summoned help. Police said MacDonald showed fight instead of wounds and they charged him with trespassing.

North Atlantic Pact Draft Ready For Presentation

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP)—Negotiations looking toward conclusion of a North Atlantic security pact are quickly reaching the point where the public may be given a glimpse of what the final draft will contain.

This was learned here Thursday on high authority. The expectation is that either Prime Minister St. Laurent or External Affairs Minister Pearson will make a full statement to the House of Commons next week.

Canada has been out in front among those seeking to conclude the pact for nearly a year. At present the negotiators in Washington are particularly interested in two clauses.

Most important is the provision under which signatory countries commit themselves to war against an aggressor who may attack any one of them.

There also is a clause for which Canada has been a main proponent, establishing the objective of continued economic consultation and co-operation among the signatories.

Canada has taken the stand that if the pact is to live beyond the moment when there is an obvious danger of possible aggression it should stand for something more than mutual defence.

Only Two Stumbling Blocks

These two clauses are believed to be the only remaining stumbling blocks to be decided by negotiators.

The feeling here is that the final draft will be completed in time for signature and submission to legislatures by the end of March.

Canada is not particularly concerned about the "obligation" clause which has caused criticism and some adverse comment in the United States Senate.

The matter-of-fact assumption here is that if any of the North Atlantic countries signatory to the pact are attacked the necessity for others to rally to its aid will be so obvious that technical details will not interfere.

However, the United States jealousy watches all treaty obligations to ensure that no prior commitment to declare war will violate the procedure laid down in the constitution giving Congress the exclusive right to make war.

Completely in Line

That procedure is completely in line with Canadian convention. When the war broke out in 1939 the government here went to parliament with its proposal to stand at the side of the mother country and approval was quickly given.

However, the legal position of Canada, as in the United Kingdom, is that the King, on the advice of his ministers can take the country into war.

It would seem, therefore, that whatever form is adopted in the pact, and undoubtedly it will be in line with the United States constitution, it will not violate either legal or conventional procedure in Canada.

Lifetime Production 150,960 lbs. of Milk

Woodbridge, Ont., Feb. 25 — (CP)—Jessie Johanna Burke, purebred Holstein cow owned by Archie Cameron of this York County Village, has completed her 13th successive record-of-production test with a lifetime production of 150,960 pounds of milk. Cameron will be awarded the Silver Seal certificate of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association.

Waiting Period Fixed by Statute

Ottawa, Feb. 25 — (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said Thursday in the Commons that neither the advisory committee of the Unemployment Insurance Commission nor the commission itself has asked for a shortening of the period which unemployed must wait before collecting unemployment insurance.

He said the nine-day waiting period was fixed by statute.

G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterborough West) asked if the minister had received any request for a change from municipalities and responsible public bodies.

Mr. Mitchell said ministers receive requests on many things. It was the easiest thing in the world to pass resolutions, but the employment insurance commission had to protect the contributions being made by both the employer and the employee.

Julian Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North) asked if Mr. Mitchell was aware that many state - owned factories in Alberta will be closing down and that he will have to take care of those who are thrown out of work.

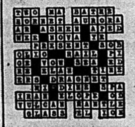
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop started to look at his mail at breakfist, not being anything but bills, and he said, Well, a site like this the ferst thing in the morning is almost as cheering as a ferst cup of coffee. There's nuthing sets a man up like knowing that his old frends haven't forgotten him, he said.

And he opened one saying, Let's see what the electric lite people have to say. They've probably thawt of something they omitted to tell me last munth. Yes by gollies, here's a little serprize they've cooked up for me. This munth's bill is bigger than last munth's, he said.

But William, I mean William, we weren't home neerly as mutch this munth to bern the lites, ma said, and pop said, That's where the serprize comes in, my dear.

And he tore open another bill, saying, Here's one from the good old telefone company, I knew they would not forget me. Well, what a sense of humor. They've sent me a bill for 2 munths instead of just one, he said.

But didn't you pay last munth's bill? ma said, and pop said, Of course not, that's the joke.

And he opened another one, saying. Well now that's nice of them. Listen to this, my dear. It says, "This bill is due on presentation."

What's so nice about that for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, Why just imagine a bizzy executive taking the time to add a personel postscript like that. By gollies I'll give him the serprize of his life. I'll send him a check by retern mail. I may even send it special delivery, he said.

William, do you want your coffee to get cold? ma said and pop said No my dear.

And he finished his breakfist and injoyed the rest of the bills to himself.

NETHERLAND'S

The Republic held most of Sumatra, Java and Madura. The Netherlands retained the three other main islands—Borneo, Celebes and the eastern half of New Guinea.

Who controls the East Indies now?

Guerilla Warfare Widespread

Netherlands officials here say the Dutch forces hold "practically everything" except some mountainous areas. The Republicans, however, describe the Dutch military position as a "series of pockets inside Republican territory." The United Nations' Commission on Indonesia reports that guerilla warfare is widespread and that Netherlands control is far from effective in many areas.

So far the Republic has been given 'de facto" recognition by Britain, the United States, Australia, Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Burma and the Philippines. "De jure" full) recognition has been extended by Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Afghanistan and Syria. The populations in the Arab countries and Indonesia are predominantly Mohammedan.

Canada has not recognized the Republic but refers to it as such in the Security Council. FRANKFORD

Frankford—The Intermediate Girls' Class of the Frankford United Church Sunday School were guests of their teacher, Mrs. J. A. Warren at her home, on Tuesday evening. A crokinole tournament was arranged and was greatly enjoyed by all. First prize went to Dorothy Henley, and second to Helen Rose. Following the crokinole, refreshments were served.

Irishman's Right To Own Gun Is Questioned

Dublin, Feb. 25 (AP)— Irish blood boiled in the Dail Thursday when somebody questioned an Irishman's right to own a gun.

Epithets bounced back and forth. Members questioned Prime Minister John A. Costello whether he intended to order a search for hidden guns of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. One member was tossed out of the session.

As the debate went into the background of the issue, Costello was asked if he condemned his predecessor Eamon de Valera, for executing I.R.A. men who had killed policemen.

When a Republican party member interposed that the men were executed "because they were Republicans," de Valera sprang to his feet and shouted: "That's a damned lie."

De Valera refused to withdraw the remark even though "I were to be excluded from this House forever." In support of de Valera member Gerald Boland then referred to government members as cowards and skunks. He was ordered out of the House.

Another member asked Costello whether he would appeal to the illegal I.R.A. to surrender his arms, if not, would he use force to unearth hidden guns.

Costello replied. "I say that guns have been taken out of politics in this country and the government has no intention of creating, by way of appeal or warning, the impression that a situation exists which in fact does not exist."

Man is Drowned As Truck Plunges Into Humber R.

Toronto, Feb. 25 — (CP) — J. Walter Scott, 38, of suburban Weston, was drowned last night when a truck in which he and Patrick Heslop, 58, of Toronto, were riding plunged off a bridge into the Humber River at nearby Thistletown.

Heslop was helped ashore by Gregg McKelvy, 20, of Weston and George Buckingham of Pine Grove but Scott was dead when help reached him. Heslop was taken to hospital where his condition early today was described as serious.

McKelvy and Buckingham plunged fully clothed into the icy river and swam to the submerged truck. Only part of the vehicle's cab and its rear wheels showed above water.

It was reported that a third man, Herbert Smith, had been riding in the truck with Scott and Heslop. But later he was found safe, having left the truck two minutes before it swerved and smashed through a wooden guard rail.

Scott left a widow and two young daughters.

In Antarctica, enough ice remains to encase the entire globe in a layer 120 feet thick.

Sedative Drugs Given Children, Keep Them Quiet

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)— Families fearing eviction here are giving children sedatives to keep them quiet. This aspect of Toronto's housing problem came to light Thursday in a speech by Hugo Wolter, consultant to the Civic Advisory Council. It was verified later by Dr. Alan Brown, chief of the medical staff at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Dr. Brown said he knew that sedative drugs prescribed by doctors were being given to children of families in crowded quarters and he thoroughly disagreed with the practice. But it was a measure of self-defence by the parents.

"You can't bring a child up properly in an apartment or duplex," he added.

Car Dept. Wins First Game CNR Loop Finals

At the Stirling Arena, Wednesday night, the Car Department won the first game of the C.N.R. Hockey League finals by swamping the Stores Department 8 to 2. This gives the winners a six-goal margin in the two games, goals to count series.

Red Culkin and Shortt were the leading snipers for the Car Department with two goals apiece, while DeGenova, Duval, Mattis and Foster chalked up one each. Ike Bellis and Tanner were the Stores' marksmen.

This was the Car Department's seventh straight victory of the season.

In the opening game of the night, the Motive Power defeated the Freight Shed 4 to 2 in a postponed game.

Bethel-Zim Down Wallbridge 6-1

Frankford — In the second game of the playoff double header Tuesday evening, Bethel - Zion Combines continued their winning ways, downing Wallbridge 6-1, in the first game of a two-game, goals-to-count series. B-Z had the play all the way, and seem almost certain to win the series, even if Wallbridge should defeat them next Tuesday evening.

The Spark Plugs of Trenton, strengthened their hold on first place in the Trenton - Frankford Mixed Bowling League Wednesday night, as they took seven points from the third place Egg Graders. The Petunias took two games, and five points from the cellar-dwelling Shmoos.

PRAISE FOR HALIFAX

Halifax — (CP) — Capt. A. van der Eyk, master of the Dutch freighter Prins Alexander has high praise for the treatment he and his crew have received while his ship has been in dry dock here for two months. He hopes that if Haligonians are stranded in Holland they will receive the same courtesy and hospitality.

THE NEW 1949 PONTIAC is available to Canadian motorists in four series—Chieftain, Streamliner, Fleetleader Special and Fleetleader Deluxe. Shown here is the Streamliner four-door sedan, which like the Chieftain, is available on 120-inch wheelbase with a six or eight-cylinder engine. The Fleetleader Special and Deluxe are both available on 115-inch wheelbase with a six-cylinder engine. Completely redesigned, the 1949 Pontiacs offer an entirely new concept of functional beauty. They are wider and lower than any model yet offered in the Pontiac line. GM's Hydra-Matic Drive is available as an option at extra cost on certain Pontiac models.

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Attention, hockey coaches!

If you're not satisfied that your crop of defencemen is up to scratch, you might try out the system of Eric Pettinger, coach of the University of Western Ontario intercollegiate pucksters.

Bothered by a lack of defencemen since he took charge of the intermediate team this season, Pettinger recently eliminated the two defence positions and put five forwards on the ice.

The first game played in the revolutionary style ended in a 7-6 victory over the Toronto Varsity team which had crushed the Western squad 13-2 some time back.

In the second game, Pettinger used five forwards most of the 60 minutes and saw his team defeat Hamilton's McMaster University.

Jack (London Free Press) Park thinks "Pettinger may have something. Many hockey men have been heard to moan that it gets tougher each year to find a good defenceman...the idea must have merit.

"If any enterprising coach finds himself in the same boat as Pettinger did, the new scheme is worth trying."

It Wasn't Me

Nowadays, virtually every hockey player thumbed off the ice for some misdemeanor enters the penalty box with that painted, how-could-he-think-I'd-do-such-a-thing look. But players violently protesting the referee's decision spoil the game from a spectator standpoint, says Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon.

Writes Gaynon:

"A very unpleasant sight at all N.H.L. games we've watched this season has been penalized players rushing to object, and on many occasions they've been joined by teammates. This complaining gets them nothing, but it cheapens the game...

"It has got to the stage where athletes are yelling every time they're sent off. The game would be more appealing if the practice were stopped."

Way Back When

Cec (Peterborough Examiner) Perdue, reading that Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club celebrates its diamond jubilee this year, drew up these facts about the International League club:

"It entered organized ball back in 1886 and went until '89. The franchise was void then for four years, but came back in 1895 and has been operating ever since."

Players will wear new crests and uniforms with a more colorful appearance this year to celebrate the anniversary.

Frankford Combines Win 'C' Hockey Series

Frankford — Before a sell-out crowd in Hastings Wednesday night, the Frankford-Batawa Combines won the third and deciding game of the "C" series playoffs from Hastings, by a 6-3 count. Hastings led at the end of the first, and second periods, but the Combines went to work in earnest in the final stanza, rapping home four goals. Rankin was the star of the Combines, with four goals and an assist. His line mate, McKee, had a goal, and four assists, while Forester counted once. The hockey was fast and hard all the way, despite the soft ice, and was acclaimed as the best of the three games of the series.

Davis was hit in the face early in the first period, and required four stitches to close a bad cut. Aquino relieved him in the net and turned in a good game.

First Period

Hastings—Phillips (Oliver) 5.30

Penalties — Frankford-Batawa, Cooke.

Second Period

Hastings—Ball (West) 6.20
Hastings—Herrington 7.07

Penalties— Frankford-Batawa, DesJardines. Hastings—Oliver, Wilson.

Hasting—Goal, McKenty; defence, Ball, Tucker; forwards, Herrington, Pettingrew, West; Alternates—Crowley, Oliver, Wilson, Muller, Fairman, B. West, Phillips.

Frankford-Batawa—Goal, Davis, Aquino; defence, Farmer, Forester; forwards, Rankin, Cooke, McKee; Alternates, R. Mason, B. Mason, DesJardine, Muffit, Hood, Heldman, Howard.

ROUTINE JOB PAYS OFF

Montreal — (CP) — The job of a group of 12 Montreal detectives is to comb the city's 725 second-hand stores, pawnshops and junkyards The squad, operating since 1939, has been partly responsible for the annual recovery of $75,000 worth of stolen goods.

ECONOMIC PROBLEM

Bristol —(CP) — Arrears of rent for Bristol council houses total more than £7,000 ($28,000) and are rising rapidly. Tenants with less money than during the war want weekly instead of fortnightly collections.

West Huntingdon Ousts Frankford 3-0

(By G. L.)

Frankford — In the wackiest exhibition of shinny ever witnessed in the Frankford Arena, Tuesday night, the local team got kicked out of the playoffs, lock, stock and barrel, as West Huntingdon handed them a 3-0 whitewashing. Some of the spectators have compared the Frankford team to a "Herd of Turtles" (apologies to the turtles). The height of chagrin came in the second period, when a voice came over the arena P. A. system, with the following announcement: "Attention all Frankford players! There is ice in both ends of the arena!" All through the game, the West Huntingdon goalie kept belating the fact that he hadn't brought a comic book and a folding chair.

In a desperate effort to avoid a shutout, the Frankford goalie was pulled in the last minute of play, and an extra forward put on. The strategy paid off — for West Huntingdon. Grant Stapley promptly stickhandled through the six forwards, and deposited the rubber in the net for his second counter of the evening.

Frankford players are still asking, "Which way did he go?"

West Huntingdon now meets Foxboro in a two-game, goals-to-count series.

In an exhibition game Wednesday evening in the Frankford Arena, Frankford Lions Juveniles, turned back the Sidney Junior Farmers, by a 3-1 score.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Greatest Sermon Ever Preached

By ROY L. SMITH

The ancient world in which Jesus appeared was no stranger to great preachers. Eloquent advocates of all kinds of causes wandered about over the earth lingering to talk to any audiences that might be willing to listen. Among them were some of the most brilliant orators the world has ever known.

There was something about the Greek civilization which encouraged great preaching. Greek learning spent a great deal of time on profound questions, and Greek philosophers set the standard for all time as thinkers and logicians.

In almost every important city outside of Palestine the lecture forums where famous orators and lecturers were accustomed to hold forth, were the most popular gathering places. Vast throngs would assemble to listen to great teachers, sometimes paying liberally for the privilege. A teacher who could attract crowds was assured of a generous income for his efforts.

Prophets and Preachers

The preaching profession among the Jews was an old and honored one which included some of the greatest names in the race's roll. Between the Greek and the Hebrew preachers, however, there was a very great and significant difference.

The Greek philosophers, for the most part, were interested in the great metaphysical questions. They undertook to explain to their hearers the nature of the universe, the meaning of truth, and the essence of reality.

The Hebrew prophets, on the other hand, were socially minded. Amos, Isaiah, Micah, and Jeremiah, for instance, were primarily concerned with those conditions which made the life of the people hard. They preached against injustices which ground down the poor and reduced the plain people to conditions of wretchedness

Jesus' Training as a Preacher

From Mary's songs which have been preserved for us in the Gospel of Luke it is very evident that the mother of Jesus was a woman with a passionate interest in the poor. Tradition has it that she wa san orphan girl who had known the bitter facts of poverty from her earliest childhood and thus retained her sympathies with the underprivileged.

From numerous quotations which appear in Jesus' preaching it is very apparent that he was thoroughly schooled in the teachings of the ancient Hebrew prophets who defended the people against their exploiters. Fiery phrases from Isaiah and Jeremiah seemed to leap to his lips. Galilee was a land where democratic ideals were uppermost in the minds of the people, and where the rights of individuals were highly esteemed.

> The Sunday School lesson for February 27: "The Standards of the Kingdom," Matthew 5-7.

Thus in his home, his school, and his environment, Jesus had been trained to think of religion in terms of the practical experiences of life. All this was reflected in Jesus' preaching.

The Sermon on The Mount

There are differences of opinion among the scholars concerning the material we find in the Gospel of Matthew, commonly known as "The Sermon on the Mount." Some believe that the recorded sayings represent a general collection of the Master's teachings, and others believe that what we have is one discourse. But in either case the same thing can be said: The Sermon on the Mount represents the core of Jesus' teaching and can be called the "Constitution of the Kingdom of God."

The Message of the Sermon

Read the entire Sermon as it appears in the Gospel of Matthew and you will discover that it is far more concerned with the problem of life here than with that of life hereafter. Jesus' great doctrine was that of The Kingdom of Heaven, by which he seems to have meant some new kind of social order to be set up on earth among men. There is relatively little theology in these chapters, but there is a high content of social morality and ethics.

Anyone who wants to know the essence of Jesus' teachings can find it in the three chapters of Matthew (5, 6, 7). If this were all we had left out of the New Testament there would still be enough to found a religion, change a civilization, bring in a new social order, and redeem the daily life of plain men.

In all the annals of history no other such lofty outline of what life can be has ever been offered to the human race.

QUICK SUPPER TREAT

QUICK-'AN'-EASY
MACARONI AND CHEESE

8 to 9 ounces macaroni; 2 tbs. butter; 2 tbs. flour; ½ tsp. salt; few grains pepper; ¼ tsp. dry mustard; 1½ cups milk; 8 ounces shredded smooth, mild Ingersoll Rideau Cheese. Or Ingersoll Baby Roll if you like more of that enticing cheddar nip. (Try Rideau Pimiento for macaroni that's colorful as well as tangy).

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water according to directions on package. Melt butter; add flour, salt, pepper and dry mustard. Stir until well blended; add milk slowly; cook in double boiler stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add shredded Ingersoll Cheese; stir until melted. (Ingersoll melts quickly, easily!) Pour sauce over macaroni. If desired, save part of Ingersoll to sprinkle over top. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Delicious light Snack!

When the lilting tang of Ingersoll Snappy Cheese meets up with crisp crackers . . . ah! there's really good snacking in store! Ingersoll offers you seven distinctive cheese types and flavours to slice, spread, or melt. All delicious!

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

"I think you'll want to rest this morning, so I'm slipping off without waking you. As you know, I'm taking an early train for Elmford. I wanted to buy you a little gift because you've been so nice to put me up for these two weeks, but I thought perhaps you'd rather buy it yourself. Please will you help me by using the check for something you want?"

It was almost nine when she reached Grand Central and telephoned Norman at his small hotel. He'd be right over to collect her for breakfast, he told her, alarm in his voice.

"No, there's nothing the matter, Norman, only today Tom and Marion will be back and I want to get home quickly. I've been away too long."

Rosalie had little appetite. She felt cross and tired, and thought she ought to feel sad to leave Norman. For during the past fortnight, Norman had been what she had never dreamed, those weeks before, he could be. He had been humble and sweet and devoted.

"I can't bear to think of you buried up there in a dead little town."

"It's not dead," she said with spirit. "Elmford is busy and it's lovely. And it's well . . . I'm anxious to see it. I miss it. I guess I'll never be anything but a country girl at heart."

"Whew! What brought this on? I've never heard you talk this way before."

Rosalie toyed with her scrambled eggs. "Maybe I never felt this way before, Norman. But . . . but today I'm sick of New York and what it stands for. I'm sick of people who don't do any work and who only want to play. It's like . . . like wanting fresh air."

"The trouble is that you've been staying up late too many nights. Only last night, you said you thought that Fritz and Louise led the kind of life you wanted."

"I did . . . at first. I thought it was grand to live in a smart house . . . and have sophisticated parties . . . and go to night clubs . . . and live like people in Noel Coward's plays."

"And what changed you into a little wild flower?"

"Last night Louise and I . . . had a little talk. You know, when you're brought up in the country, Norman, you get old-fashioned ideas about money. And you don't . . . well, you don't enjoy living when you're living a way you can't afford."

"Everybody does in New York. It's the old credit system. You have to appear to be successful if you want to be. But tell me why you like the country."

"I'm just beginning to understand myself, so I'll probably be pretty incoherent . . . Maybe it's because you know where you stand with people, and knowing that people know and care about you. When you get away from them, you get a different perspective on them, appreciate more what they stand for. You understand them better. Norman, since I've been away I've met some strange people, likeable ones, but they were all selfish. Even mothers with their daughters. And husbands and wives. People are not like that where I come from."

"But look at the price they pay. They have no stimulation. No culture. You don't belong in a place like that."

"Don't I?" she asked cooly. "I'm beginning to think I do. Also I've met very little culture in my travels."

"All right, let's call it good times."

"We have good times. A dance at the Elks isn't very different from a dance in a country club, Norman. And tennis and golf and horseback riding are easier to get to in the country than the city. And we have bridge parties and ice-skating. We don't have the trappings but we have the fun." Rosalie Bates speaking. "And when we get married, we usually stay married."

Norman was slightly amused "And what do you live on?"

Rosalie warmed to her subject. "New England is a rich country, Norman, if you know how to work it. You can make money there and it doesn't cost very much to have a big place and pleasures too. The trouble with most of the people I know is that they don't have capital to start."

Norman's eyes narrowed. "Capital for what?"

"Well, just for an example:—My brother wrote me a few weeks ago about a dairy that's going to be auctioned off. It won't take much to get it because the last owner died and the estate wants to settle it. Practically everybody back home would like to get it because they want to keep a syndicate out. The syndicate wants to buy it . . . and they might, because the men who want it have not got the few thousand dollars to get it. But in the hands of a modern dairyman, it represents a very good living."

"What kind of Syndicate, darling?"

"It's called the New England Central Dairy Syndicate, I believe. But they're outsiders and we don't want them in."

Norman smiled at her. "You know, Rosalie, I can see you against a country background. A big white house on a hill and you the lovely mistress of it. You could put in tennis courts and a swimming pool . . ." He went on talking while he jotted something in his note-book. "I wish I could see it."

Rosalie thought for a minute, remembering that Tom and Marion had taken the bigger Bullock house on Westbury avenue. "Norman, would you like to come up next weekend? It would be very quiet, but I could ask some people in to meet you."

Norman's face lit up boyishly. "I'd love it, Rosalie. I'd like to see some of this . . . er . . . New England industry, too. When's that auction coming off?"

"As a matter of fact," — she searched her memory — "It's the Monday after that weekend . . . Oh, Norman, I'll have to hurry if I'm to get my luggage before train time."

"Then I'll surely see you Saturday?"

"You will," she promised a moment before the train pulled out.

Long before the train stopped at Elmford, Rosalie was on the platform, her eyes seeking familiar sights. At first she didn't recognize Marion. Then she shouted, "Marion, it's me!" and the two girls hugged, then stood off to survey each other with mutual admiration.

"I'm a little afraid of you, Rosalie, you look so different."

"And you look so different. Ten years younger, Marion!"

"I didn't tell you in the letters, Rosalie, but Tom's been promoted to superintendent at the works. A hundred and fifty more a month. It makes a great deal of difference."

Rosalie felt something choke her. It was the memory of all the money she had spent. She meant to force Tom to take a real gift.

"We've got a new second-hand car," Marion said proudly as she led her to a modest sedan.

"The babies!" Rosalie, regardless of her fine furs clutched first the pink and white bundle that was her niece, and then the sturdy wiggling figure of little Tom.

Marion slipped back of the wheel. "We've missed you, sister," she said simply.

"I'm glad to be back. And I want to hear about everything and every one. Where's Tom? He couldn't meet me? And how is Mrs. Henkles' asthma? And has Fannie's baby arrived? Oh, isn't it lovely here now . . ."

"Well, there's the house," Marion said rounding a bend in the road.

"Marion!" Rosalie couldn't say any more. White as snow, graceful, rambling, the lines of the old Bullock place blended into the hills back of it. A plume of violet smoke curled up from the stone chimney. Evergreens reached lowly toward the sky and late October's leaves laid a pattern of orange and red on the rolling lawns.

"Wait until you see your room," Marion promised.

Rosalie choked over her room, realizing how much loving effort had gone into the painting of its pale blue walls, the making of the dainty white frilled curtains, the chintz on bed and chairs, the bookcases Tom had built.

She was a little teary about it for a few minutes. Then she forgot to be emotional because she was plain happy. There were presents to be taken from the trunk and the suitcases, all the dresses to be hung in the cedar closet. And after the babies had their afternoon milk, there was the accumulated gossip of the past two months.

Cow Which Bolted Into Silo, Freed From Five-day Prison With Knock-out Drops, Grease

By JOHN RANDOLPH

Yukon, Okla., Feb. 26 — (AP) —Knock-out drops, cup grease and a strong push-and-pull freed Grady the cow from her silo prison at 8:09 a.m. (CST) today.

It was a triumph for the Denver Post, which invaded Oklahoma to rescue this bovine damsel in distress.

Grady's captivity ended just five days after she bolted into the silo through a feed door 17 by 25½ inches in size.

She was running away from Dr. L. J. Crump, the Yukon vet who was treating her.

She left the silo with great squirming and clatter of hoofs with Ralph Partridge, farm editor of the Post, pushing her from behind with the help of three others.

Dr. Crump was pulling, along with Bill and Charles Mach, Grady's owners.

The liberation was a lot easier than expected. A truck with a power winch was standing by 100 feet away — with a long cable leading through a shed to the little door.

The plan was to tie a heavy rope around the cow and drag her through — well lubricated — with the winch.

To get Grady ready, they pulled her fore feet through the door and the doc gave her a massive shot of nembutal — the same stuff they use in sleeping tablets.

Then they gave Grady a tentative heave.

At this moment, the athletic cow apparently decided she wanted out.

There was a sudden scraping of hoofs on the greased wooden ramp underneath her and the hereford burst out much as she had burst in.

Ever since the continent heard about Grady's captivity, Bill Mach was swamped with suggestions.

"I heard from 44 or 45 states yesterday, including Canada," Mach said. "They all had ideas. I can't understand it — all this fuss for just one cow. People are sure kind-hearted."

PSYCHIATRISTS UNDER DISCUSSION IN LEGISLATURE

Opposition Wants to Know Qualifications of Those Employed by Government

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)— The story of how Ontario operates its mental hospitals is to be told in part in the legislature.

Discussion yesterday of a government bill dealing with the hospitals gave rise to opposition questions about the qualifications of psychiatists in the hospitals, the facilities available and the number of persons committed to the institutions. Premier Kennedy promised that the questions will be answered.

Postponed until these details are obtained was second reading of a bill to limit patients admitted to Toronto psychiatric hospital to residents of Toronto and York township.

Health Minister Kelley moved the psychiatrict bill, designed to relieve overcrowding in the Toronto institution. Patients living outside the Toronto-York township area would be committed to one of the provinces other 14 mental hospitals.

C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) said the bill would work hardship on some patients who would be denied more expert care available at Toronto.

Mr. Kelley said in an interview that only residents of the Toronto and York township would be admitted because the building was erected in the early '20s at the expense of the city and the township.

H. C. Nixon (Lib.-Brant) said the fact that Toronto had contributed to building costs did not entitle the city to a monopoly of the hospital's facilities. Cost of equipment and staff salaries were born by the province.

BACK BENCHERS PEPPER GOVT. WITH DEMANDS

Wide Field of Problems Covered in Debate

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP) — Back benchers had their day in the Commons yesterday and they peppered the government with demands for action in a wide variety of fields ranging from agriculture to diplomatic representation at the Vatican.

Back benchers had the floor to themselves as the debate on the Throne Speech continued quietly in a chamber that at times had barely a quorum representation. The debate gave them an opportunity to place their constituents' requests on the government doorstep and they took full advantage.

J. O. Gour (L.-Russell) was among those who went to bat for the butter-producing farmer. He urged that the government pay a five-cent-a-pound subsidy on butter and a two-cent-a-quart subsidy on milk if the provinces agreed to pay a similar amount.

Such action, he said, would bring down the cost of butter and would help the farmers of Canada.

He said if the provinces do not act, the Federal government should make it compulsory for margarine producers to color their product a chocolate or other hue that would make it distinguishable from butter.

Mink Coat Wraps Betty Ritchie In Legal Trouble

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 26—(AP)—A $3,000 mink coat wrapped pretty Betty Ritchie, 24, former Toronto schoolteacher, in legal trouble.

Tearfully, Miss Ritchie heard Judge Charles Griffin after a preliminary hearing, hold her for trial in court at Santa Monica March 14 on charges of receiving stolen property. Bail was set at $1,500.

She also is under $500 bail on a federal illegal entry charge and may be deported by the United States immigration service.

Miss Ritchie was arrested last week in the plush apartment of Gerard Dennis, the so-called "Raffles" now held in White Plains, N.Y. Officers from all parts of the country are trying to identify stolen jewels and furs they estimate are worth more than $600,000.

Miss Ritchie, who says she is Dennis' girl friend, is charged with receiving stolen property, specifically a $3,000 mink coat belonging to Mrs. Genevieve E. Phillips, wife of a wealthy Belair oilman. Mrs. Phillips identified the garment in court.

Maple Sap Flows In Lambton Co.

Watford, Feb. 26 (CP)—Maple sap is flowing freely in this Lambton County community. Youngsters here are tapping thousands of trees that line the streets and they even have their own boiling-down equipment. A good syrup season is not predicted, however, in view of a mild winter.

Untapped Wealth of British Guiana May be Thrown Wide to World Trade

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 26 (CP) — Lure for 16th. Century adventures and opportunists, the vast, untapped wealth of British Guiana soon may be thrown wide to world trade.

Responsible sources here believe Guiana's rivers Essequibo, Berbice and Demerara, are the key to development and exploitation of her virgin wealth.

Engineers of the colonial development corporation are tackling the job of turning these jungle streams into water routes for large freighters.

Blocking the gateway to the interior along the Essequibo is a sprawling sand bar. That bar soon will be the focal point for large scale dredging operations.

The channel engineers contemplate would enable large ships to penetrate the interior as far as Bartica, 45 miles from Essequibo's estuary, the fringe of Guiana's mineral and forest wealth.

Technicians point to Essequibo's sister, the Demerara, as proof that the dredging scheme is practical. Constant silt removal in the Demerara makes it possible for large ships to tie up in the Georgetown harbor.

One theory offered by authorities is that silting in the three streams is caused by "the wash" from the mighty Amazon several hundred miles south.

However, the Demerara sand bar performed one useful function. During the Second World War, it protected Georgetown harbor from invasion by German submarines.

Buried Half Billion Dollars of Pirate Gold Is Believed Located

Vancouver, Feb. 26 —(CP)— A $500,000,000 pirate's swag in gold bullion and jewels is the target of four adventurous Canadians, one a woman. They believe they have located the cache on Cocos Isle, a tiny finger of land off the Costa Rican coast.

The Vancouver O'Hanlon brothers — Harry, Hollis and Joe and Harry's wife Betty for years have delved into the history of the centuries-old treasury, said buried in the Central American pirate's promenade. They have made several expeditions and they now believe they have found it.

Ellis Patterson, former lieutenant-governor of California, arrived in Los Angeles to report he believes the expedition has located the treasure, called the "Loot of Lima," by means of a metal detector. He is one of the leaders of the party.

"The machine showed a deposit of metal underground at the spot we believe we have traced to the buried bullion," said Patterson when he arrived in Los Angeles recently from Cocos to buy more supplies for the expedition. The party has to maintain a small group of Costa Rican soldiers while digging for the half-billion swag.

Just what financial arrangements the O'Hanlons have with Patterson and James A. Forbes, the leader, is not known. Their shares are expected to be quite high, however, as most of the research and background on the loot was obtained by Holly O'Hanlon.

Harry and Betty O'Hanlon went to Cocos in the main expedition ship, the Bolivar, a converted landing craft.

Holly and Joe O'Hanlon sailed in their own beautiful Vancouver schooner Dwyn Wen.

Mystery Disease in Sub-Arctic, Vast North Area Quarantined

Ottawa, Feb. 26 — (CP) — A vast region of Canada's sub-Arctic today was under quarantine as the government prepared to investigate an "obscure" malady which has affected 25 persons, killing four.

Causing rapid and severe paralysis, the sickness had struck at Chesterfield Inlet, 350 miles north of Churchill, Man., on the northwestern shore of Hudson Bay.

Both whites and Eskimos are believed affected. To reach the point an R. C. A. F. Dakota will take off from Winnipeg next week on the 1,000-mile mercy flight to Chesterfield Inlet, carrying three doctors and 300 pounds of medical supplies.

Meanwhile R. C. M. P. detachments at "central points" will prohibit and halt travel to and from the area under quarantine, extending 200 miles inland from the inlet to Baker Lake and the same distance to Eskimo Point, where another epidemic took several lives last year.

R. C. M. P. officers will inform natives not to leave the area. Army signals stations will be employed to pass warning of the quarantine through the north.

However, because of the vastness of the region and its isolation from civilization, it will not be possible, said a health department spokesman last night, to rigidly enforce the quarantine.

First indication of trouble at Chesterfield Inlet came to Ottawa only three days ago. Mobilization of health department resources followed a more urgent message Thursday. The air force was called upon for flying facilities.

In a statement, Health Minister Martin said last night: "The exact nature of the epidemic has not been determined. But it is suspected of being of virus origin. Specimens for laboratory examination are being secured and sent to Connaught Laboratories in Toronto."

Moscow, Feb. 26 (AP)—Pravda reported today that popular disturbances were occurring throughout Iraq. The Tass dispatch from Lebanon said rebellious disorders were especially numerous in the northern Kurdish areas and in Baghdad, the capital.

QUIET ON CRIME FRONT

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)— It was "all quiet" on Toronto's crime front Friday night with few charges being laid.

Detective Sergeant A. R. Taylor said it was "one of the quietest Friday nights in a long time. Last week, nearly 70 arrests were made by police in one of the "blackest Fridays" in Toronto's history.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Synopsis: Clear cold weather holds sway across the entire province today. Thermometers registered more than 30 degrees below zero in many Northern Ontario localities last night with temperatures between 10 and 20 degrees general throughout the lower lakes region. In the southern regions skies will be clear today but milder weather with increasing cloudiness followed by rain is indicated for Sunday.

PASTORS RELATE HOW INFORMATION WAS SECURED

One Declares Time Of Communism Has Come

Sofia, Feb. 26 (CP)—Rev. Vassil Georgiev Ziapkov, main defendant in the treason trial of 15 Protestant churchmen, pleaded guilty in court today to charges of treason and espionage. He was the third defendant to plead guilty in two days.

Ziapkov, 48-year-old Congregational Church pastor, was religious representative of the United Evangelical Churches, made up of several Protestant denominations in Bulgaria.

The government accused him of being the principal conspirator with a number of high British and American figures and political representatives. Charges of black market money dealings also were placed against all the defendants.

Ziapkov was preceded to the stand by Rev. Yanko Ivanov, Methodist Church head. Ivanov, the second defendant to testify, denounced himself for seven hours and ended by declaring he had seen the light and no longer feared Communism.

The first was Nikola Naumov, Baptist Church head, who testified yesterday at the opening of the trial.

Told of Years of Spying

Small, bald and crippled, the 48-year-old Ivanov told of years of spying for British and American sources.

His demeanor was in contrast to that of Naumov who wept several times during his confession that was climaxed with the statement that "the time of Communism has come, a new world is being created."

Naumov said the Bulgarian churches must get rid of their British-American contacts because American millionaires stand behind the Methodist Church and "behind the Baptist Church stands Rockefeller."

Like Naumov, Ivanov said the Bulgarian State Security Police treated him well and no pressure had been placed on him to confess.

He added: "I am not pleading for mercy. I cannot find any extenuating circumstances."

Ivanov said he collected information through church channels from various pastors and delivered it to Mellony Turner, former principal of the American-Methodist-sponsored Lovech school for girls in Sofia.

He said the information was to aid in waging a fight against communism and Bulgaria's communist regime.

He said that he had sent information on the movements of Russian troops, facts on Russian families in Bulgaria and industrial information, such as the capacity of factories.

He resumed his testimony today after spending three hours on the stand yesterday. In the first 5½ hours of his story he had progressed to the events of the winter of 1946.

Abbott Told Someone Had Better Start Ducking if Tax Not Cut

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP) — Parliament Hill is seeing an annual drama now that is a cross between a pilgrimage and a siege. It's just a little bit better than usual though because there's an election around the corner.

Like disciples to a shrine, the wise, the wishful and the wrathly are coming from near and far in these days when another Federal budget is working through the final stages of its pregnancy.

They all have their own ideas of what it should proclaim as its message at birth, on that crowded spring night when Finance Minister Abbott arises in the Commons, the galleries packed, to tell the country what it's going to pay in taxes in the next 12 months.

They have been descending on Mr. Abbott and his advisers at the rate of four and five delegations a week.

Lower Taxes

They want the sales tax lowered. They want a shift made here, a shift made there. A business group wallops the excise tax, the income tax, the corporation tax. Things are terrible, they say.

Mr. Abbott smiles his celebrated smile — there are those who swear Mr. Abbott can smile in all directions simultaneously — and hears them and promises "careful consideration." Then they go and he picks up a fraction of his mail; a letter edged in black, and someone out in Sault Ste. Marie

France Launches Drive Against Communist Group

Probe Persons Said to Be Prying into Defence Secrets

Paris, Feb. 26 — (AP)—Three pro-communist newspaper men and a draftsman for a defence plant were held by police today in a drive against persons prying into defence secrets.

Their arrests were announced following a report from a government source that the defence ministry had instituted legal action against the 84-man central committee of the French communist party.

Those held were identified as: Pierre Juin, editor-in-chief of the communist picture weekly, Regards.

Jacques Friedland, one of Juin's staff.

Robert Pentillaut, business manager of France D'Abord, weekly organ of the pro-communist resistance movement.

Bertrand Jouenne, a draftsman for the National Central Aviation Construction Company.

The semi-official Gence France-Presse said 15 persons were questioned yesterday and 11 released as a result of the police drive. Some newspapers said as many as 30 were picked up.

Earlier the interior ministry said Friedland was carrying documents 'involving the national defence" when he was picked up outside communist party headquarters.

Three Publications Raided

Police raided the offices of three communist and pro-communist publications, as well as a publishing house, as they spread their dragnet.

The complaint against the central committee, it was reported, charged attempts to incite the French army in revolt.

The communist situation in France, a sore spot to the government for years, came to a head Thursday night when the lower House of Parliament formally denounced French communist leaders for alleged treasonable statements.

The complaint against the communist group, it was reported, charged attempts to incite the French army to revolt.

The editor arrested was identified as Jacques Friedland of the publication known as Regards. The interior ministry said he was carrying documents "involving the National defence" when he was picked up while leaving communist party headquarters Friday night.

Publications Raided

Police raided the offices of two other communist publications and a publishing house Friday. One Paris newspaper said eight men had been picked up and would be brought before a military court.

MAY CLOSE PIMLICO

Baltimore, Feb. 26 — (AP) — The famous Pimlico race track, home of the classic Preakness, may soon be closed.

The Maryland Jockey Club and the State Racing Commission have agreed that the 79-year-old track, where the finest American thoroughbreds from Survivor to Citation have raced, should be consolidated with Laurel.

The Consolation, awaits only the sanction of the Maryland legislature, now in session, and observers predict that sanction is forthcoming.

Negro Father Wants Son Sent Home to U.S.

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 26 — (AP) — An American Negro wrote to Australia: "Won't you please send my son to me? . . . Why should he suffer for what was wrong?"

The writer was Trennon James Joiner of Cleveland, Ohio. He sent his plea to the Dalwood Home for Children, Sydney, where his five-year-old son Geoffrey is living.

The story got into the Sydney newspapers.

Geoffrey was about the loneliest boy in the children's home.

On visiting days he got all dressed up. But no one ever called to see him.

His white Australian mother and Negro father met in Sydney when Joiner was in the United States Navy. The mother put him in the home Feb. 26, 1947, then married. She hadn't seen him in 18 months; she had surrendered all claim to him.

When Geoffrey's birthday came along recently, so did 100 visitors to see him.

There were all-day suckers and tin soldiers, a spinning top and a humming top, a Teddy bear and a birthday cake, a ball and picture books—and a huge watermelon.

Along to Geoffrey's party went Edward J. Hallstrom, wealthy Sydney business man. He took his cheque book.

He saw Geoffrey, then the directors of the home. He handed them a cheque. Nothing was written where you put the amount.

Said Hallstrom: "Pay Geoffrey Joiner's transportation from the door of Dalwood Home to the door of his father's home in Ohio.

"Add the costs of cables and other expenses when you fill in the amount.

"Try to arrange to get him home to his dad as soon as you can."

Geoffrey will fly to the United States soon.

Business Surveys Can Avoid Waste In Sales Expenses Ad Club Told

The value of independent business surveys to determine if there is a potential market for manufacturers' and processors' products, was stressed to members of the local sales and advertising club at their regular monthly dinner meeting held at the Hotel Quinte, Friday evening.

Guest speaker for the evening was J. G. Wharry, vice-president and assistant general manager of the Quaker Oats Company Ltd., at Peterborough. Mr. Wharry chose as the topic of his address "Business is Easy".

Stressing the value of independent business surveys Mr. Wharry stated that in the past many business firms had spent large sums of money in an effort to build up sales when actually a market for their product did not exist in certain areas.

Newfoundland as the tenth province in Canada opened a new field for Canadian manufacturers and the speaker did not doubt but what the formerly independent country would be thoroughly surveyed to determine whether there was a market for different products.

Just as business surveys could be utilized by manufacturers to take much of the uncertainty out of business by the same token a systematic approach to the matter could also assure firms in acquiring efficient salesmen. In this way the danger of inefficient salesmen representing manufacturers could be minimized.

President of the Sales and Advertising Club, Kenneth Griffiths, presided over the meeting with the guest speaker being introduced by John Thornbury.

J. G. Wharry, vice-president of Quaker Oats Co., who addressed the Belleville Sales and Ad Club Friday evening.

Thousands Flee Czechoslovakia

Prague, Feb. 26 (AP)— Between 6,000 and 7,000 persons fled Czechoslovakia in the last 10 months of 1948, the official Communist newspaper Rude Pravo reported today.

The Exodus, which Rude Pravo called a "political emigration," started after the Communists t k over complete control of the country.

The newspaper said that to counter the loss of "about 6,000 to 7,000 students, newsmen, former political functionaries, officials and officers," Czechoslovakia had received about 18,000 persons who wished to return to the country.

Lectures Given On Rural Topics At Folk School

Sponsored by the Hastings Farm Radio Forums in conjunction with the county Federation of Agriculture, a Quinte folk school giving lectures on rural topics is being held at the home of Mrs. N. Longwell, Foxboro.

Seven firls and five boys, including two from Prince Edward county, and one from Carleton county, will attend the folk school which will last for a ten-day perid which concludes on Saturday, March 5th.

Students attending the folk school are being sponsored by local Junior Farmer organizations and later will be expected to take back to their own organizations that which they have learned at the school.

The folk schools which are only now being started in Ontario, are patterned after Danish folk schools. Several lectures each day on matters of rural interest will be given. Lectures include heath talks educational matters radio and motor mechanics and crafts.

Mr. Ray Hergott, assistant secretary of Ontario Farm Radio Forums, will direct the folk school and lecturers on each of the topics to be given will be called in to address the students. Daily activities will get underway at seven a.m. with gym classes, Folk dancing and singing is also included on the curriculum.

Registration for the folk school started Friday evening and sponsored students will remain at the Longwell home for the duration of the course. There will be two open nights, one on Monday when district farm forums will attend, and on Friday night visitors will be welcomed. Open nights are being held at the Sidney town hall at Wallbridge.

MILTON HARTFORD GREEN
Trenton

Trenton, Feb. 26 (Special) — The funeral of Milton Hartford Green, 160 Scott Street, Trenton, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday last, after an illness of one week's duration, was held this Saturday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home here. The service there and at Bethel Cemetery, Rawdon township, was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Puttenham.

The bearers were N. A. Moore, Charles Harvey, Harold Blakely, Corey Haynes, William Mann and Harry Sager.

The late Mr. Green was born 65 years ago in Stirling and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Green. For many years he lived in the Stirling district, and for the past twenty years he resided in Trenton, where he was engaged as stationary engineer with the Canadian Doughnut Company. He was a member of Grace United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Emma Morrison; two sons, Earle and Jack Green, both of Stirling; two daughters, Mrs. Edna Crawford, and Mrs. B. Pommitt, both of Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. Auddie Coutts and Mrs. William Jones, both of Trenton; one brother, George Green of Wellington; also four grandchildren.

MRS. JESSIE L. SMITH
(Trenton)

Trenton, Feb. 26 (Special)— The funeral of Mrs. Jessie Louise Smith, wife of Howard Smith 63 Queen Street, Trenton, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday last, after an illness of several months' duration, was held this Saturday afternoon from the McNair Funeral Home here. The service there and at Mount Evergreen cemetery was conducted by Salvation Army officers, Capt. W. Rea of Napanee, and Captain V. Greenwood, Trenton.

The bearers were B. Burke, C. Brooker, G. Hollingbeck, H. Stanley, G. Wortley and A Burke.

The late Mrs. Smith, who was in her 75th year, was born in London, England. For a time she lived in Napanee and for the past four months she lived in Trenton.

Surviving her are her husband; one daughter, Mrs. G. W. (Nora) Luxton, of Bonnie Doon Eventide Home (Salvation Army) Edmonton, Alberta; one son, Eric V Smith, Trenton; one sister, Florence Marshall, England.

REV. R. S. LAIDLAW, D.D.
(Formerly of Belleville)

The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, D.D., who was minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here forty years ago, died at his home, 199 Albertus Avenue, Toronto, on Thursday.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Mary Veronica Dunlop; one brother, John Laidlaw, Wilton Grove, Ontario; one grandson, Robert Franklin Laidlaw.

Funeral service will be conducted in St. George's United Church, Toronto, on Monday afternoon.

MRS. FLORENCE A. SHORTTS

Mrs. Florence Annie Shortts, wife of Mr. Hubert Shortts, 15 Starling Street, died in hospital at Kingston on Friday evening after a lengthy illness. She was in her 52nd year and was born in England, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McWatson. At one time she lived in Kansas City and for the past 35 years she resided in this city. She was a member of Christ Church.

Surviving her are her husband; three daughters, Mrs. John (Alma) Crouter Belleville; Miss Vira Shortts Kitchener, and Miss Eunice Shortts, St. Catharines; one son, Ronald Shortts, Pioneer Mines B.C.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Testify Against Canada's Valentino of Gem World

Marshall E. Tulloch, of Wildwood Circle, New Rochelle, N.Y., and his wife, are shown as they arrived at White Plains, N.Y., to testify against Gerard Graham Dennis, smooth Canadian super-gem thief who police say has admitted $100,000 worth of gem robberies in Westchester County alone. Tulloch was shot in the arm on Oct. 20, 1946, when he grappled with a masked intruder who made off with $9,000 in jewels. Other "Raffles" victims in the section also testified at the hearing. Detectives from all parts of the U. S. are waiting in line to question the slim 29-year-old "lover boy." "Oh, what's the use of my getting a lawyer to defend me?" Dennis asked in jail. "They will throw the book at me anyway, and when I get out I'll be taken back to Canada where I have four convictions against me. I don't want to go back there." — Central Press Canadian.

Apples Principal Offering On Outside Market

Egg prices held at 45 cents the dozen for firsts on the local produce market Saturday with mediums being quoted at 43 cents and pullets 40 cents the dozen.

Fowl was offered only in small quantities with roasters being quoted at 55 cents the pound with mature fowl selling at 45 cents.

Apples were the principal offering on the outside market with Spys and McIntosh selling at $3.50 per hamper; Delicious at $3.25; Snows $2.55 and Starks and Pippens at $2.50 per bushel. Spys, Delicious and McIntosh in peck lots fetched 90 cents with Talman Sweets at 50 cents.

Pork by the quarter sold at 35 and 40 cents per pound for fronts and hinds with beef selling at 33 cents and 38 cents.

Potatoes were plentiful at $1.50 per bag; peck lots of carrots and beets were 45 cents and onions 50 cents. Cabbages sold up to 15 cents and sauerkraut was 20 cents per quart.

Honey was plentiful at 90 cents per four pound pail and equivalent prices for other size containers.

One load of dry slabwood sold for $25 for approximately two and three-quarter cord. Two farmers offered young pigs at $11.50 to $12 each.

Hunting Cries and Horn Heard Protesting Ban on Blood Sports

London, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — Hunting cries of "Tally Ho" and the blare of the hunting horn startled people in the heart of London Friday.

The crying and blaring came from ruddy-faced farmers in black or tweed hunting jackets and high boots, who trotted along Piccadilly on protest ride against a bill to prohibit blood sports now being discussed in parliament.

They had come from west-country villages in Gloucestershire and Worcestershire.

Meanwhile, in the House of Commons, loud cheers and counter-cheers greeted Labor member Seymour Cocks when he rose to move his private member's bill which would do away with coursing — the chasing of live hares by greyhounds — and the hunting of any deer, otter or badger with hounds, for sport.

A similar bill dealing with fox hunting is to be introduced on March 11th.

Coursing is a favorite sport in the north country mining districts and miners and other working-class coursers have protested to their members of parliament against what they consider an attempt to deprive them of this "poor man's sport."

TWO YEARS IN JAIL

Kitchener, Feb. 26 (CP)—Maximum penalty possible under the juvenile delinquent act for the offence was handed out yesterday in police court here to Wallace Brooks a Kitchener man who pleaded guilty a week ago to contributing to juvenile delinquency.

He will serve two years in the Ontario Reformatory with another six months consecutive if he doesn't pay a $500 fine.

Four boys, from 10 to 14 years of age, were involved in the offences, admitted by the accused, which took place some months ago.

FRANCE LAUNCHES

The complaint against the Communist Central Committee as yet neither confirmed nor denied by the defence ministry was reported to be based on statements in posters and in the communist newspaper L'Humanite during a prolonged coal strike last fall.

The communist organs called on French troops who took over the mines not to fire on strikers. Communist strike leaders had ordered the miners to sabotage the mines.

In an allied government move the justice minister asked for a lifting of the parliamentary immunity of Marcel Cachin, aged French communist leader.

Cachin is director of L'Humanite. This paper has printed the oft-reiterated communist slogan of recent months that "the French people will never make war against Russia." Parliament is expected to discuss his case next Friday.

Similar requests regarding immunity of Maurice Thorez, communist secretary-general, and other communist members of parliament are expected to follow. Without immunity the deputies are subject to arrest.

PICTON

Presbyterian Church Enjoys Good Year

Picton — In spite of the fact that the congregation lost their church by fire, and have been holding services in the Baptist Church, the St. Andrew Presbyterian Church enjoyed a good year, according to reports presented at the congregational meeting. Lacking a hall, the various groups carried on activities elsewhere with success.

From the ashes of the former historic church, a new edifice has arisen. The interior is being completed. Pews and an electric organ are expected shortly.

Rev. P. B. Reid, the pastor, reported 256 pastoral calls, weekly visits and the hospital and many other duties.

Reports were given by Albert Theobald, envelope steward, Gordon Oder, treasurer and A. McIntosh for budget. The W. M. S. reported raising $150 and sending a bale. The Ladies' Guild reported $728 on hand. The Y. W. A. and Daughters of Dorcas gave $250 to the church, decorated the nursery at the Manse, and has $490 on hand.

An increase in Sunday School attendance was noted. A Wolf Pack and Boy Scout group were active.

Dr. G.J. Morgans Will Speak Here

It has been announced locally that the special speaker at the Protestant rally, to be held in Holloway St. United Church on Monday night, February 28th., will be Dr. G. J. Morgans, F. Ph. S. (Eng.) of Melbourne, Australia. Dr. Morgans is a fine lecturer, preacher and author and literally has world-wide Protestantism at his fingertips.

Dr. Morgans is on the Canadian part of a world-wide tour, which is being sponsored in Canada by the Canadian Protestant League. His speaking engagements here have brought him to Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, and many other Canadian cities. Following his engagement here he will move on for an extended tour of the United States.

Dr. Morgans is president of The United Protestant Action, of Victoria, Australia, which is a union of Protestant peoples (including the Loyal Orange Institution, The Protestant Alliance and the Protestant Progressive Party.) He is also editor of "The Rock," an outstanding Australian publication.

PASTORS RELATE

It was not until September, 1947 that Bulgaria was on her own, free of control from the Allied Commission of Britain, France, the United States and Russia which ruled from the time of Bulgaria's surrender in 1944 until the Bulgarian peace treaty took effect.

Sticks Close to Confession

(The duties of the control commission were to see that Bulgaria was carrying out the military and other phases of the armistice.)

His recital stuck closely to the 177-page confession which the government said he gave in a preliminary examination conducted by judicial investigators.

In addition to Turner, Ivanov mentioned three other Americans with whom he said he had dealt. They were Robert Strong, Robert Tobias and Reuben H. Markham.

Ivanov said Strong was former secretary of the United States political mission here, Tobias an official of the World Council of Churches at Geneva and Markham a former missionary in Bulgaria, once acting president of the American school in Bulgaria and later the Balkans correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor.

(Markham was expelled from Romania on orders of Russian authorities in 1946.)

The only other defendant in the courtroom today was Naumov, who testified at length yesterday. The others are kept outside until it is their turn to take the stand.

Seven British and American correspondents, not regularly stationed in Bulgaria, were present today to report the trial.

BACK BENCHERS

On the margarine question, he drew support from his brother, David Gourd (L.-Chapleau) — the brothers disagree on the spelling of the family name. David Gourd said farmers are suffering sufficient hardships without having to compete against margarine which would force down the price of butter.

Other speakers in the debate included A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal); Arthur Williams (CF-Ontario; C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River); Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec Montmorency); Wm. Bryce (CCF-Selkirk) and Cecil Merritt, V.C. (PC-Vancouver-Burrad.)

No National Divorce Court

At the House opening, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he neither knew of any intention to establish a national divorce court nor of any foundation for belief that Canada could have free trade with the United States if they wished.

Trade Minister Howe eliminated any hope that Ontario farmers might obtain more money for the eastern soft wheat they delivered to the Canadian Wheat Board between 1944 and 1948. He said the price they had received was a final price, unlike that given western farmers whose initial price was raised 20 cents yesterday.

External Affairs Minister Pearson announced that Canadians now may renew their passports for a fee of $2. Those who paid $5 for renewals after the Canadian citizenship act came into force January 1, 1947, will be entitled to $3 refunds.

In the debate, Mr. Williams and Mr. Johnston clashed on the question of government participation in housing construction.

Mr. Williams urged the government to go actively into the housing field because private enterprise would never solve the national shortage. It wasn't the best body to build homes.

Home Owners to Suffer

Forty home owners in Calgary, said Mr. Johnston, were going to lose all they owned because the government and an insurance company were foreclosing on a $250,000 project which a government agency had let to a firm with "not a nickel" and no building experience. He named the firm as the Bow River Construction Company.

He hoped the government would act immediately to protect the home owners, most of whom were veterans.

Mr. Williams said the housing problem could be solved if the government tackled it wholeheartedly. Shortages of men and materials were being blamed for the slow progress in home construction. There was neither a shortage of materials nor of manpower. Materials and men needed for home construction, however, were being used on unnecessary buildings.

Besides housing, Mr. Williams urged the government to inaugurate a national health insurance program.

Mr. Bryce called for better treatment of Canada's aged and charged that it was the government itself that was blocking the payment of higher old-age pensions.

Should Favor Pact

Dealing with agriculture, Mr. Bryce urged the government to make the Canadian Wheat Board the sole marketing agent for all grains and not only wheat. This would take the course grains off the speculative Winnipeg Grain Exchange and provide more stability for farmers.

Mr. Brooks a veteran of the two World wars who retired with the rank of colonel became one of the first members of his party to speak in support of the North Atlantic Security Pact in the Commons. He was sure that all members and all people who favor peace would support the pact.

He called for many developments in the Maritimes, including the construction of the Chignecto canal near the Nova Scotia New Brunswick border. The canal would cut 400 miles off the sea distance between Montreal and Saint John, N.B. This shortened route could be of great value in taking Labrador and Quebec iron ore down the coast to New England.

Mr. Lacroix said the Progressive Conservatives were inconsistent in asking for tax reductions. High taxes resulted from the war and the Progressive Conservatives had supported Canadian participation in the war and had continually called for a greater and greater effort by this country.

Voted Against "Gifts"

He recalled how he had voted against participation and against "gifts" to the United Kingdom, because he realized what it would cost the Canadian people.

Mr. Fraser renewed his annual attack on the Crown-owned National Film Board. He welcomed reports that its films were improving, but he felt that financial the people were not getting value for the money.

The board was curtailing expansion of the motion-picture industry and was hurting private photographic firms.

Mr. Merritt dealt particularly with the unemployment situation and said the Federal government should accept responsibility for emploable men in British Columbia. A "very serious" unemployment situation had developed in the cities of Biritsh Columbia.

But there was no indication that the government planned to do anything but hope it blows over. He doubted that the government had any idea what to do.

MACHINE AGE

Only four per cent of the work is done by animals on a modern Canadian farm; 92 per cent is done by machines, the rest by men.

RINGS OF AGE

Canadian fishery scientists are able to determine the age of eels by the number of rings on the scales which are embedded in the skin.

IMPOUND CARS?

Vernon, B. C. — (CP) — Vernon city council is considering establishing a pound for stray autos. Ald. D. D. Harris made the proposal, saying cars were being parked on streets for long period.

THE ECONOMIC PINCH

O'Leary, P. E. I. — (CP) — Shaves are still 15 cents here. Barbers would lose customers if the put up prices. It's the law of diminishing returns in relation to barber-shop income.

Law of Common Decency on Highways

Conduct of drivers on the roads and highways was the subject of an illuminative address to the Goods Roads Association convention in Toronto this week by the Hon. George Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, who brought to this body a view of their manner of driving, back of which he set a picture of the havoc caused by accidents which claimed the lives of about 740 persons last year, injured a good-sized cityful or townful of others to the number of 14,970 and destroyed property value of over seven million dollars. The situation he called one in which the people are faced "with a shocking loss of life and a thought-provoking list of injuries."

The answer to the situation he said was not only strict enforcement of the law, the denial of the right to the use of the roads of the Province and the impounding or confiscation of automobiles but the placing before every user of the roads the principle of "common, ordinary, good citizenship."

That driver is certainly not a good citizen who breaks the laws and does what may cause a fatal or a distressing accident or causes the loss of even his own or other people's property in cars.

The Minister lays blame on many in the taking of too great chances on the roads. One of the glaring facts he brought before the convention was that it is estimated that one out of every hundred car drivers pays no attention to the few red lights on the wide and lighted Queen Elizabeth Highway between Hamilton and Toronto. That means no less than 185,000 infractions in a year. Others refuse to regard stop signs. In the words of the Minister, some drivers increase traffic hazards at these very signposts on the highway and make of them a menace rather than a precaution for safety. The reason is very clear, many law-abiding drivers expect to find others obeying the traffic lights. So then how easy it is for these latter persons to fall victims of such drivers, as the man who obeys the law may be caught as a victim as a result of his confidence that others will obey the rules and do not.

To many it may seem a high ideal to expect that every driver will observe "the law as in the spirit of good citizenship, a sense of decency and responsibility," but that is what all should do.

The driver who takes advantage of other persons' respect for the highway laws and ignores every precaution of red lights or stop signs or breaks the code that Mr. Doucett holds up before all drivers, "the law of common decency."

The Minister's talk was a straightforward and direct appeal to the best in everyone in charge of a motor vehicle, for breaking a motor regulation may bring disaster which never can be repaired or recompensed.

Unusual and Strange

Scarcely a day comes but the weather is different from what might be expected. Memory will have to stretch far back to match it. Zero was touched early in the season but just for a nightime and there have been no days when the mercury dipped under or down to zero. Much of the time the temperature has been above freezing.

So far so good and yet the weather has had and has everyone guessing. No one has been known to claim that he or she predicted just such a spell as we have had. Some scientists came near it by guessing an open winter but this season has been a wide-open season.

Some have naturally been expecting a revival of the rule of opposites with boisterous weather filling February with drifts, replacing the gentle days and nights of the first part of the season. But they were not supported by the weather.

Even yet he would be a rash individual who would try to foretell just the course of the season through the next four weeks and more of March and of the month that follows.

Even the adage of the bear and the woodchuck seeing a shadow or not has gone by the board. There was sunshine at noon on February 2nd for the animals to see their shadows and that meant, legend says, the wintry winds would blow and tons of snow would fall while the mercury would sink deep in the bulb of the thermometer. But none of that happened. Like humans, the animals have been misled, disappointed or surprised.

This year the winter has not been what it used to be, it has been up to all sorts of tricks to surprise both man and beast. High temperatures and bright sunny days in March have upset us here as deep snows and blizzards and floods have upset the people in the western United States.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 26th., 1929

Dr. Forin, of Edmonton, Alberta, has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. George D. English, Melrose.

Mrs. William Warham left today for Saskatoon, Sask., to join her husband who has accepted a position there.

Miss Margaret Stillman, Reg. N., New York City, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stillman, in this city.

Miss Jean Burgess spent the weekend with Miss Evelyn Mills, in Kingston.

Mrs. F. C. Lee has returned home from Campbellford where she visited friends.

30 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 26th., 1919

In a hockey match between Boy Scout teams, the Patrol Leaders and the Patrol Corporals, the latter team won, the score being 6 to 0. The following composed the teams: Patrol Leaders: Jack Sarley, Jack Crozier, Harry Anderson, Irwin McPherson, James Jeffrey and Charles Jeffrey. Patrol Corporals: Willie George, C. Rigby, C. Barnett, L. Barlow, S. Gaines and G. Watts. The Patrol Leaders played well, but they could not get the rubber in the net. James and Charles Jeffrey are clever players. Harry Anderson and Irwin McPherson made several splendid rushes. For the Corporals, George Watts and S. Gaines had the credit of each scoring three goals. Nothing could get by Willie George in goal.

Five wards for Belleville seems to be the desire of a large majority of the electorate. This would mean a council of sixteen members, which would be neither too many nor too few.

Mr. Irwin Wallace is home from McGill University, Montreal, to spend a few days.

Mrs. H. Hammond has returned to her home in Campbellford after visiting friends here.

Mr. W. S. Hunter and daughter, Helen, of Montreal, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lockwood.

Mrs. D. Adna Brown and daughter, Margaret, of Philadelphia, Pa., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Brown, Coleman St.

In a fast and rough hockey match here the Ontarios of Port Hope defeated the Quintes of this city for the championship of the Midland League, the final score being 7 to 6. The following composed the teams: Quintes: W. Nolan, Glencoe Hulme, Fillion, H. McGuire, W. Mallory, Ernest Lang and Irwin Wallace. Ontarios: H. Duyell, D. C. Raymond, J. D. McMillan, C. C. Coleman, W. Lawrenceson, O. Hamely and C. A. Hayden. The referee was W. McMillan of Port Hope. The goal umpires were Frank Brintnell and George Brown. The Belleville team played beautiful hockey in streaks, but on the whole their play was not as fast as their opponents. McGuire and Lang were most in evidence on Belleville's forward line, but Wallace and Mallory were as game as usual and made some sensational plays. Billy Nolan did good work in goal and Hulme was a good man on the job.

Mr. James Pepper, of Lanark, Ontario, is visiting Mr. John Pepper, Great St. James St.

Mr. M. B. Morrison, mayor of Trenton, and M.P.P., for West Hastings, was a visitor in town today.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MR. AND MRS. LATE

One of the things that I was brought up on was punctuality. My father and mother were "sticklers" on that, and I do not think that they failed in their teaching, for I make it a point always to "be there on time."

In business, punctuality is a virtue that one cannot afford to violate. But in our everyday lives we have become well acquainted with "the late" Mr. or "the late" Mrs. Both are known to be guilty parties, as we all know. I know one very well—and that one lives in my own household! Perhaps you have one in your home, as well.

Is there anything more disturbing than to invite a number of guests for a certain hour in your home and be compelled to make changes in the program because of "the late" Mr. and Mrs.? Take the theatre, for example. The curtain has risen. There is darkness in the place, and then these Mr. and Mrs. Lates start crawling over you to get to their seats. Often just as the house roars at something that you could not get because of the confusion, the shut-off view — or perhaps a wounded toe!

I once knew a big business man who would not have anything to do with the one who arrived to keep an appointment even one minute late. Hamilton once arrived late at one of George Washington's cabinet meetings and blamed his watch. Washington replied that Hamilton would have to get a new watch or he, Washington, would have to get a new secretary!

The train that you take for a trip leaves on time. Mr. and Mrs. Late must be on it, or take a second one. In radio, if you aren't there, you are off the air! Time is counted by second there. Every second his its price.

People who would be shocked if you accused them of stealing anything personal from you, think nothing of robbing you of your time, and then making a joke of it. The joke is on them, however, for often a job or a friend is lost by such a procedure.

ANCIENT INDUSTRY

Amphibious Scoot Proves Its Adaptability in Winter Travel

By LORNE LETHERBY
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Coldwater, Ont. — (CP) Keith Robinson, a young merchant here, is developing amphibious winter travel. A furniture dealer and undertaker in this village of 700, miles from Midland, Robinson also builds boats.

Latest product of his machine shop is a snowplane, which travels over land and water, snow and ice.

Robinson's scoot looks like a Buck Rogers' invention. Fourteen feet long with a six-foot beam, the snowplane has a snug cabin for five persons with front and side windows and curved nose.

Powered from the rear by a 140-horse-power Tiger Moth engine, the flat-bottomed scoot can travel more than 100 miles an hour on a snow surface. Cruising speed is about 50 miles an hour.

Robinson was dissatisfied with his snowmobile as its skis were suitable for ice and snow surfaces only. His first snowplane, completed a few weeks ago, was made for a former Coldwater man, Herbert Sheppard of Biscotasing who needed a snowplane for transportation in the north.

Georgian Bay Test

Named the "Penguin," this snowplane tested perfectly at Honey Harbor. During part of the run the amphibian plunged through thin ice and travelled several hundred yards in the water before regaining firm ice again.

The scoot weighs less than 100 pounds and is operated with a gas throttle and lever. This type of machine is becoming very popular "up the shore" where travel during winter months is severely restricted.

Residents among the island of Georgian Bay used to depend on dogs and horses, but weather conditions sometimes render animals and sleighs useless.

Some use makeshift snowmobiles including converted punts with airplane motor attachment.

Competition in manufacture of scoots has been stimulated by the annual carnivals at Honey Harbor and Penetanguishene which draw thousands of spectators and are the highlight of winter activity in these parts.

Some of the features of the scoot have been copied from a snowplane designed by Keith's brother-in-law, Alfred Brodeur. Members of the Brodeur boatbuilding family of Waubaushene, Brodeur is an overseer for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. His "Otter" amphibian for travel among the 30,000 islands of Georgian Bay is now used by the department.

Mackenzie's Column:

All Communists Owe Allegiance First to Russia

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The grave clash between the Paris government and the country's powerful communist party has brought France again up against the fact that all communists, irrespective of birth, regard themselves as owing allegiance first to Russia.

Yesterday a high government source in Paris said War Minister Ramadier was taking legal action against the central committee of the French communist party for allegedly inciting the army to revolt.

Ramadier's complaint was said to be based on statements made in posters and the communist daily L'Humanite during the miners' strike last autumn. These statements revolved about the theme that "France never will fight the Soviet Union."

Preceding Act

We now move back to the preceding act. The reported government action followed a speech in parliament Tuesday by Maurice Thorez, communist party secretary-general and one of international communism's top leaders. Thorez repeated a statement that the French people should welcome the red army if it ever reached France.

The next day the French communist party formally declared that the French people "will never make war against the Soviet union." This declaration further contained a blast against the United Nations
United States, saying in part:

"The American imperialists, who seek world domination, want — with their valets — to make war against the Soviet Union. They want to drag France into such a monstrous war — a France destined to furnish the infantry to be sacrificed."

Vote Condemnation

The National Assembly the following day voted condemnation of French communist leaders for alleged treasonable statements, and expressed confidence in the governments to punish them. During the debate Premier Henri Queuille threatened to take legal action against the communist leaders for attempting to "undermine the morale of the nation and the army."

However, the Assembly rejected a motion calling on the government to prosecute Thorez on specific charges of treason or incitement to treason. Thorez' statement, of course, is based on the idea of aggression against Russia by the United States and other western powers, including France. Does he believe the west has aggressive designs? Well, that's the line Moscow takes and Thorez is bound to accept it. Perhaps Russia does not believe it.

In any event it's clear that French communists, like the communists in any other country, give their allegiance to Moscow in all matters affecting Russia and communism. That's one thing which makes the solution of the "cold war" so difficult.

Quebec Govt. Seeking Power To Outlaw Oleo

(By The Canadian Press)

The Quebec government is seeking power to outlaw margarine.

It distributed to the Legislative Assembly yesterday copies of a bill designed to empower the Provincial Cabinet to ban manufacture, sale or possession of butter substitutes in Quebec Province. Stiff fines or prison terms for those who defied the ban were proposed.

The bill, still to be considered by the provincial parliament, proposes provision for seizure and confiscation of margarine supplies as well as motor vehicles used for transport and delivery of the butter substitute within the province.

It also says that any ordinary person found in possession of margarine if the ban is imposed will be liable to fines ranging from $10 to $350, or up to 30 days' imprisonment.

Throne-speech debate ended yesterday at Regina and Charlottetown. Prince Edward Island observers said there is a strong possibility that the Island House, which started its 1949 session last Tuesday, may prorogue within the next two weeks.

One of the final speakers in the Saskatchewan throne-speech debate, Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollett, blamed the federal government for what he described as declining food production in Canada. He said that Canada's essential food contracts with Britain, with the exception of wheat, have dwindled to the vanishing point.

Criticism Voiced

Criticism of an Alberta government-printed pamphlet outlining child welfare procedure was voiced in continuing throne-speech debate at Edmonton by J. Harper Prowse, Alberta Liberal leader. He said statements in the pamphlet differed from comments on the same points in the report of a royal commission set up to investigate child welfare in the province.

Questions on mental hospital operation bobbed up in the Ontario legislature when the government sought second reading of a bill restricting admission to a mental hospital at Toronto to residents of the immediate Toronto area. Premier T. L. Kennedy assured opposition speakers he would make available information on the qualifications of provincial mental hospital psychiatrists, the facilities available and the nummber of patients admitted.

The budget brought down at Victoria said there would be no tax increase, but promised no tax cuts. Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb budgeted for current expenditure of $92,308,018 in the 1949-50 fiscal year and estimated revenue at $92,980,000. It was the biggest budget in British Columbia's history.

The Manitoba legislature gave second reading to a bill to amend that province's Defamation Act. The principal change recommended was that a headline be treated as a separate report, apart from the body of an article, especially in regard to public proceedings.

ADVICE TO PEOPLE WITH WEAK NERVES

From time to time some reader talks down his nose at me in an attempt to impart to me the facts about neurasthenia or "weak nerves," exhaustion or whatever you please to call it. I believe I could take it were it not for the exasperating trick these neurotics have of referring to their own notions as the pronouncements of eminent specialists and to my teachings as my claims. They devote a page or pages to an earnest effort to impose their conceptions of nerve weakness upon me, and a sentence to telling me they are willing to receive any suggestions I may care to offer.

It makes a forbidding atmosphere in which to intrude but in my kindly way I tell 'em to do a little less bellyaching about their poor delicate nerves and perhaps a little more belly breathing to induce relaxation, especially when tension keeps them from falling asleep when they go to bed at night. For this purpose I'll send any reader who asks for it in writing (please, no clipping) and provides stamped self addressed envelope, instructions for Belly Breathing.

Even though I snicker in my unsympathetic way at the unphysiological concept of nerve weakness or nervous exhaustion or nerve energy apart from physical or muscular energy, you never can tell till you try whether the suggestions I offer you misguided neurotics are good or not. In any case, you may be sure that what I do advise will do no harm if it does no good.

For one thing you should boop your calcium intake. For that matter nearly everybody in this country who doesn't consume his or her daily quart of milk and/or cheese and other milk products would probably experience improvement in health from supplementing the ordinary diet with a daily ration of calcium and vitamin D for eight or ten weeks. The whys and wherefores of this are given in the booklet The Calcium Shortage—for which send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Haldane's Respiration suggests that the complaint of many patients that they cannot get enough air is not just an imaginary symptom but in many instances it is quite rational. They suffer from a moderate asphyxia, anoxemia or anoxia, oxygen deficiency in blood and tissues. Is that bad? Why, it's terrible. There's the whole outdoors full of oxygen absolutely free of cost to anybody who will carry it away, and yet these unhappy people just sit there on their—they won't take it because it is not sanctioned by an eminent specialist.

I earnestly advise every individual who believes his or her trouble is weak nerves or nervous exhaustion, to try taking two miles of oxygen on the hoof three times a day, or three miles twice a day, or six miles once a day. Walking for exercise, that is. The finest general exercise anyone can take. Exercise increases the absorption of oxygen—into blood and tissues. It clears up that oxygen deficit, and if you keep at it till you develop the habit of walking instead of riding wherever it is feasible, which is most of the time, you'll discover in the course of a few months that there's nothing the matter with your nerves, after all.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Alcohol and Rheumatiz

Please send your pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz. It seems as if it has been the plague of all the family but one, and I wonder if this one member of the family owes his freedom from any sign of it to the circumstance that he takes his whiskey regularly. (G. J.)

Answer—Pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz available to any one who asks for it and provides stamped self addressed envelope. If chronic "rheumatism" is a degeneration due to moderate nutritional deficiency through the years, as I believe, the use of any kind of alcoholic beverage or liquor regularly would tend to bring the trouble on earlier, as it does other nutritional deficiency diseases.

Yankee Means North American

Maybe my Mexican birth disqualifies me, but certainly I have what you described as Yankee Stomach, and I inclose self addressed U. S. stamped envelope. Please send me the pamphlet on that subject. (H. V.)

Answer—Mexico is part of North America, and in my lexicon any one born or resident in North America is a Yankee. The pamphlet Yankee Stomach deals with hyperacidity, gas, heartburn, hunger pain etc. Any one who provides stamped self addreassed envelope may have a copy.

That's What All the Girls Say

I am worried about putting on so much weight I do not need or want. It seems that everything I eat goes to fat. (Mrs. L. H.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet How to Lose Weight. Everything you eat wouldn't go to fat if you would walk to and from school, work, shop, office, club or market instead of riding.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

An otter can make a greater variety of sounds than most animals. It can quack like a duck and bark like a terrier. It can whistle, spit, yelp and growl. And it can emit the most derisive raspberry you ever heard.

If you take an otter unawares, it instantly dives with a startling splash. But almost immediately reappears; its seal-like whiskers sticking out in angry consternation, while it spits and makes raspberries at you like a small boy in a slum street.

The otter is a spirited animal. Everybody knows about otter slides, where they engage in sliding down hill with all the gust of skiers. But their way of life itself is playful and full of a sort of hilarity. They weigh from fifteen to twenty-five pounds, are often over three feet long from nose to tip of tail. A big, lithe, sleek animal, it can swim like a seal and makes a pleasure out of chasing the fish it feeds on. An otter fishing is like a boy playing water polo, full of splashes, whoops and fun. It is said to kill far more fish than it needs, from sheer devilment, leaving the carcasses on the shore with a bite or two out of the back. But who knows but that the otter, a fine, hearty creature, has a soft spot for the bald eagles, crows, fox, bear and other brothers who also live fish but can't chase them? In our quaint human way, we like to reserve the notion of charity to ourselves alone. However, the more you look at nature with your hands in your pockets, the more you wonder.

In summer, when the three or four young are old enough to come forth from the den with its submarine entrance, the whole family goes travelling far and wide, from stream to swamp to lake, sliding, rollicking all the way. An otter may be charitable, but it likes to lose its young in a country far from its own favorite territory.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PROMISE OF TRIUMPH

Some people feel that Christianity should insure the believer against trouble and sorrow. It puzzles everyone of us when we see the saints suffering and the sinners riding high, wide, and handsome. Why doesn't God take better care of his own? We find people asking; and sometimes we venture the query ourselves.

But Christianity never insures people against trouble; it only insures them against defeat. The Bible tells us that whom the Lord loves, he chastens. Life is a school. If we have a great capacity to learn, God sees to it that our lessons are chosen with that fact in mind. We have a spiritual I.Q. as well as an intellectual, and God sees that there are lesson assignments which always match up with that spiritual I.Q. of ours.

God permits us to encounter the trials, temptations, and sorrows which, as we wrestle with them, will make us strong. He makes no promise about what our lesson assignment will be, but He does promise that we shall not fail or be defeated if we put our trust in Him. The promise is not that life will be easy, but that through faith it will be victorious — and that, no matter how hard it turns out to be.

Canada's Youthful Champions Feature Quinte Skating Club's Colorful Ninth Annual Show

Colorful to the extreme with distinguished Canadian figure skating champions augmenting an outstanding all-star local cast, the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club's Ninth Annual Winter Show scored an unqualified success here last night.

The guest artists, Miss Maureen Senior, Canadian Junior ladies champion, Joy Forsyth and Ronald Vincent, Canadian Junior pairs champions, and W. E. Lewis, runner-up in the Canadian Men's Senior championship, all of the Toronto Skating Club, gave ample evidence in a brilliant display of ice artistry of their titular calibre.

Show Masterpiece

The show proper is a masterpiece of creative ingenuity on the part of those in charge. It moves along smoothly, in a varied sequence of colorful events, that entertains the audience with its glitter, color, and originality.

Comedy on skates, intersperses the light, but dramatic effects of the pantomime presentations. The ice decorative scheme is laid out to cater to the "Aladdin Lamp" number. Masques, a mysterious tent, and other colorful Oriental embellishments form the decorations on the ice.

Comes "Aladdin and the Lamp" (Gordon Davies) and all the colorful Oriental swirl with jewel girls and the genii, (Reuben Kline, Gladys Beatty). It is a picturesque feature of the show.

But to this writer, outside of the scintillating performances of the Canadian champions and other guest artists, the "piece de resistance" was the martial, to use a parade interpretation of "Anchors Aweigh."

Precision Skating

This is a colorful presentation of precision skating drill performed by 24 Quinte Skating Club senior members.

Garbed in the traditional navy blue and white, the girls and they are all girls, to the rhythms of martial music, go through the sprightly intricacies of a well-trained military squad. This number took the audience by storm with its colorful costumes and precision-like execution of various manoeuvres.

Opening the show is the picturesque ice fantasy of "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King."

To the more or less familiar music of the "Nutcracker Suite" the story is dramatized in unique ice fashion.

Mary Jane McNally as the "Poor Little Girl" gives an outstanding ice performance with the Kerr sisters, Doris and Marylin doing equally well as the "Fairies". Wilma Graham stands out as the "Nutcracker" while troupes of younger members provide the background as "Lead Soldiers" and "Mice."

Nancy David leads well as the "Sugar Plum Fairy", heading a cast of "Mushrooms" led by Olivia Weese and Linda Kells and Beverley Mae Davies. Shirley Fox does an admirable job as "Jack-in-the-Box."

A Pretty Number

Colorful augmentation to this number is the "Candy Parade" This is one of the prettiest numbers of the show, with junior members of the club colorfully garbed, to represent the various types of sweetmeats.

The "Dance of the Flutes" is a distinct innovation. Some thirty or more skaters colorfully garbed in medieval costumes, playing imaginary flutes, go through graceful skating manoeuvres in keeping with the theme.

Sprightly Comedy

Then comes sprightly comedy. The "Proteges" a half-dozen or more of grotesquely made-up clowns, provide a lot of fun with hilarious antics. The "Chick Sales" effect of Jack Dickens and partner evoked howls of laughter from the crowded arena. Mike Ridley also drew rounds of applause with a riotous comedy act.

Dazzling Exhibition

But, notwithstanding the fine performance and background of the local club, the newly crowned Canadian champions, guest star provided the thrill of the evening.

Tall, attractive blonde Maureen Senior, fifteen-year-old Canadian junior lady champion, gave a dazzling exhibition of figure-skating. She swept through the various figures with fawn-like grace. She, like her colleagues of the Toronto Skating Club, two of them champions, the other a near-champion, won the hearts of the audience with their fine performances.

Ronald Vincent and Joy Forsyth, Canadian junior pair champions, thrilled the crowd-packed arena with a brilliant exhibition.

W. E. Lewis, of Toronto, runner-up in the Senior Men's Canadian figure-skating championships, left little doubt in the minds of his audience, that he is one of Canada's outstanding figure-skating stars. He gave a brilliant performance, and like his colleagues of the Toronto Skating Club, generously gave an encore.

Mike Ridley again demonstrated that he is one of Belleville's outstanding skaters. Mike did a fine "single" as well as assisting in uproarious comedy.

To write any more would "give the show away."

It is outstanding entertainment by far the best the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club has staged thus far. It is well worth seeing.

There will be a matinee this afternoon starting at 2.30 and the final performance will be given tonight starting at 8.30.

Officials of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club, with the various committees are: Honorary President, Mayor D. L. Storey; President, Mr. Ossie Hales; Vice-Presidents, Mr. A. S. Robb, Dr. A. F. Wilkes; Treasurer, Mr. J. E. Dickens; Secretary, Miss G. Keough.

Board of Directors: Mrs. O. Hales, Miss L. Sprackett, Mr. G. Davies, Mr. L. Digby, Mr. B. Miles, Mr. B. McGregor, Mr. B. Sheffield, Mr. C. A. Ridley, Mr. C. Miller, Mr. W. Fox.

Canadians Cited For Bravery In Rescue of Twelve

Washington, Feb. 25 (CP)—The United States Navy today saluted four Canadian airmen for their part in the rescue of five men lost in the wild of Northern Manitoba for 12 days last September.

Each received the Navy's Legion of Merit Award for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" in "the largest and one of the most difficult air searches ever conducted in Canada." The four are:

Group Captain Z. L. Leigh, commanding officer of a search-and-rescue unit at The Pas, Man.

FO. Rene J. Lemieux, pilot of the Lancaster which located the missing men.

Flt. Lt. Robert V. Virr, pilot of the Canso which landed in hazardous terrain and flew the five back to civilization.

The search started Sept. 12, a few hours after the forced landing of a United States Navy Beechcraft plane en route from Churchill, Man., to The Pas.

Among the passengers were Capt. Benjamin Custer, United States naval attache at Ottawa, and Capt. Sir Robert Stirling-Hamilton, naval adviser at the British High Commissioner's office in Ottawa.

Two United States service men, members of the lost party, were commended for their "courage, resourcefulness and knowledge of survival technique which contributed to the survival and ultimate rescue." They are Navy Pilot Jack M. Kastner and Army Sgt. George Scalise.

Subject of Citations

The citations, in part:

Costello: "A skilled airman and excellent leader, Air Commodore Costello effectively supervised the search, involving 35 Canadian and United States aircraft, for a period of 12 days...

Leigh: "Through his keen judgment and insight into the tremendous problems at hand, Group Capt. Leigh was able to plan, coordinate and personally direct (the) search.. Group Capt. Leigh, by his skill and devotion to duty, was instrumental in bring (it) to a successful termination."

Lemieux: "FO. Lemieux persistently continued an intensive night-and-day search for the missing aircraft and personnel in the face of extremely difficult conditions. FO. Lemieux finally succeeded in locating the lost plane Sept. 24.

Virr: "Directed to the vicinity in which the lost plane was located Sept. 24, he found the survivors, and under extremely hazardous conditions effected the rescue.' '

Kastner: An able woodsman and marksman, he contributed greatly to the survival of the passengers and crew during the ensuing nine days and, when the group decided to attempt a march out of the woods, broke the trail over difficult terrain. Kastner, by his courage and resourcefulness, aroused the respect and esteem of all members of the group."

Scalise: "Master Sgt. Scalise conducted himself in a manner which aroused the admiration of all members of the group." Kastner receives a letter from Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan. Scalise's citation is contained in a letter of appreciation from Sullivan to Army Secretary Kenneth Royall. It becomes a part of his official record.

says if there isn't an income tax cut someone had better start ducking.

Squawks

Most of the outside income tax squawks seem to come through the mail because there's no organized voice to carry the plaint of the little man.

Nobody, that is, except virtually every member of parliament, virtually every house policeman and clerk who can snarl at Mr Abbott as he passes, virtually every reporter who can emphasize the ragged edge of his sleeves, virtually every stenographer capable of marshalling an appealing eye.

The process goes on subtly, directly, mercilessly, endlessly. The Liberals hoist the issue in their caucus; it's lower taxes or political suicide they cry, and Mr. Abbott smiles a knowing smile. The opposition says it in the House and Mr. Abbott smiles in sympathy. The pilgrims come and the pilgrims go and Mr. Abbott smiles his understanding.

Got a beef? His office is on the main floor of the centre block, just inside the door.

SLIDES PLAY HAVOC WITH TRAFFIC AND COMMUNICATIONS IN B. C.

A Great Northern Railroad passenger train staggers every which way on the track after encountering a landslide on the run from Vancouver, B.C., to Seattle, Wash. No one was injured and train passengers completed their trip to Seattle by bus. Slides have been playing havoc with highway traffic, train and wire communications in British Columbia. The slides are caused by warm rains and thaws which brought flood threats to B. C. districts. Telephone communications still are cut to a minimum, with lines twisted and torn. Few lines are available for long-distance calls to Eastern Canada.—Central Press Canadian.

C. Ontario Badminton Tourney Reaches Finals in Mens', Ladies' Doubles, Mixed Doubles to Play

Messrs Osborne and Brough of Bowmanville will battle with Messrs Adams and Irvine of Cobourg for the Mens' Doubles championship of the Central Ontario Badminton Association here tonight in the Bridge Street Armouries.

In the Mens' Consolation another Bowmanville pair, Messrs Bagnell and James will fight it out with Messrs McDonald and Taylor of Peterborough.

Mesdames Baker and O'Donahue of Peterborough will contest the Ladies' Doubles title with Miss Koren and Miss Hopkins of the Oshawa Flying Club, with Mrs. Anderson and Miss Flaxman of Bowmanville matching Mrs. Adams and Miss Allen of Cobourg in the Ladies' Consolation contest.

The Mixed Doubles will be decided tonight.

The tournament is the third in the history of the Central Ontario Badminton Association and the first to be held in this city. Upwards of 120 badminton enthusiasts are here from Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Belleville and Kingston. Winners of the tournament will enter the provincial championships to be staged in Toronto in the near future.

The tournament is being staged in the Bridge Street Armouries where a spacious floor accommodates eight courts.

Played Till Early Hours

Play started last night and the last event was not finished until the early hours of this morning. Play will be resumed this afternoon and the finals will be concluded tonight.

The highlight of last night's play was the semi-finals match between Adams and Irvine, Cobourg, and Baker and O'Donahue of Peterborough. Veteran observers stated that the match was hard-fought with lengthy rallies. It was equal, they said to any finals match played in the history of the Association. The first two games went to extra points and the decision was in doubt until the last stroke.

Officials Present

Outstanding badminton officials of the province are here for the tourney. Looking over the situation with a keen but discerning eye is President Cliff Palmer, president of the Central Ontario Badminton Association. Besides his prexy job with his own association, Mr. Palmer is a member of the executive of the Ontario Badminton Association. He is at present serving his third term as head of the Central Ontario organization.

The visiting players will be the guests of Lieut. Col. Jack Cousens and officers of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment tonight at a reception where trophies emblematic of the various championships will be presented to the winners.

Following is the list of entries:

Would Devalue Dollar for Trade With U.S.—Drew

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—Maintaining the Canadian dollar at par in relation to the United States dollar has the effect of "subsidizing United States imports," George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, told a press conference Friday.

He said that if he were leading the government he would revalue the dollar for purposes of trade with the United States at something near its actual value as shown by open trading on the New York money market.

His implication was that if the discount on the Canadian dollar in the United States was around 10 per cent, where it was maintained during the war, it would discourage Canadian purchases in that country.

Nevertheless the opposition leader said he was in favor of the greatest possible freedom of trade with the United States— and with other countries.

Mr. Drew talked 1 1-2 hours with correspondents in the press gallery at the second of his regular weekly conferences.

The talk ranged from monetary reform through election year practices by governments in office, restoration of titles to the leader's fluency in the French language.

Mr. Drew said:

Government spending and "beneficences" in election years is something that should not be tolerated and especially when, as at present, the government had large surpluses and sources of revenue under its control.

Neither he nor anyone else should attempt to discuss details of the North Atlantic security pact until the draft is available. This explained his silence on that subject so far although, he said, his attitude toward the principle of mutual security was well known.

He favored a national health and social-security program and much of the government's health program as announced by Health Minister Martin on Wednesday had been in effect in Ontario for years.

Mr. Drew said he had not given any thought to revival of the custom of the Canadian government recommending its citizens to the King for honors and awards— a custom dropped by the Liberal administration 20 years ago but revived during the Conservative regime of 1930-1935 and again dropped when Liberals returned to power.

Sues for Damages

London, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — The Court of Appeal yesterday reserved judgment in the appeal of Dr. John Hunter, London surgeon, against an order to pay £3,500 ($14,200) damages to James Whiteford, an American efficiency engineer, for alleged wrong diagnosis. Whiteford testified that Hunter told him in 1942 that he was suffering from cancer and had only a few months to live. Whiteford then dropped his business activities.

United Europe Ultimate Goal Of Conference

Brussels, Feb. 26 (CP)—Winston Churchill Friday declared liberation of police-controlled eastern European states to be the ultimate goal of the united Europe movement.

"Our ultimate purpose is their deliverance," he said in a speech opening the movement's international council in session here.

The wartime British Prime Minister expressed sympathy for eastern European countries, which he said "are at present held in the grip of a tyranny more permanently devastating than that of Hitler."

Unofficial delegations from 14 countries are here to further the cause of a United Europe.

They introduced new steps aimed to lead to union.

High on the list is a proposal for a European supreme court, above national governments, which would enforce the United Nations declaration of human rights.

Want Supreme Court

"It is absolutely necessary for Europe to be united," said Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak. "Otherwise Europe would lose its prestige in the world and precipitate the decline of the civilization which it represents."

Churchill hailed the concert of a United Europe as an ideal rising above national and party differences. He welcomed the representatives of two former enemy states, Germany and Italy.

"Now, less than four years after the cannonade of the most terrible of wars was ended," he said, "not only do we meet as allies in a common struggle, but welcome to our midst as friends and comrades, representatives of the great states and races with whom we have been so lately locked in frightful conflict."

Families of Seven D.P.'s Have Arrived

Sudbury, Feb. 26 (CP)—Families of seven newly-arrived displaced persons working at Thessalon will arrive here today, on the last leg of a 5,000-mile trip. Of Lithuanian, Ukrainian and German nationality, the wives of the men and their children arrived in Canada during the week.

No Time Like Present To Better Your Farm

If you're a farmer, you probably take stock of your farm and home before spring sowing and other seasonal tasks get underway. You'll know pretty well just what you need most to help bring you success and comfort.

Are any of the following items on your list: tractors, trucks, machinery, implements; livestock; construction, repair or extension of farm buildings, including homes; electrical heating, or water systems; fencing, drainage, or land improvement; washing or milking machines, refrigerators, cream separators, motors or other electrical appliances?

You'll find Henry Becker, local Bank of Montreal manager, glad to explain how B. of M. Farm Improvement Loans have helped many a Canadian farmer to enjoy these and other practical advantages.

Farm Improvement Loans cost little and can be repaid on convenient terms. Why not talk over your modernization plans with Mr. Becker, now. It may prove to be the first step toward increased production this year.—(Advt.)

PSYCHIATRISTS

There was at least one psychiatrist in each of Ontario's mental or psychiatric institutions, and in some cases three.

A. A. MacLeod (Lab-Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods) wanted to know what standards the health department imposed on psychiatists. Was a man a psychiatrist merely because he said he was?

Mr. Kelley said all psychiatrists employed by the government were "professionally" trained and complied with "medical standards."

Opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe of the C.C.F. said the members were entitled to "much fuller" information in regard to qualifications of psychiatrists, hospital facilities and the number of persons committed to mental institutions.

Premier Kennedy then suggested second reading be postponed while the information was obtained.

Amendment For Bill

The professional engineers act

moved by Attorney-General Blackwell would give the professional engineers association authority to refuse readmission dition that this aspect of the bill rears of dues. Under the present act readmission was mandatory in such cases.

The Attorney-General indicated such authority would be invoked only when a member had been guilty of misconduct while his dues were in arrears.
be acceptable if i includtreTA be acceptable if it included specific reference to misconduct but, in its present form, the asociation would have the authority to deny a man his livelihood merely because, through no fault of his own, he was unable to pay his dues for a certain period.

The opposition agreed to approve second reading on the condition that this aspect of the bill would be threshed out at the committee stage.

WEDDINGS

WOODLEY—TRUESDELL

Grace United Church, Gananoque, Ont., was the scene of a charming late Winter wedding at three o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 23, when Rev. H. D. McCuaig, pastor of the church, officiated at the marriage of Marjorie Ethelwyn Truesdell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Truesdell of Gananoque, and Earl George Woodley, son of Mr. Russell Woodley, of Belleville.

Quantities of snapdragons, daffodils and carnations adorned the altar, while the nuptial music was played by Miss E. deLong, who played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, as the bride entered the church and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the bridal party departed. During the signing of the register W. Clow offered as his solo "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length gown of white slipper satin fashioned with inset nylon yoke, gathered-in-waist with full flowing skirt and train. The long pointed sleeves fell in points at her finger tips, while the bodice was styled with small buttons from the yoke to the waistline. Her floor length veil was caught in a halo tiarra of seed pearls and she carried a white Bible and calla lily with white streamers and sprays of bouvardia and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. Arnold Carpenter as matron of honor, and Miss Shirley Truesdell as bridesmaid. The matron of honor wore a floor length gown of wine velvet, fashioned on princess style with gathered-in-waist, full flowing skirt and train. The bridesmaid wore a gown of royal blue velvet fashioned on similar lines and both carried muffs of matching material to their gowns. Little Miss Sylvia Woodley, cousin of the groom, was junior bridesmaid and she was attired in a floor length gown of royal blue velvet, with matching muff while Sharon Truesdell flower girl and niece of the bride, wore a floor length gown of wine velvet and she carried a basket of sweetpeas in pastel shades. Both the junior attendants wore bonnets of matching material to their gowns.

The groom was attended by his brother, Douglas Woodley, as best man while Arnold Carpenter and Harold Clarke acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Provincial Hotel where the many guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a street length gown of black crepe with pink accessories and she wore a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Russell Woodley, stepmother of the groom, attired in a gown of blue and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Montreal and points east. The bride chose for her travelling ensemble a green gabardine suit, green purse and she wore a Winter White hat with veil and a fur coat.

Upon their return the couple will take up residence in Gananoque.

Among those who entertained in honor of Miss Marjorie Truesdell, a bride of Wednesday, were Miss Mary Jane MacKay and Miss Patricia Young, who were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower, Mrs. Gordon Truesdell, Mrs. A. H. Carpenter and Mrs. Jack Truesdell, who were joint hostesses at a shower and Mrs. C. P. Truesdell, mother of the bride, who gave a trousseau tea.

CHILD OF DISCORD IN PATERNITY CASE

Opera star Ferruccio Tagliavini, who is accused in a paternity case brought by Mary Phillips, staged this cheek-to-cheek scene with his wife, Pia Tassinari, in New York's Special Sessions Court. Mrs. Tagliavini is standing by her husband, who denies he is the father of Miss Phillips' child.

Whether or not 17-month-old Florence Cecilia Phillips (above) is the daughter of Metropolitan Opera tenor Ferruccio Tagliavini is the question involved in a New York court action brought by the child's mother, Mary Phillips, an operatic aspirant. Miss Phillips is suing to have the singer declared the child's father. Tagliavini is fighting the charges. —Central Press Canadian.

Canadian to Play In French Movie

It's a big jump from a Canadian ministry to the heroine's role in a French movie but chique Susanne Cloutier apparently has made it in a single stride. The daughter of a minister in Canada, Miss Cloutier, photographed at her hotel in Paris, will be the star of the next film made by French producer Julien Duvivier. Fittingly enough for a minister's daughter, its title will be "Au Royaume Des Cieux" (Domain of the Gods).—Central Press Canadian.

Club Activities

CARMEL COMRADES

The Carmel Comrades met on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ritz, Bethany.

The meeting was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ritz, and group. The Scripture was then read by Clayton Ritz after which Russell Ritz ably presented the topic "God's Free Gift". Mrs. Russell Ritz closed the devotional period with a poem.

Miss Iva Horton, president, took charge of the business which included plans for the three one-act plays to be given by the Group at Carmel Church on March 2.

The program which followed included readings by Mrs. Carl Thompson and Mrs. Clayton Ritz, a solo by Mrs. John Lawrenson, and a piano solo by Carolyn Thompson. The meeting closed with the "Friendship Circle".

Recreation was given by Miss Muriel Homan and Mrs. Clayton Ritz, after which Mrs. Russell Ritz entertained.

The main event of the evening was a box social which followed with the men purchasing the lovely boxes for fifty cents each and an abundant supper-hour was then enjoyed.

At the close of the evening, Mr. Carl Thompson expressed a vote of thanks, on behalf of the group, to all those contributing to the success of the evening and to Mr. and Mrs. Ritz for the use of their home.

Masterly Performance Given By Violinist Odnoposoff

By EUGENE LANG

Last evening the Collegiate auditorium was filled to capacity by a host of music lovers from Belleville and surrounding districts to hear the renowed Argentine violinist, Ricardo Odnoposoff in his initial appearance in this city. Although a new personality to local concert goers, Mr. Odnoposoff has performed with great success under such master conductors as Toscanini, Bruno Walter, Rodzinski, Wilhelm Furtwangler and Felix Weingartner to mention only a few. He has appeared as soloist with the leading symphony orchestras of Europe, and North and South America and has left lasting impressions of his virtuosity wherever he has concertized.

Studying with the finest of teachers in his early years in his native Argentine, he eventually had the good fortune to be taken under the tutelage of Carl Flesch in Berlin, and later played under the baton of Erich Kleiber, then conductor of the celebrated Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Two highly sought after prizes in the violin field in Europe have been awarded to him, and a future of sensational successes shall undoubtedly rank him with the foremost violinists in the world today.

A program of diversified selections began with four works by leading 18th century composers. The rapt attention of the audience was immediately obtained with his spirited rendition of an allegro by J. H. Fiocco-Bent:O'Neill, this being followed by a devoted reading of a "Grave" movement arrangement from the B Flat English Suite for piano of J. S. Bach. A Rondo from the "Haffner" Serenade of Mozart arranged by Kreisler was given a flawless and ingratiating interpretation in which the artist carefully blended phrases of exceeding charm interspersed with cadenzas of artistic skill. "La Folia" by Corelli-Kreisler, a Spanish theme with variations of breath taking technique acquainted all present that Mr. Odnoposoff is endowed with a stupendous technical control over the violin, here utilized most efficiently and convincingly.

Masterly Technique

The featured composition of the entire recital was three movements from the "Symphonie Espagnole" of the French 19th century composer, Eduard Lalo, a work of virtuosic proportions demanding the utmost in technique, tone and timing on the part of the soloist. Mr. Odnoposoff performed this difficult concerto with the assurance of a virtuoso who can get from his instrument every nuance of tone, and degree of dexterity with a minimum of effortless ease.

After the intermission the accompanying pianist, Mr. Sanford Schlussel, whose accompaniments to Mr. Odnoposoff were of impeccable taste played three well known piano numbers, Nocturne in F Sharp Major by Chopin, Ritual Fire Dance by De-Falla, and Claire de Lune by Debussy, all being very well played and received.

Mr. Odnoposoff began his next group with Sarasate's "Habanera" a Spanish dance of rhythmic pulsations, here tossed off with decided dash and daring. A plaintive tune, "Song of the Black Swan" by the Brazillian Villa-Lobos was endearingly woven with a velvet tone, this being followed by and arrangement of the Theme and Processional from the Orchestral Suite "Peter and the Wolf" of the Russian Prokofieff. This was the only work of the entire recital that did not lend itself to a satisfying hearing, even though Mr. Odnoposoff tellingly imitated the different animals that abound in the fairy tale story. This Suite was written for full orchestra, and through that medium only can the tone colors be convincingly comprehended, any adaptation for violin and piano simply being too weak in volume for conveyance to the audible sensitivities of the programmatic listener. Double stopping in all its brilliance was part of the thrills witnessed and heard in the joyful playing of "Danza Brasiliana" of Harold Triggs by the artist of the evening.

Preludes Well Presented

Two preludes of varied character were presented admirably, the first of these displaying the effects that a muted violin can portray, namely melancholy and sereness. Both were by the contemporary Russian creator, Shostakovich. The final scheduled composition was "La Campanella", the last movement of the Paganini 2nd Violin Concerto, a work of dazzling virtuoso speed and technique, being performed with an agility of finger work and bowing "con fuoco" that left nothing to be desired further in technical proficiency from this great interpreter.

The audience recalled Mr. Odnoposoff back three times, each time being rewarded with an encore. La Capricciosa by Ries, given with polished pyrotechnical precision; "Zapateado" by Sarasate, another tour de force for the violin seasoned with passion, and the delicate "Valse Sentimentale" of Tschaikowsky reverently rendered brought the recital of this gifted violinist to a close.

Madoc Nurse Accepts Position In Saskatchewan

Madoc.—Miss Gladys N. Aylesworth, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Aylesworth, of Madoc, has accepted the position of consultant and regional supervisor in Public Health Nursing over the outpost districts of Saskatchewan where the government is introducing Public Health Nursing services for the first time.

One of the interesting features of this appointment is a six months' course in midwifery which Miss Aylesworth plans to take at Maternity Centre, New York, enrolling with the class which begins in September of this year.

Miss Aylesworth is a graduate of Madoc public and high schools also a graduate of Toronto General Hospital School of Nurses, and of the University of Toronto School of Nursing. She has had several years of successful experience in both institutional and the public health aspects of nursing and seems particularly well adapted for her new responsible position.

Pancakes Hot Off the Griddle For Shrove Tuesday

March 1st is Shrove Tuesday! No doubt most of you will be serving plates of delicious pancakes hot off the griddle I think you will find them one of the most inexpensive dishes you can serve these days. With one of the up-to-date Pancake Ready Mixes you can make a plate of 4 delicious pancakes for less than 5c. Wonderful, isn't it?

Regardless of how good a cook we may be, we can always take a few hints. You can make perfect pancakes every time if you follow these simple steps:

1. Add liquid to Ready Mix all at once and just stir lightly. Batter that is a little lumpy makes lighter and fluffier pancakes.
2. Be sure griddle is correct temperature. When a drop of water will bounce for a second before evaporating or when a spoonful of batter browns in one minute, the griddle is just hot enough.
3. Grease griddle very lightly with an unsalted shortening (unless yours is the kind that needs no grease).
4. Pour the batter for each pancake on the griddle quickly. (One fourth of a cup of batter makes a nice medium size pancake.)
5. Bake until cakes are covered with bubbles and edges look dry. Turn cakes and bake until brown on other side. Don't pat cakes or turn them more than once.
6. Serve them hot off the griddle. Stacking the cakes and letting them stand tends to make them soggy.

Serve butter melted—it's easier to use and goes farther. Serve syrup warmed, it will bring out the aroma.

Perhaps you would like to try something just a little different when serving your family pancakes on Shrove Tuesday. I have found these receipts not only delicious but very easy to fix. Try them yourself.

For the Main Course

Cheese Pancakes

1 cup Ready Mix Pancake Flour
1¼ cups water or milk
1/3 cup grated sharp cheese.

Mix and bake according to general directions. Eight cakes.

Corn Pancakes

Praline Sauce

Add ½ cup chopped pecan meats to 1½ cups brown sugar syrup or maple syrup and serve over pancakes.

Foxboro-Carmel 3-Act Comedy Real Success

The hilarious 3-act comedy, "Cousin Jill From Junction Hill," presented by the Carmel-Foxboro Young People's Union, has been very well received and acclaimed as one of the best productions of the season. Written by Philip Steele, the play was produced under the direction of Mrs. George Priest, Foxboro. First presented in Foxboro before a capacity audience, the young people have since played to appreciative audiences in Plainfield, Wooler, Frankford, Holloway and Thomasburg.

Fast-moving in its action, the story of the play centres around the family of Godfrey Ralston, a wealthy financier. Capably played by Douglas Ross, Godfrey has no end of trouble keeping both his own and his family's affairs on an even keel. Mrs. Godfrey Ralston (Mavis), Godfrey's socially ambitious wife, is convincingly played by Ann Marie McCullough. Constantly seeking opportunities to win social acclaim, Mavis tries to rule the affairs of her family and of everyone else.

She succeeds with her daughter Hallie, effectively portrayed by Reta Christie. A spoiled and pampered young lady, Hallie is constantly at her mother's beck and call. This is not true of the Ralston's son, Jeremy, who returns home from military service. This part is well played by Harvey Homan, who repeatedly demonstrates that he has a mind of his own, and also a delightful sense of humor.

Into this family circle come the remaining members of the cast. There is Cousin Jill from Junction Hill, who appears very unexpectedly at the Ralston home. Stella Gay, as Jill, is very much "in character" as the straightforward, alert, boyish, and truthful girl who causes no end of excitement and upsets the lives of the Ralston family. Mercy Kendrick, wealthy spinster and gossip of the community, appears often with "the latest" in news, which she delights in telling. Helen Bartlett gives a fine representation of this character. Anthony Taylor, well played by Percy Priest, is Hallie's fiance who later turns his affections to Jill and the ranch she owns in Texas. This way of life he prefers to the stuffy atmosphere of the social set.

Are Indispensable to Cast

The remaining members of the cast, though having fewer appearances, yet are disipensable to the story of the play, and each gives an effective portrayal of the character represented. Dorothy Read plays the part of Judith Arthur, a friend of Jeremy, and an artist's model. Marie Prentice is Jennie Purvis, a friend of Jills, a singer from Texas Stan Dier plays the part of Wallace Sheedy, friend of Godfrey Ralston, clever in business deals, though not clever enough to outsmart Jill.

This play, with which Rev. A. L. Shorten has assisted, and for which he has acted as chairman and introduced the players, has several engagements in the next two weeks. These include appearances at White Lake, Salem, Ivanhoe, Bloomfield and a final performance at Foxboro on Friday, March 11th.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BILLS TO ORDER

The stubby-billed Sparrow cannot be pictured pulling a worm out of the ground as do the Robin and the Woodcock with their long, more pointed bills. Each species is provided with the implement best suited to its use. Accordingly, Sparrows have comical bills for cracking seeds, because they belong to the large family known as seed-eaters. Long bills are handy for varied needs: Hummingbirds use them for delving into blossoms to extract nectar; Sandpipers, Avocets, and other shore birds for probing into shallow water for insects, marine worms, or crawfish. A Brown Creeper's delicately pointed, down-curved bill is fashioned for getting into cervices in bark; a Nuthatch's slightly uplifted one for picking insects off the surface of trees from an upside down position.

Bristles at the base of a bill act as entanglements for flying insects that form the chief food of some birds. These include, besides members of the flycatcher family, the Nighthawk, Whip-poor-will, and lycatching Warblers, like the Canadian, Wilson's, and the Redstart. The bill of a Kingfisher is not only long and strong, but also capacious, deeper than wide at the base, designed for catching, holding and carrying fish. That of a Woodpecker must be an effective wood-cutting instrument, therefore stout, with a chisel-shaped point.

Ducks' bills are definitely made to order. The fish eating Merganser has a bill that is slender and toothed; while those of Ducks which feed on insects and vegetable matter are broad. Predators, as Hawks and Owls, have cruel looking, hooked beaks, particularly adapted for tearing the prey The Shrike's is a notched beak, made for the same purpose.

Some bills are really curious The bill-tips of a Crossbill are prolonged and cross each other, so as to be able to husk scales off cones and get at seeds underneath. A Cormorant pursues fish under water and usually comes to the surface holding its catch crosswise; therefore the bill is long, slender, and abruptly hooked at the tip to fasten in the fish. A Pelican looks positively grotesque with a deep pounch hanging from its 18 inch bill. Fish are scooped up and stored in this 6 inch deep basket until they can be carried home to a waiting family. An added oddity in the breeding season is an excrescence which grows on the upper section of the Pelican's bill and is shed at the time of the autumn moult.

TWEED

R. Rodgers Heads Teen Age Club Advisory Council

Tweed — The annual meeting of the advisory council of the Teen Age Club was held in the Municipal Hall on Tuesday evening. There was an attendance of twenty boosters of the organization, including the teen age executive, composed of John LeSage, president; Marlene Gehard, secretary, and Ian Paul, treasurer.

Under the chairmanship of acting president Russell Rodgers, a brief address was given by Jack LeSage, outlining the activities for the coming season.

Mr. Rodgers expressed the appreciation of the club for the fine work that had been done by Mr. Len Taylor, founder of the group, and for the aid that had been given by the advisory council and numerous citizens of Tweed and surrounding district who so generously contributed both time and money to assure the success of the club.

Officers Elected

The following members were elected to the advisory council for the calendar year: president, Russell Rodgers; vice president, W. W. Tweed; secretary, Mrs. Joe LeSage; members, Mrs. Russell Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. McCarey Mrs. Kent Hunter, Mrs. W. W. Tweed, Mrs. Wallace Johnston, Mrs. W. Vance, Miss M. O'Donnell, Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, Mrs. H. M. Countryman, Mr. Len Taylor was elected honorary president in appreciation of his efforts.

Mr. Rodgers thanked the adults for their support in the past and requested that this support be continued in 1949.

Play Well Presented

The Anglican Young People's Association of St. James' Church presented a three-act comedy play "Don't Darken My Door" to capacity audience on Wednesday and Thursday nights at St. Carthagh's Parish Hall.

Harold E. Roberts was master-of-ceremonies with Dean Whalen at the piano. Members of the cast were: Graham Mouck, Betty McCullough, George Owens, Ana Thompson, Bryce Craig, Mrs. Graham Mouck, Laura Thompson and Peggy Sherry. All did well. Ana Thompson as Poppy Foster, the maid-of-all-work, had the best lines and made the most of them. Her comedy was definitely good, with a professional flavor.

Mrs. Arnold Caldwell of Belleville, formerly of Tweed, sang at both intermissions, offering selections that provided much amusement for the audience.

The play was under the direction of Mrs. J. J. Luffman and the Young Peoples Association of St. James' Church can be proud of their play and their cast.

Accepts New Position

Mr. Cecil Jordan is leaving soon for Ottawa to return to the employ of International Business Machines. He has been employed by his brother-in-law, Arthur Snare, at the Recreation Parlors since coming to Tweed.

Mr. Jordan was the leader of the popular "Modernaires" dance orchestra and well-known trombone player. He expects to continue with his hobby of music.

Mrs. Jordan will remain in Tweed temporarily until housing accommodation is arranged.

ROSLIN

Roslin — The Young People's Union held their regular meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Chisholm. As this was Valentine's Day, the refreshments took the form of a box social with the gaily decorated boxes being sold to the highest bidder. Over $10. was realized from the sale of the boxes.

Social Evening

A number from here attended the social evening at the home of Mrs. Murney Geer., Thomasburg, on Tuesday evening under the auspices of Christ Church, Thomasburg. Mr. and Mrs. N. Alexander were the lucky winners at euchre with sixteen tables in play. A number of tables of 92 were also played.

STIRLING

ST. PAUL'S W.M.S.

The February meeting of St. Paul's W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. J. B. Thompson, with Mrs. R. Christie and her committee in charge of the afternoon's program.

The president, Mrs. E. G. Bailey conducted the devotional period, the secretaries gave their monthly reports. Mrs. A. Armstrong reporting for Christian Stewardship, spoke on the call to "Advance" which calls for more members, more money, more missionaries.

Group Work

Mrs. Ralph Barker told of the work being done by the younger groups. A new C.G.I.T. group has been organized, also an Explorers group. The younger children attend the Junior Mission Band and all are enthusiastic workers.

Friendship Circle

The Community Friendship Circle made fourteen calls during January. Mrs. H. David gave the report on Christian Stewardship and Temperance and also discussed the question of a wide-open Sunday which was under open discussion on a recent radio program. A petition was forwarded to the sponsors, with the names of most members thereon, taking a definite stand against an open Sunday.

Mrs. Percy Utman gave reference notes about the missionary for prayer, Dr. Merle Patterson, of India. Miss Caldwell read the correspondence and Mrs. E. G. Bailey gave a short article "Rules for Planting a Victory Garden in Our Society."

Mrs. Morley Ayrhart read the Scripture passages and Mrs. Robt. Christie gave highlights of the General Council held in British Columbia last fall.

The study group chapter was entitled "Christian Citizenship in Training" and was well presented by Mrs. S. Bird, Mrs. A. Armstrong and Mrs. C. Macklin.

The subject matter told of the work accomplished by Dr. Cheng, a graduate of West China University. In West China the missionaries of the society have made an outstanding contribution in education and in spite of many difficulties there has been real sucstandards in the mission schools. Thus they have been the means of enlisting many young people in training for Christian leadership.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served by the committee and Mrs. W. Jones moved a vote of thanks to the hostess and all who has assisted on the afternoon's program.

Foxboro Farm Forum

The Foxboro Farm Forum met on Monday evening at Mr. V. Prindle's home with an attendance of fifteen. It was review night, which is left open for the discussion of any local problems. Some of the members had attended a meeting of the, Picton Co-operative in Prince Edward County, and told some of the highlights of this meeting. The need for a co-operatively-owned egg-grading station was discussed and the group felt that it would not be feasible in Foxboro. A proposed plan for Quinte Co-op, medical services was under discussion. The local CJBQ program was heard regarding decrease in contracting with canning factories. "Urban people should have farm problems presented to them in their daily and weekly papers by the Federation of Agriculture. Urban people pay 40 to 70 per cent more for farm products than the producer receives."

The discussion leader for the new series will be Mr. Earl Bird, and the recreation leader will be Mrs. V. Prindle. On Monday, Feb. 28th the Forums will hold a joint meeting at the Stone Church community centre, 4th concession of Sidney township.

Experts Match Wits With Wily Rodents

Vancouver — The "brains" of the British Columbia Research Council are matching wits with the tiny field mouse.

The council is searching for a rodent-repellent to put on seeds that foresters scatter in logged-over land in the province. The idea is to keep the seed away from the mouse's dinner table.

Millions of dollars would be saved by putting the kiss of death on the seeds which are sowed at a cost of $3 an acre because if the mice won't leave the seeds alone the foresters will have to plant seedlings at $30 an acre.

Tommy Gorman Offers to Stage Skating Contest

By The Canadian Press

Mary Rose Thacker is "very happy" to learn she has a willing competitor in Barbara Ann Scott, and, equally important, a place to stage her proposed world professional figure skating championship.

Earlier she estimated she would require about $5,000 as compensation to cover training and other expenses and professional fees. Barbara Ann, she said, would need a similar sum.

Miss Thacker suggested, further, that the competition should include all professional skaters "rather than just Barbara Ann and me."

Don (Shanty) McKenzie, one of the best linemen in Canadian football will coach Toronto Balmy Beach in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series next season, it was learned Friday night. He succeeds Ted Reeve, Toronto sports writer. McKenzie will take over his new chores with virtually no experience.

At Harlingen, Tex., Glenn Teal, Florida professional making his third tour along the P.G.A. golf trail but never winner of a tournament championship, Friday shot into the lead in the $10,000 Rio Grande Valley open with 131 for 36 holes. Teal, who made only $503 this year thus far, shot a seven-under-par 64 to pace the field at the halfway mark. Tied for second were Bob Hamilton of Landover, Md., and Smith of Winston Salem, N.C., and K. Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., each with 132.

At Preston, England, Malaya took four straight matches from Denmark Friday night and will begin tonight's play needing only one match to capture the Thomas Cup badminton championship. The Danes were no match for the Malayans, who eliminated the United States earlier this week.

At Manchester, N.H., two Canadian boxers and their American manager were suspended Friday by the New Hampshire Athletic Commission because of an alleged substitution of a professional boxer for an amateur in a Golden Gloves Tournament. Commission chairman Howard Northbridge identified the persons involved in the incident as Clement Bolduc and Armand Prince, both of Sherbrooke, Que., and their manager Ralph Pelequin of Berlin, N.H. The alleged substitution was said to have taken place at the New England amateur championship matches at Lowell, Mass., this week.

University of Toronto overtook McGill Friday night to win the opening game of the girls' intercollegiate basketball meet 21-19. In another game, Western defeated Queens 37-20.

Fifteen Named For Santa Anita Handicap

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 26 (AP)—The $100,000 Santa Anita handicap dominates the turf picture today, and uncertainty is the theme of pre-race predictions.

Fifteen thoroughbreds, ranging from the favored three-year-old Dinner Gong to the highly - regarded eight-year-old Autocrat, are named for the 12th running of the mile-and-one-quarter fixture.

The management made arrangements to handle a crowd of more than 60,000. The uncertainty was keyed on the unpredictable weather. On this depended the possibility of late scratches from the field of performers, as well as the arrival of all the anticipated fans.

Post time for the big race was set for approximately 8 p. m. EST.

The track was sloppy Friday. Given sunshine today, or at least non-leaking skies, the oval was expected to improve to a condition of slow to good to fast.

Entries announced yesterday were:

Dinner Gong, On Trust, Ace Admiral, Autocrat, Miss Grillo, Danada Gift, Alablue, Solidarity, Vulvan's Forge, Rose Beam, Manyunk, Fast and Fair, War Trophy, Shim Malone and Stepfather.

The purse, providing all start, amounts to a gross $139,000, and the winner on that basis stands to win $102,000. The handicap guarantees a minimum $100,000.

High Scores Feature Major "A" Bowling League

Some of the best scores of the season featured the Thursday night session of the Major "A" Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome.

Thirteen players topped the 700-mark in triples while nine bested 300 in singles. Team scores were the highest rolled this season. Heading the pack was the Callaghan Ice team with 3473 to defeat Lawn Bowlers 7-0. Central Cigar "Smoke-rings" took the measure of York Trading; Belleville Golf defeated C.N.R. and Electronics turned back their plant colleagues, Northern Electric. The last three games were decided by 5-2 scores. The scores:

Callaghan Ice (7)	3473
Lawn Bowlers (0)	2985
Central Cigar (5)	3472
York Trading (2)	3255
Belleville Golf (5)	3370
C.N.R. (2)	3100
Electronics (5)	3149
Northern Electric (2)	3058

Art Stewart 827 (318); Jim White 800 (337); Joe Legault 785 (361); Dave Tobe 782; Cec. Hardwick 761; Larry Hopkins 744 (314); Harry Ridley 729; Ted Greenfield 726 (331); Wardhaugh 713 (310); Don Barrett 713 (302); Jim Amodeo 710 (313); Jim Semark 705; Herb Martin 704 (309).

The standing: Belleville Golf 43, Callaghan Ice 38, York Trading 32, C.N.R. 28, Northern Electric 26, Central Cigar 22, Lawn Bowlers 19, Electronics 16.

More Food and Cover for Game

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Auther and Creater of Solunar Tables)

About a year ago I attended a meeting where a man, whose direct responsibility it was to see to it that there should be an adequate supply of game in our covers, stood up and announced that we may as well hang up our shotguns and take up some other form of endeavor as there would be no such thing as public shooting in another five years.

Of course that sort of defeatest attitude is not to be commended, particularly on the part of one whose job it is to prevent this very thing from happening. Just the same, I wonder how many of us realize how many adverse factors are working against the sportsmen's best interests.

Consider, for instance, the automatic corn picker. Once one of these machines has done its work, that field is immediately rendered useless for game cover. Pheasants and cornfields go together pretty much like bacon and eggs. Remove the cornfield and your pheasant shooting suffers a severe blow.

Better in West

In the middle west there is still enough prairie and enough fields are allowed to lie fallow so that the ringneck can find adequate food and cover requirements despite the periodic loss of the cornfields, but here in the east such a loss is nothing short of a calamity.

Last October one of our national magazines appeared with an elaborate and well-illustrated series of articles on upland shooting. In the piece about quail shooting the writer didn't try to pull his punches.

He hauled off and stated right out loud that the day of good public quail shooting is a thing of the past.

I can't quite bring myself to agree with that one completely but it serves as a straw to tell us which way the wind blows.

Every man who goes afield with shotgun and dog knows what has been happening to our game supplied during the past twenty years or so. Reduced legal limits no longer surprise us. We have come to expect them.

Sportsmen to Blame

Without doubt we, the sportsmen, are to blame for our present plight. We expect miracles on the part of our state and national conservation agencies yet we allow these same agencies to be hampered continually in the scope of their activities because of lack of adequate funds.

Our outdoor magazines give us plenty of up-to-the-minute advice on how and where to kill game and catch fish but it is increasingly difficult for an interested sportsman to keep himself posted on the vital statistics of our conservation procedure.

A tremendous uproar is raised at the suggestion of increased fishing and hunting licence fees, yet we sit back calmly and permit a lavish government to squander untold millions on cokeyed flood control measures—and, believe me, some of them are just that—and dubious river basin "improvements."

Should Keep Posted

We can, however, join our local sportsmen's organizations and keep ourselves posted on developments. By and large, from this point on you can expect to get out of the outdoor sports about what you are willing to put into them.

The sooner the sportsmen of the nation wake up to that basic truth, the better it is going to be for all of us.

Here's a concrete suggestion where you can lend a hand. During recent years there has been more and more interest shown in the development of the hedgerow fence.

Missouri headed up this movement and it is as solid and sound as a silver dollar. The basic idea is to persuade the farmers to discontinue plowing to the fence line.

Instead, they have been urged to plant hedgerows of some hardy shrub such as multiflora rose. In a surprisingly short time such a hedgerow forms an effective barrier which will hold livestock just as well as barbed wire.

Such a hedgerow provides excellent protective cover for game. Immediately next to this hedgerow lies a fallow strip which can be planted or not as the owner sees fit. Adjoining this is another strip of planted food crop such as lespedeza. This type of installation has done wonders in providing good shooting.

Suitable Conditions

All of us know that any living creature, in order to survive must have adequate living conditions which are suitable to its needs.

A human being needs food, warmth and sh[illegible]r. Trout need clean, cool strea[illegible]s and a goodly supply of nat[illegible] bottom, food. Birds and small game need ample protective cover and plenty of natural food.

The problem is not particularly complex. All that is needed is intelligent planning and comprehensive management.

There is no reason to suppose that most farmers are going to reduce their acreage voluntarily out of the goodness of their hearts. Hedgerows take up space that can be devoted to crop growing.

All right, that is where the sportsmen's groups can help out. In these days of governmental subsidies there is no reason why a comprehensive over-all plan can not be worked out.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has a staff of able men, trained in the problems of game management, and these men are always glad to lend their aid and advice in all such projects. The scheme is not at all impossible.

Action Required

As I say, the sportsmen of the nation are going to get out of hunting and fishing only what they are willing to put into it. A man can't have his cake and eat it too. That is exactly what most of us have been doing for too many years.

If we want to find game in our upland covers it is a certainty that we are going to have to do more about it than complain about the laxity of our conservation departments.

Hedgerows are, in reality, only a small facet of the whole problem but their installation will make a surprising difference in our present gameless areas.

Jake Lamotta Will be Able To Meet Villemaine

New York, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Jake Lamotta, Bronx middleweight who received facial injuries Monday night in a Montreal fight, will be able to meet Robert Villemaine of France in New York March 25.

Lamotta was examined by Dr. Vincent Nardiello, New York State Athletic Commission physician yesterday. Nardiello said the Bronx fighter would be able to meet the Frenchman for their 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden.

Nardiello said 11 stitches were required to patch up Lamotta's bruised face after the Montreal bout. He will remove the stitches Monday.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Bill Veeck of Cleveland Indians says his Negro centre fielder, Larry Doble, reminds him more of Joe DiMaggio than any other player. He predicts Doble will be right in Joe's class within a year or two . . . Boston Braves expect to look over 400 members of their farm system at their farm camp at Myrtle Beach, S. C. . . . Dick Chapman, who won the amateur golf crown back in 1940, says he has "discovered" a new swing which adds 30 yards to his tee shots.

Boxing Banter

Tony Zale told a Nashville audience that he fully expects to knock out Marcel Cerdan in their return middleweight title bout, which appears now to be headed for Chicago. Ray Arcel, the famous trainer said the greatest nightmare he ever experienced was in taking 39 pounds off Charlie Phil Rosenberg for a bantamweight title fight in 1925.

Mead Defeats John De John By Knockout

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)— For grit and guts in the fight game, mark down Pete Mead as a leading contender.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., middleweight isn't listed among the ranking fighters in his division. Maybe his seven-round knockout victory Friday night in Madison Square Garden over Joe de John of Syracuse won't move him up too far.

But for a courageous, sensational comeback against long odds, you must give a hand to the chopped-up Michigan lad.

He was knocked down twice for nine counts—in the third and fifth rounds. Blood was streaming down his face from deep cuts on his right cheek, over his right eye, and from his nose, when he came back in the seventh round of the scheduled 10.

De John already had chalked up five of the six frames and was all set to even an old score. The 25-year-old Mead had stopped him in five rounds at Buffalo Dec. 2, 1947. De John weighed 157 for the first one. Friday night he scaled 157 to Mead's 160 and had piled up 18 straight victories, 14 via kayos, since his loss.

The 22-year-old Syracuse socker came out to end the blood-letting. He moved in with a right. Mead stood his ground and they belted each other with all they had as the crowd of 11,042 let go with roar after roar.

Suddenly, Mead, an 11-to-5 underdog, clipped De John and he went down for nine. Up he came and down he went again for nine.

The third time he fell, referee Johnny Burns didn't even count. The time was 2:43 of the seventh.

Flying Dutchmen Defeat Tigers By 4 to 3 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Billy Flick Friday night paid off part of the $5,000 that Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen put up to obtain him and Mickey Roth from Stratford Indians midway in the season.

Flick tallied a goal with 40 seconds left in regulation time that gave the Dutchmen a 4-3 decision over Hamilton Tigers and the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A semi-final series, 4-2.

Flick's marker ended a five-year Hamilton reign as O.H.A. Senior Champions, and will send the Dutchmen against Toronto Marlboros for the League title.

In a Junior 'A' game Friday night, St. Catharines Teepees won their best-of-three quarter-final series in two straight games as they downed Oshawa Generals 9-5 in St. Catharines.

At Hamilton, both teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and 2-2 at the end of the second. The Dutchmen outscored the Tigers 2-2 in the last period.

Kitchener scorers besides Flick were Bill Dinning with two and Bill Curik with one. Ab Conick, Clare Shillington and Murray Comfort scored for Hamilton.

The Bengals had enough chances in the first period to clinch the game but a combination of erratic shooting and fine goal-tending by Kitchener's Marcel Pelletier held them back.

Hamilton's Bobby Laurent was forced from the game late in the second period when he suffered torn back muscles while sparring with Blick behind the Hamilton nets.

At St. Catharines, the Teepees had little trouble as they battled through to a 2-2 first period tie to outscore the Generals 3-1 in the second and 4-2 in the third.

Red Sullivan was the Teepee big gun as he garnered four goals. Gerry Toppazzi got two markers while Obie O'Brien, Bill Clements, and Fred Hildebrand got Singletons. Gerry Scott scored twice for the Generals. Ted O'Connor and Red Stephen tallied one apiece.

Only two Junior 'A' games are slated tonight. Barrie Flyers meet Windsor Spitfires in the second-game of their best-of-seven quarter final series and Toronto Marlboros clash with Stratford Kroehlers in the second game of their best-of-three series.

Hamilton Tigers Going to Play In the O.R.F.U.

Hamilton, Feb. 26. (CP)—It's official now that the Hamilton Tigers are going to play football this year in the Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series.

Jack Langs, Tigers' president, announced the club's decision Friday night following breakdown of negotiations aimed at amalgamation of the Tigers with Hamilton Wildcats of the Big Four.

The principal obstacle to the apparent refusal of the big four to grant the freezing of all last year's Tigers players at least until the proposed amalgamated club had an opportunity to deal with them.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York — Pete Mead, 160, Grand Rapids, Mich., knocked out Joey DeJohn, 157, Syracuse, N.Y. (7).

Chicago — Freddie Dawson, 141, Chicago, outpointed Bobby Lee, 145½, Baltimore (10).

Hollywood, Calif. — Harry (Kid) Mathews, 162, Seattle, stopped Bobby Castro, 161, Los Angeles (4).

O.L.A. Suspends Six Players And Official

Toronto, Feb. 25. (CP)—For taking part in lacrosse games in Rochester, N.Y., the Ontario Lacrosse Association executive Friday night suspended six players and an official for the 1949 O.L.A. playing season.

Suspended were Roy Morton, William Nelson, Stuart Scott and James McMahon of the 1948 St. Catharines Senior Club, W. Evans and J. Hogan, who played early in the 1948 season for Hamilton, and George Cleverly, St. Catharines referee.

The Association said the players lined up with the Rochester Club of the United States National Lacrosse League and that Cleverly served as a referee at some of the Rochester games.

The O.L.A. executive ruled that in so doing, the seven acted without O.L.A. permission and in violation of its constitution.

The executive granted a Senior A franchise to the Peterborough Club which made the 1948 Senior B championship a runaway. It also gave Weston Lacrosse Club the Senior A franchise given up after the 1948 season by Weston West Yorks.

These moves ensured the Association of a 1949 Senior loop including at least eight teams—St. Catharines, Hamilton, Fergus, Brampton, Owen Sound, Mimico, Weston and Peterborough.

The outstanding player award for 1948 was given to Joe Cheevers, playing coach of the Hamilton Tigers, Ontario and Canadian champions. With the award goes the Jimmy Murphy trophy and the Charles Querrie medal.

HEXTALL'S GOAL CLINCHER

Washington, Feb. 26 (CP) — Bryon Hextall's goal with only 17 seconds to play gave Washington Lions a 4-3 victory over Hershey Bears in an American Hockey League game Friday night before 985 fans.

Washington jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first period on goals by Dave Maguire, Tom Forgie and Phil Vitale.

Arnold Kullman and Clare Martyn each scored to whittle the Washington lead to one goal in the second period. Martin clicked again early in the third frame to tie it up. This set the stage for Hextall's last minute clincher.

CZECKS DEFEAT WOLVES

Prague, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — The Czechoslovakia hockey team which won the world's amateur hockey championship last week, Friday defeated Sudbury Wolves 3-2 in an exhibition game here.

It was the same score by which the Czechs defeated the Canadian entry in the championships-series final round. The Wolves wound up in second place in the world tournament held at Stockholm.

Canada took a first period lead scoring the only goal of the frame. The home sextet then tied the count in the second period and outscored the Canadians 2-1 in the last frame.

Veterans to Celebrate Paardeburg Fought Fifty Years Ago

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP) — Rear vision mirrors might help cut down hockey injuries.

They might help, that is, if Lionel Conacher is correct in his analysis of what sends puck stars to hospital. The former N.H.L. great told Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle that 90 per cent of injuries are caused by players being slammed into the boards from behind.

"If a man goes into the boards for a puck," says Andy, "the chances of him being slammed against the boards are most excellent.

"No skill is required, nothing in short except brute force is requisite in hitting from behind."

Longer Schedule

Art (Cornwall Standard Freeholder) Cameron says if the National Hockey League increases its schedule, minor and amateur leagues in Canada and United States will be affected.

He claims junior league play follow-the-leader with the N.H.L. in refereeing, expansion plans, style of play and outlining of schedules.

"The $64 question now is what effect, if any, the N.H.L.'s proposed decision to enlarge the next schedule will have on the senior and minor-pro circuits.

"If these minor leagues add to their already packed schedules, there'll be a lot of trouble come playoff time. Most leagues are already laboring with might and main to meet playdown deadlines."

Hot for Tennis

Ever hear of a tennis match being stopped because it was too hot?

N. D. (St. Thomas Times-Journal) Whitmoe recalls that the British Junior Lawn Tennis Club had a tournament disrupted by sunshine recently.

"The temperature was below freezing when the matches started and then the sun came out too strong. The sun melted the frost on the courts and the players couldn't go on."

Chicago Making Real Effort For Playoff Spot

(By The Canadian Press)

Unless Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs fall apart in the next week, they are almost sure to deprive Chicago Black Hawks of a National Hockey League play-off spot.

The Hawks now are six points behind the fourth-place Canadiens and seven behind Toronto. Each of the six clubs in the league has only 10 games remaining.

Tonight, Chicago plays at Toronto and the league-leading Detroit Red Wings at Montreal. On Sunday, Detroit meets the last-place Rangers and second-place Boston meets Chicago.

Leaf fortunes looked up a little Friday when it was learned that injured Vic Lynn will be back in action tonight. Lynn received a bad scalp gash last Sunday when hit by Red Hamill's stick in a game in Chicago.

Leafs, four points behind Boston, still are without the services of forwards Howie Meeker, Bill Ezinicki and Harry Taylor. All were injured last weekend and Meeker is out for the remainder of the season with a broken foot bone.

The biggest battle, as the series wears to a close, is among Boston, Toronto and Montreal. Boston is eight points behind Detroit, which seems to be headed for the championship, but both Toronto and Montreal have closed up on Boston.

Rangers, in last place much of the season, have little chance of making the play-offs, although they are only one point behind Chicago and seven behind Canadiens.

London (CP) — World-wide popularity of Soccer is likely to result in the largest exodus ever by league clubs this spring.

The Football Association has planned tours for two national teams representing Wales and Scotland. Newcastle United, currently pacemaker in division one, will play ten games in Canada. Belfast Celtic, who have a United States tour lined up, may be joined by Southampton.

Others planning trips abroad include Arsenal, Charlton, Portsmouth, Liverpool, Derby, Tottenham Hotspurs, Fulham, Blackpool, West Ham, Queen's Park Rangers and Hull. Blackpool have been invited to play in Belgium. Hungary and Denmark are anxious to entertain clubs interested in a continental trip.

Charlton aims at a four-game series in Turkey. Fulham's invitation to visit Spain is in return for transferring centre-half Jock Watson to Real Madrid, a club managed by former Fulham halfback Mike Keeping. Liverpool may visit Switzerland.

Arsenal, league champions, have had invitation from many countries, but will not decide until later. The most tempting offers come from South America and Italy.

West Ham is eager to make another tour. In recent years they've played in 71 Continental communities and in 13 countries.

Jack Gardiner, last season's British amateur heavyweight champion, has captured the imagination of British fight fans.

On the same bill as the Bruce Woodcock - Lee Savold fight last December, Gardiner won a £1000 ($4,000) competition in convincing style — three first-round knockouts.

Physically, Gardiner at 21 has everything. He is six feet 1½ inches and scales 210 pounds—nearly a stone heavier than Jack Dempsey, when the latter was world kingpin.

Gardiner's manager, John Simpson, says he isn't going to rush his charge into major bouts yet. He intends to nurse his beetle-browed prospect with a wary eye on a title clash later on.

It happened at Newcastle-on-Tyne. A 4,000 boxing audience saw boxer Tommy McGoldrick of Glasgow, take a two-handed swipe at referee James Folland in the ring.

McGoldrich had been cautioned twice during a bout with Wilf Bone of Jarrow. Half way thru' round five he was cautioned again.

Wheeling round he caught the referee on the jaw with both hands. Folland "rode" the punches with his back to the ropes.

Bone and men from both corners grabbed McGoldrick. His purse was withheld pending a decision by British Boxing Board of Control area committee.

London (CP)— Eyebrows were raised in British snooker circles over the results of the Bermuda exhibitions between Joe (Mr. Snooker) Davis and the Canadian champion, George Chenier.

All the chalked-cue artists in England thought it would be just a romp for Joe. Nobody had ever tested him and anyway, Canadians weren't much good at anything except ice hockey.

That's what they thought until the champion from Ottawa and Toronto made the break of 123.

This news "surprised many people who had been inclined to view stories of the snooker skill of Chenier and other Canadian players as greatly exaggerated," the daily publication, Sporting Life, commented.

"It now seems clear that Chenier is a very fine player indeed."

Sporting Life expressed hope that Chenier and possibly other players from Canada would be able to play in London next season.

A party of Australia's leading young boxers plan to visit Britain for three months this summer. On the way they hope to fight in South Africa.

The boxers are Dave Sands, Australian heavyweight, light-heavy and middleweight champion; Mickey Tollis, a leading welterweight contender; Bernie Grant, a challenger for the lightweight title left vacant by the retirement of Vic Patrick; and Billy Herbert, a bantamweight

With the exception of Sands the boxers will be under the care of former Australian heavyweight champion, Ambrose Palmer.

Sands, who has some creditable wins marked up against good United States middleweights, has been engaged by Solomons for a series of fights in Britain and is tipped as a good bet to beat Dick Turpin, the British champion who claims the British Empire title as well. Sands also wants to meet world middleweight champion Marcel Cerdan, of France, for the world title.

Request overruled: Arthur Oakley's dual capacity as justice of the peace and director of Wolverhampton's soccer team caused a judicial non sequitur.

Oakley was on the bench —the judge's, not the players'—when two defendants requested bail. Oakley granted it, then heard the police officer whisper:

"Your Lordship, the defendants now wish to ask whether they can have two tickets for Saturday's cup-tie at Sheffield."

Hidden hunch: Workmen remodelling Lincoln for the opening of Britain's flat-racing season have a hunch bet for the first big race, the Lincolnshire Handicap.

In working around the saddling enclosure, they found Roman pottery in a post hole. Experts said there apparently was a Roman pottery kiln under the spot where for a century Lincoln winners have been unsaddled.

McCallum Denies Police Persecuting Chinese People

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP) — The Toronto police commission reserved judgment Friday on complaints of Toronto Chinese that they are being persecuted by police.

A three-hour hearing followed several protests of an invasion of privacy following a visit Feb. 16 to several Chinatown stores by Detective Walter Jarman of the anti-gambling squad.

Mayor Hiram McCallum denied police were persecuting the Chinese.

"Chinese as a whole across the city have not been persecuted," he said. "There are no raids in the East End or North Toronto or anywhere else where they conduct business, except downtown . . ."

R. H. Greer, representing the Chinese, said "police should not be going around inspecting women's bedrooms when their husbands are not there." He referred to Lee King's charge that Det. Jarman walked into the apartment above his store and disturbed his wife in her bedroom.

Mayor McCallum replied: "I would not stand that for a moment."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You never buy anything cheap in a tough bridge foursome. The defending pair would rather go down than let opponents make a game in an easy contract.

Some gruesome details could be told about the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠A Q 4
♥8 6 3 2
♣8 7 4 2

WEST
♥K 9 3
♠9 7
♦A K Q 7 6 4
♣Q J

EAST
♥J 10 7
♠10
♦J 10 5 3 2
♣10 9 5 3

SOUTH
♥8 6 5 2
♠A K Q J 5 4
♦None
♣A K 6

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Dbl	2 H	Pass
4 H	5 5	Pass	Pass
5 H	Pass	Pass	6 D
6 H	Dbl	All Pass

West knew he was overbidding his hand with five diamonds. But he was willing to take the sacrifice. East got the idea and tried to help it along with his six diamond bid. But south had his neck bowed.

Opening lead from west was diamond king. When dummy hand went down it looked bad for declarer. Even if a spade finesse works he seems to have two losers; a spade and a club.

However he ruffed trick one and pulled two rounds of trumps. A spade was successfully finessed. Club king won a trick and when the jack dropped from west on this, south took notice.

He led club ace and west queen fell. So, spade ace took a trick and the second dummy diamond was ruffed. Now south led a third spade and west had to win with the king.

Having nothing else, west led a diamond. Dummy ruffed and south sluffed a club. Or dummy could have sluffed a club and south ruffed. Final dummy club could then be sluffed on the fourth south spade.

After it was over, east gave his partner helleluja. "Why dintcha throw your king on the second spade trick and he couldna done that to us." Such things may go on forever.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 26 (AP) — Movie clinches — those time-worn bits of action and dialogue we see over and over again in films — are due for a beating from June Havoc.

Blonde June, whose acting has brightened such films as "Gentleman's Agreement" and "When My Baby Smiles at Me", is hitting the road. In her station wagon, she will tour Starwhat theatres in the eastern United States with programs of singing and dancing and a new edition of "Rain", which she recently played here with success.

June, whose sister, Gypsy Lee Rose, has tourd with a carnival show in the south, plans to make a trailer to precede her appearances. In it she will spoof the mossy cliches of moviedom. ,

Her Program

1. Historical Significance Department: A 17th. Century beauty dances at a gay party. Suddenly she stops and asks her partner, "Do you hear thunder?" he says no.

"What is that dirty little village over there?" she asks.

"Waterloo," is the answer.

2. Heated Romance Dept.: Close-up over a man's shoulder of a beauty who looks up at him with limpid eyes. As her nostrils dilate, he murmurs, "You are fire in my veins." Fade-out.

3. Understated Pathos Dept.: A richly gowned woman stands alone with the shadow of the guillotine in the background. The crash of the blade is heard and the rumm-tumm-tumm of the drums. A dirty arm hands her a black mask. She accepts it, raises an arm and utters, "For France."

Heroics and Drama

4. Western Heroics Dept.: The hero enters the saloon, strides down the length of the bar as the drinkers eye him and duck out of sight. Finally, he confronts the dance hall queen and drawls, "I've hunted all over the Panhandle for you, Lily, to see that you get what's coming to you."

Close-up of Lily firing a pistol directly into camera.

5. Backstage Drama Dept.: I offered this one. It shows the male star of the show and the young understudy for the female star, who has just broken a leg. She hangs onto the railing of the circular staircase and frets, "I'm scared; I don't think I can do it."

He eyes her sternly and announces, "Tonight — you are the star."

June added that in her years in show business she has never known the understudy to take over from the star and score a hit.

Windsor Girl Attacked by Men, Badly Bruised

Windsor, Feb. 26 (CP)—A seven-year-old Windsor girl is under doctor's care after she was attacked last night by a "dark, skinny man."

Every available police car surrounded the district after the girl returned to her home about 9.30 last night.

Police said the girl had been beaten after she was attacked and a doctor treated her for bruises and welts on her body. She was in a state of shock when she reached home.

From what could be gathered the girl met the man on Mill Street and he enticed her to accompany him to a spot near the river at the end of the street.

There are only a few scattered houses in the isolated district and cries for help could easily go unheard, police say. The end of Mill Street is sometimes used by motorists as a lover's lane.

FAMOUS PLAYERS THEATRES — CULTIVATE COURTESY

AT THE McCARTHY — In the mood for love are Olga San Juan and Dick Haymes, whose heartbeats are heard in the Universal-International musical comedy "One Touch of Venus," now at the McCarthy Theatre, along with the romantic overtones of Ava Gardner and Robert Walker.

QUIET ON CRIME FRONT

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—It was "all quiet" on Toronto's crime front Friday night with few charges being laid.

Detective-Sergeant A. R. Taylor said it was "one of the quietest Friday nights in a long time." Last week, nearly 70 arrests were made by police in one of the "blackest Fridays" in Toronto's history.

Most serious charge last night was laid against 17-year-old Peter McColl, who allegedly broke into a downtown building and stole a quantity of clothing.

MINISTER PAINTER DIES

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—Alfred Praga, who helped revive interest in miniature painting in England in the 1890s, died yesterday in a hospital in Kent.

He did many miniature paintings and founded the Society of Miniaturists. King Edward VII and Anna Pavlova were among those who sat for him.

AT THE BELLE — Who's wooing whom? Betsy Drake has eyes only for the love of her life, Cary Grant, despite the machinations of Franchot Tone in Don Hartman's gay romantic comedy, "Every Girl Should be Married." Diana Lynn co-stars in the picture due today at the Belle.

BAKER'S SIGNATURE

In ancient Pompeii bakers stamped loaves of bread with their names, to fix responsibility for weight and purity.

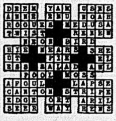
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was home erly on account of Sattiday, and he was reeding in his private chair and I was talking and arguing about different subjects with my cuzzen Artie, and I said, I bet I can do more push ups off the floor than you can, without toutching anything but my chest.

Okay, I win without even trying, that's how mutch stronger I am, Artie said, and I said, Aw, you're so conceeted it's a wonder you dont explode by naturel gas.

Take it easy there, Benny, pop said. Cant you 2 be frends, even though you're cuzzens? he said, and I said, Sure we can, pop. We're good frends, aint we, Artie? I said.

Sure, we're swell frends, Artie said, and pop said, If you were reel frends. you'd like each other for your faults. For instants, if Artie thinks he's a pritty superior person, that's only naturel human vanity, and we've all got our share of it he said.

Okay, pop, then that's why I like him, I said. He's so stuck up it's even paneful to breethe in the same room with him, and that's why I like him, I said, and Artie said, Thanks, frend, and I like you because you're so stingy you wouldn't give a bent pin to a starving orfan.

I appercfate that, frend, I said. I wasn't gong to tell you because I didn't want to make you even more conceeted, but that's impossible, so I mite as well tell you another reason I like you is because you're so darn clumsy. The only thing that keeps you from tripping over your own feet is because you're so darn lazy you cant bare the thawt of picking yourself up again, I said, and pop said, All rite, all rite, there's no use suffocating each other with affection. Go on around to the drugstore arm in arm and quaff a loving cup at my expense, he said.

Which we did feeling lucky, both quaffing a Gingerola.

Ask Ban on Use Yellow Coloring In Substitutes

Toronto, Feb. 25 — (CP)—Legislation to ban use of yellow coloring in butter substitutes is sought by the Ontario Cream Producers Association.

In a brief scheduled for presentation today to Premier Kennedy and the Ontario cabinet, the Association said:

"Yellow is the natural trademark of butter. The consumer must rely on this trade - mark for protection when he asks for, buys and pays for butter."

The brief also contended that margarine packages should not resemble the traditional shape of a pound of butter and said that wrappers and advertising should indicate the origin of oils or fats, used in the processing.

Margarine now on sale in several Ontario cities is similar in color to butter. It is sold in flat packages easily distinguishable from square pounds of butter.

Regulations to prohibit manufacture and processing of margarine "in or near" premises where butter is made or handled also were asked in the brief.

The Association urged licensing of margarine manufacturers, processors, wholesalers, retailers, restaurants, hotels, boarding houses, hospitals or other institutions serving butter substitutes. It also said "an easily distinguished sign" should indicate that a butter substitute is being sold or served.

The throne speech at the opening of the present legislative session promised legislation to make a clear distinction between butter and margarine on retailers' shelves.

Premier Kennedy said no action had been taken on margarine. The brief would be considered.

Canadian Waters Yield Four Of 14 First-Prize Fish

New York, Feb. 26 (CP)—Canadian lakes and rivers provided four of the 14 first-prize fish in Field and Stream Magazine's 1948 fishing contest.

But Canadian fishermen didn't do as well as Canadian waters. Of almost 280 anglers listed as prize winners, the magazine said today as it published the 1948 results, only 11 are Canadians.

Two third prizes were their highest awards. They also scored a fourth, two fifths, a 10th, and five honorable mentions.

Here are the year's record catches in the contest, in which the great majority of entrants are United States citizens:

Brook trout (fly-casting) — 7 lbs. 14 oz., caught Aug. 16 in Ontario's Nipigon River, using a Mickey Finn fly. B. H. Reiger of Toronto won honorable mention with a fish of 3 lbs. 4 oz. caught in Williams Lake, Ont.

Brook trout (open)—7 lbs. 12 oz., Sept. 10 in Lake Nipigon, Ont., with a Gapen's Nepag lure. F. S. Williams of Fort William, Ont., won third prize. His fish weighing 7 lbs. 9 oz., was caught in Lake Nipigon Sept. 9, on a Gapen's Cockatush lure. D. A. Clark of Port Arthur, Ont., with a trout weighing an ounce less, won fourth prize, and fifth place went to David Godin of Schreiber, Ont., another ounce behind. Clark, fishing in Lake Nipigon, used an Eppinger Small Dardevle. Godin used live bait in Vaughn Lake.

Northern Pike—35 lbs., Sept. 5 in Lake Maskatong, Que., with a Pflueger Buffalo No. 7 spoon. Fred Turnbull of Edmonton, using perch for bait, caught a pike of 32 lbs. in Alberta's Jack Fish Lake to win third prize. H. I. Moffatt of Yorkton, Sask., won an honorable mention. His pike, 24 lb. 14 oz., was caught in Crooked Lake, Sask.

Lake Trout

Lake trout—47 lbs. 2 oz., Oct. 5 in Lake Anishinabi, Ont., with a Canadian bait. Roger Bedard of Three Rivers, Que., caught a fish of 29 lbs. 2 oz., in Lake Vassal, Que., good enough for an honorable mention.

Rainbow trout (fly-casting — eastern division)—13 lbs. 2 oz., Catherine Creek, N.Y. W. L. Wachter of Jasper, Alta., found a trout weighing 8 lbs. 15 oz. in Mina Lake, Alta., for fifth prize. He used a home-tied No. 6 fly. G. H. Chambers, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., caught a 7-lbs, 1-oz trout in St. Mary's River, Ont., with a home-tied bucktail, and took 10th place.

Rainbow trout (open—eastern division)—17 lbs. 9 oz. Big Manistee River, Mich., on a Helin Flatfish. Best Canadian showing was an honorable mention for J. L. Armstrong of Fort William, who caught a trout of 10 lbs. 4 oz. in Lake Superior.

Brown trout (fly-casting)—19 lbs. 10 1-2 oz., Provo River, Utah, on a Black Barberpoll No. 6 fly. Rufus R. Payne of Peterborough, Ont., was given honorable mention. He caught a fish of 7 lbs. 2 oz. at Mill Brook, Ont.

Brown trout (open)—20 lbs., Truckee River, Nev.

30P.C. WildDucks Bear Gun Pellets In Their Bodies

Ottawa, Feb. 25 (CP) — Fluoroscopic examination of live wild ducks shows that 30 per cent of them carry shotgun pellets in their bodies, Graham Cooch of Kingston, told members of the Ottawa Fish and Game Association Thursday night.

Mr. Cooch, who recently won a scholarship for outstanding field work on the wild duck survey last summer, said object of the survey is to determine trends in the duck population. Hunting regulations in the future would be based on these trends.

Last year $5,000 birds were tagged in the survey which is being carried on through the cooperation of the United States, Manitoba and Dominion governments.

Three Suffer Bruises

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—Minor bruises to three persons and a total of $1,000 damage to two vehicles were the outcome of a traffic collision involving Mayor Arthur J. Reaume.

A pedestrian was knocked down and passengers in the cars were injured Thursday when the mayor's auto collided with one driven by David Leiderman in downtown Windsor.

Both vehicles jumped a sidewalk curb and Harry Ploud, 64, was knocked down by the Reaume car. Ploud suffered a bruised hip and shock.

The mayor's new car was damaged to the extent of $800 and the Liederman auto $200.

Measles Epidemic Now Easing Off

Kingston, Feb. 26 (CP) — A measles epidemic of 738 cases here this year has begun to ease off, Dr. A. R. J. Boyd, Medical Officer of Health, said today. Three deaths have been caused by the epidemic, worst in Kingston's history.

The figure topped the previous all-time high of 534 for the full year 1944. Dr. Boyd said a total of 691 cases for this year, announced yesterday was not up to date. None of the cases at present are serious.

Despite the number of cases, schools will not be closed. Dr. Boyd said a child with measles usually loses seven days from school but other children in the family continue to attend classes. If the schools were closed, all children would lose school time.

LANCASHIRE LAD WAS SKEPTICAL

London — (CP) — Education Minister George Tomlinson told boys in Lancashire that while it might not be true that every soldier carried a field marshal's baton in his haversack, any boy of ability might become prime minister.

"A little lad looked up at me with a wry smile," said Tomlinson, "and in a broad Lancashire accent said: 'Ah'll sell my chance for a tanner (10 cents)'."

Brighteners

London (CP)—That "Piccadilly Windfall" was just a stunt, Londoners learned today.

"The man in brown" won't be seen again handing out 10-shilling ($2) notes at bargain prices in Piccadilly Circus.

Somewhat shamefaced, the BBC in a statement said:

"The idea was to ask a passerby for a cigaret and then give him 10 shillings. His reaction was to be recorded and used in a new program.

"Something obviously went wrong. The recordings will not be used."

It was estimated that about 50 10-shilling notes were handed out in Piccadilly Tuesday by a man in a brown suit. Eyewitnesses said he asked for 4s 3½d. (about 86 cents) in return.

Sheffield, England (CP)—People thought they were being hoaxed when they read a sign outside a tobacconist's store: "Virginia cigarets—10 for sixpence" (12 cents).

But it was true. Said the tobacconist: "I found some pre-war cigarets tucked away in the back of my store. Each packet had a gift coupon—and those have not been issued since 1933."

Present-day price is 1s 9d.

Detroit (AP)—The municipal street car and bus system looked to its dignity today.

Drivers got orders to quit patronizing taverns on quick stops for a refill of the coffee bottle or to replenish the money changer.

To avoid public "suspicion", Railway Commissioner Fred P. Sission said that stops would be limited to specified gasoline stations, cafes and other places.

Hythe, Kent, England (CP) — Brewing is the chief industry of this small town in the heart of England's hop-growing country. Yet—there have been no 'drunks' here for nine years.

Hop-pickers say men of Hythe are "too respectable" to get drunk. But Police Inspector Norman Stickins has another explanation:

"Men of Hythe start drinking so young they become immune to the effects of liquor," he said.

Montgomery, Ala. (AP)— The Montgomery Exchange Club penalizes members who are late at meetings by making them care for Reuben, a pet rabbit, for one week.

It worked fine until Reuben turned out to be a Rachel.

Otis Thompson was Reuben's custodian last week. His wife telephoned his office to report that Reuben had given birth to one rabbit.

Thompson ,a bit shocked, cautioned: "Take care of the little one."

Thirty minutes later: "There are five rabbits out here."

An hour later: "There are nine rabbits now!"

Thompson rushed home — 11 rabbits. Wednesday there were 14.

Thompson said it looks like a special meeting is in order to decide what to do with "Reuben" and her offspring.

Santa Monica, Calif. (AP) — Miss Cock Van Gent, 24-year-old Dutch artist, has offered her left ear for sale at $24,000—so she can paint and eat too.

In the United States on a visitor's permit, Miss Van Gent is determined to stay and pursue her art, but she's handicapped by a lack of cash. So she advertised her ear for sale in a newspaper.

So far she's had no bids.

Favor More Severe Discipline to Quell Gang Epidemic

Kingston, Feb. 25. (CP)—Mrs. J. O. Arrowsmith of Toronto, said last night "more severe discipline or punishment is needed in most cases to quell the epidemic of gang warfare."

President of Ontario's Federation of Home and School Clubs she told Kingston's Home and School Club:

"The epidemic of gang warfare, beating, the molesting of innocent pedestrians, the assault on policemen and street-car conductors by a section of our youth, have made us keenly aware that the recreation centres haven't met the problem of all youth, though they have been excellent for most.

"Our provincial executive's consensus was that judges have been too lenient in their sentences and that more severe discipline or punishment was needed in most cases; punishment severe enough that these young people will think twice before committing offences which will bring them under control.

Claims Russia Is Repopulating Areas With Russians

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)— Gen. Nicolae Radescu, former Romanian Prime Minister, said yesterday that Russia is forcibly removing natives on its border areas from the Baltic to the Black sea and repopulating the sections with Russians. The purpose, he said, was to create an "ethnic insulating barrier" along Russia's frontiers.

Protect Children Of Persons In Divorce Actions

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Protection for children of persons involved in divorce proceedings is provided for in a bill given first reading in the Ontario Legislature Thursday.

The bill, introduced by Attorney-General Blackwell, provides that whenever children under 16 years are referred to in a divorce action, it will be the duty of the Official Guardian to obtain all facts relative to their custody, maintenance and education. This report may be filed as evidence in the action.

W. L. Houck (Lib-Niagara Falls) introduced a bill to increase from three to five membership on the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Two of the five would be appointed by the Ontario Municipal Electric Association. One of these members would be chosen by the O.M.E.A. from a panel submitted by labor unions.

Three Imprisoned On Serious Counts

Simcoe, Feb. 25 — (CP) — Sentences totalling 12 years imprisonment were imposed this morning on three young men convicted of serious offences.

Lawrence C. Smith, 22, of Forestville, found guilty of rape of a French-Canadian school teacher last July, was given four years in the penitentiary and 10 strokes of the strap. On a second count of assault occasioning actual bodily harm, arising out of the same circumstances, he was given two years in penitentiary to run concurrently.

Stanley Matthews, 21, of Windham township, also convicted on the rape and assault charges, was given 12 months definite and six months indeterminate in reformatory on the rape charge and six months definite on the assault convictions.

Michael Stark, 27, Crowland township, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary on a charge of armed robbery of the De Plancke gasoline service station, south of Tillsonburg, last November and a concurrent term of one year after pleading guilty to receiving a stolen radio.

Rape convictions of Smith and Matthews were the first in Norfolk county in many years.

GETTING IDEAS

Montreal — (CP) — Judge Herbert Cramm of St. John's juvenile court, director of child welfare for Newfoundland, is surveying juvenile institutions in Quebec province. The Newfoundland government is considering building a boys' training school.

Three French Red Publications Raided

Paris, Feb. 25. (Reuters)—Police today raided the buildings of three French Communist publications and the home of a Communist Trade Unionist.

The man whose home was raided was an official of the Communist-led Confederation Generale du Travail.

Three police inspectors called at his office to escort him home so that he could be present at their search.

Publications raided were: Regards, an illustrated weekly; France Darboard, a weekly paper specializing in military subjects; and Editions Sociales, a publishing house dealing mainly in leaflets and pamphlets for the Communist Party and Para-Communist organizations.

DIES IN 101ST. YEAR

Greenbank, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP) — Miss Sarah Ann Ward, who would have celebrated her 101st birthday next month, died at her home here Thursday. An 86-year-old sister survives.

Railwayman Discovers Fire, Warns Family

Paris, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP)—Fire which broke out after midnight in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Haines spread so rapidly that the entire building was a total loss before the occupants had an opportunity to save any belongings.

Mr. and Mrs. Haines were in a front room of the house shortly after 1 a.m. when a railway employee came to their door to report the barn at the rear of the house was ablaze. The railwayman discovered the fire while switching in the vicinity of the home, at the Paris junction.

By the time the parents had roused their two children, Michael, four years old, and Patrick, two years old, they had only time to get them to safety before the building was ablaze from end to end.

Mr. and Mrs. Haines lost everything except the clothing they wore. The two children were rescued in their night attire.

North Hollywood, Calif. (AP)—If you don't think movie fan mail is business—big business—here's proof.

The city zoning administrator who gave Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans, 60 days to find a new mailing address. They've been receiving their fan mail at a residence.

Other neighbors complain that all the activity disturbed the neighborhood. The administrator concurred that answering the mail is business, and it can't operate in a residential zone.

Green Bay, Wis. (AP)— You never know what you'll find on the police department bulletin board.

This notice was posted today, signed by Inspector Francis Wigman:

"To all officers —do not loiter at the counter or desk. Read the day book, pick up the bulletins and loiter in the lobby."

A week ago the policemen were instructed to "see the bulletin board for names of officers to shoot at target practices."

Toledo, O. (AP)— Nick Rapton, a used car dealer announced today he will stage something new in the sale of used automobiles —a one cent sale.

Rapton said he will place on sale six autos at their "normal" price. Each of the six cars will be accompanied by a companion auto which will go to the purchaser for an addional penny.

Each of autos has a motor, Rapton said.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

Rosalie said, casually, "What's new with Terry?"

Marion smiled when Rosalie couldn't see her. "That reminds me," she said. "I wonder if you'd mind running down to the village. I need some things at the market. Terry has the finest market in town, Rosalie. I know he'd be glad to see you. You might bring him back to supper and then we can all hear about Bermuda at the same time."

"Wel-ll, if you really need something . . .:" Rosalie had already put the little blue hat with the jaunty red feather over her curls.

"I think you'll be surprised when you see the store," Marion said.

Surprised? Rosalie's eyes popped wide open. Wherever and however had Terry Keating found the means to such an impressive emporium?

There were three wide windows, decorated — actually decorated — with fancy foods. Light and cleanliness fairly shone out unto the sidewalk from the spacious modern store within. A wide blue and white border outlined the windows. A modest sign above the door proclaimed: Keating's Market.

"I've never seen better in New York," Rosalie murmured, entering.

There were four clerks busily waiting on customers. Terry saw her and came out from the office at once. "Hello," he said, as though she had been away three or four days. "Nice to see you, Rosalie. Would you mind staying in the office and answering the telephone for a few minutes? . . . I have to take care of Mrs. Lester. I 'lbleWRW' ter. I'll be right with you."

Rosalie said, "would I...what?"

But Terry had gone.

If Rosalie had possessed a lornetee, she would have focused it on Terry Keating with a deadly aim. However, Terry hadn't bothered to notice her reaction to his suggestion that she "wait in the office and answer the telephone" — in fact, Terry was in earnest conversation with Mrs. Lester, the rich old lady who owned the show place of Elmford.

Rosalie tightened her mouth into a thin little line and stepped into the office with a haughty gait. There was no one in there to see that she had been outrageously treated so she sat down at Terry's desk.

"Hmm," she said. Her eyes wandered over the filing cabinet, the impressive stack of books on the bookkeeper's desk, the carpet on the floor, the wire basket marked incoming invoices. Try as she would, Rosalie was having a hard time to keep herself from becoming impressed.

She'd sit there, and she'd wait until he had time to come back and say hello to her, but just see if she'd answer the telephone!

Just then the telephone rang. It rang again. Rosalie looked through the glass partition; let one of the clerks answer it. It continued to ring. Rosalie picked up the receiver. An old habit fell on her; she picked up a pencil at the same time.

"Hello," she said, "Keating's Market . . . No, ma'am, he's very busy just now. Can I do something for you? . . . What? A pound and a half of rump steak, ground . . . A pound of butter and a half pint of whipping cream. What name, please? . . . Mrs. Moffat! Hello, Angie, this is Rosalie Bates! . . . Yes, of course, I'm home . . . Oh, I'd love to. How about tomorrow night . . . What? Down here? . . . Oh, I . . . I just dropped in and Terry asked me to help him out . . . All right, Angie. I'll be at your house for supper at six . . . Good-bye."

Well, that was nice. Angie Moffat had sounded really glad to hear that she was home. Rosalie wrote her order neatly on an order pad, filled in the name and address. She stepped out of the office.

"Well, if it isn't Rosalie Bates! Why we thought that you were going on a world cruise, Rosie. We didn't expect to find you in Terry's store. Isn't it a beauty. We're all so proud of him. Just to think of Mr. Upham doing that for him."

Rosalie was surrounded by the Goodhue family. Mrs. Amos Goodhue and her two buxom daughters. When Mrs. Goodhue was in full conversational sail, Rosalie knew nothing was expected of her.

"We're having a church supper and bridge party on Tuesday, Rosalie, and we want you to be sure to come."

Something warm began to stir in Rosalie. In the last fifteen minutes she had received two invitations. It was rather fun being in Terry's store. She remembered the order in her hand. As she walked across the center aisle to give it to Terry, she remembered something else: Mrs. Goodhue had said something about Mr. Upham's doing something. Doing what?

Jonathan Upham was the town banker, a man not given to easy bargaining. He had always seemed a formidable figure to Rosalie. Just as his curly-headed daughter Marjorie had always seemed a kind of goddess to Rosalie when they were children.

Marjorie Upham was the only girl in Elmford who had gone away to boarding school. Marjorie was the only girl to have a pony cart when she was small and a roadster of her own when she was eighteen.

Marjorie and Rosalie had met in Judge Hanford's office when Rosalie was his secretary, and Rosalie, strangely, had found her like any other girl she'd known. After that, they'd met sometimes in the drug store and paused to have a soda together. But Rosalie had never gotten over her feeling a kind of awe toward the other girl. Yet, only this afternoon Marion had said she'd met Marjorie on Elm street and Marjorie had said, "How nice that Rosalie's coming home. I'd like to hear about her trip. Ask her to call me when she is free."

"Gee, Rosalie, you're a peach. Charlotte Haynes is working for me now, but she had to have a tooth out today and I didn't have any one in the office . . . Staying in Elmford long?" Terry said when she gave him the order.

"It just happens to be my home" she reminded him shortly. "I may stay a few days."

"Quite a few changes here, had you noticed?"

"Quite a few, Terry, I'm pleased to see, and ..."

He said, "Excuse me." He left her abruptly and went to answer the telephone. Rosalie wished she hadn't left her furs in the office. She wished she could walk out quickly. Why, Terry was treating her like . . . like . . .

"It's for you," he said, coming back.

"Hello, Rosalie. Welcome home!" It was Lucy Gaynor on the wire. "Mrs. Moffat just called me up and told me you were down at Terry's store. Can you and Terry come over and tell us about your trip tonight?"

Rosalie put her hand over the mouthpiece. Terry stood at her shoulder. "It's Lucy Gaynor and she wants to know if you'd like to go over to her house tonight with me? Marion wants you to come to supper."

He said, "Tonight? . . . I . . . er . . . sure, if you'd like to." Months before, she would have answered for him. But this was a new Terry.

She said, "We'd love to, Lucy. About eight?"

Marion said, "If you're going out, you won't mind if Tom and I run along to the movies and catch the first show? I know you have a lot to say to each other."

If Terry had much to say to her, he was very slow getting started, Rosalie decided an hour later. She'd done her best. She'd brought out all her snapshots of Bermuda and Terry had admired them with exactly the right amount of enthusiasm. No more.

"It's changed you, hasn't it, Rosalie?"

"How do you mean, Terry?"

Terry took his pipe from his pocket, filled and lighted it before he answered. "That's hard to say."

Suddenly Rosalie wanted him to tell her. "Perhaps, it's my new clothes. Clothes change a woman," she offered helpfully.

"Do they?" he asked coolly.

"Not inwardly," Rosalie was beginning to be annoyed with herself. Why should she allow Terry to make her feel that she was lacking?

"I hoped they would," he said simply. "You'll find Elmford pretty small now."

"On the contrary, I'm beginning to appreciate Elmford for the first time."

He smiled quietly. In a superior manner, Rosalie thought.

"Terry," she said, "Tell me about the store. I've been selfishly talking about myself. I think the new store is wonderful. Did you get the store at Pineboro, too?"

He shook his head. "No, Mrs. Hedgerow decided to keep it. That's why I . . . well, put what money I had into the Elmford store. Mr. Upham has been a big help, getting the Chamber of Commerce interested and all that. It's been a success, Rosalie."

"I can see that, Terry. When I saw it, I thought it compared with one of the big stores in New York."

"I've got contracts with several of the hotels for nextx season, too."

"And what else have you done? Have you . . . have you bought the Briggs place?"

He avoided her eyes. "No, I hadn't any reason to. I've put everything I have into the store."

Rosalie recognized they were on dangerous ground. The Briggs place was the one he'd wanted to buy for the two of them. She said, "Terry, wouldn't the Kelsey dairy be a good buy for you?"

He said, "So would the . . . so would almost anything be that was a sure-fire hit."

Rosalie warmed to the subject. "But if you had it, you could get eggs and butter and milk contracts for the hotels. It wouldn't take much capital to run it. Tom says it's almost perfectly equipped as it stands. How much do you think it's worth?"

"About ten thousand dollars. It should return the investment twice over in three years."

"And Tom says a man from around here could get it for as little as five thousand dollars."

"I told you you'd changed, Rosalie. You've forgotten that five thousand dollars as a heap of money around here."

"It isn't too much if it will keep out the syndicate," she said heatedly.

"It's too much any way you look at it if you haven't got it." he said, unable to keep the mistfulness out of his voice. Realizing that note, he said quickly. "We'd better be running along, if the Gaynors are expecting us for bridge."

Rosalie gave up with a sigh. There was no getting Terry to break down this barrier.

On the way to the Gaynor's in Terry's little car, she said, "Terry, I hope you'll keep Saturday night free. I'm having a . . . a guest from New York. And I'm going to give a little party for him."

"For him?" The question slipped out without his meaning it to.

Rosalie caught it. "Yes," she said brightly. "His name is Norman Carteret. She'd show Terry Keating he wasn't the only beau she'd ever had. She said graciously, "Would you like to bring a girl? Or shall I invite some one?"

He said quickly, "I'll bring Marjorie Upham, if you don't mind. We were going . . . er . . somewhere else, but we'd like to come to meet your friend, I'm sure."

Whitewash and Coal Tar to the Rescue

(From a "Scientific American" Research Bulletin)

Two raw materials once chiefly of value around the farmer's hen house — whitewash to counteract chicken lice and coal tar for patching the roof — today seem destined to rescue America's chemical industry when the oil wells of the nation run dry.

The story begins with one of those curious accidents which science is always turning up. About half a century ago, in a small plant in Spray, N.C., Thomas L. Wilson and his partner, James T. Morehead, were conducting experiments with an electric furnace, seeking an inexpensive process for the production of aluminum, then a metal more precious than gold. Wilson decided that the addition of metallic calcium to his aluminum ore might turn the trick but first he had to perfect a process for making the metallic calcium.

So Wilson mixed some whitewash lime, which contains calcium, with some coal tar and shoved the mess into an electric furnace for several hours. The treatment yielded some grayish-white lumps, which Wilson dropped into a bucket of water. Immediately, the stuff began to bubble. Wilson supposed metallic calcium was combining with water to form bubbles of hydrogen gas. But upon igniting the bubbles with a torch the gas burned brilliantly, unlike hydrogen, and gave off clouds of sooty smoke. Subsequently chemical analysis at the North Carolina State University proved the gas to be acetylene, then a laboratory curiosity.

Calcium carbide, the grayish-white stuff which was dropped into the bucket, was soon in commercial production and acetylene gas became one of the important fuels of the gas-light area.

Chemists found acetylene to be an exceedingly touchy gas. It will, under easily established conditions, combine with a number of relatively common substances to form a wide variety of useful products ranging from automobile tires to silk stockings.

Germany could not have fought World War II without this wonder-gas. Short of everything but lime (the stuff of whitewash) and coal, Germany's scientists worked night and day to exploit acetylene.

J. Walter Reppe, director of I. G. Farben's central research laboratory, heart of Germany's great pre-war chemical trust, learned that acetylene could be handled roughly if its containers were divided into tiny cells by means of metallic honeycombs. Thus contained, the explosion of one touchy pocket of gas would not set off its neighbor. Reppe could thus safely compress the gas and heat it several hundred degrees. Under such heat and pressure, acetylene would speedily combine with many additional materials to create a range of products rivaling those usually derivved from oil.

Combined, with various forms of alcohol, acetylene yields raw materials for the manufacture of transparent and surgical tapes, dipped rubber goods, adhesives, lacquers and sulfa drugs. Chemically united with formaldehyde, acetylene can be turned into rubber tires. Varied slightly the process gives nylon. Scores of other products have been derived from acetylene and more are appearing continuously.

For 20 years United States chemistry has increasingly been based on petroleum. Our oil is running low. But the development of acetylene chemistry assures us that even if the wells go completely dry, our great reserves of coal and lime will fill the chemical needs of the nation for centuries to come.

CALUMET AGAINST FIELD

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26 — (AP)— It was Calumet against the field — maybe — today in Hialeah's $50,000 added Widener Handicap.

Surprisingly, seven other starters were named overnight to compete against Warren Wright's threesome — Coaltown, Faultless and Free America.

How many horses actually would go to the post was still unknown early today. Whether wagering would be permitted in the lopsided race also was unknown.

Tarred With His Own Brush

(Wall Street Journal)

Embarking on a trip to Europe, the late well-known writer, Don Marquis, decided to invest $200 in the cause of education. His object was to learn precisely how card-sharps operate on transatlantic liners.

On the second night out, Marquis hooked his teacher. A slick-looking gentleman persuaded him to take a hand at poker—and Marquis won a few dollars. The victim decided that this was just to encourage him, and so he was not greatly surprised when the next evening, the other players suggested that the limit be doubled. This time Marquis won about $25.

Marquis was still convinced that they were building up his confidence, so they could lead him to the slaughter later on. On the next night the stakes were again doubled, and Marquis won even more money.

On the last night out, the strangers proposed that the stakes be raised to quite a high figure, to celebrate the end of the voyage. "Ah, ha" thought the willing would-be victim, "here's where they take my shirt." But he retired from the table, that night a heavy winner.

Next morning, as Marquis came down the gangplank at Chebourg, he noticel two women eyeing him with more than causal interest. One of them he recognized as the wife of the slick-looking man who had first invited him to gamble. As he passed within earshot, he heard her say: "See that man there? Well, that's the dirty card-sharp who clipped my husband for $200."

VANCOUVER MAN BURIED IN SNOWSLIDE

Percy Coombs, Vancouver truck driver, died when his truck was buried in a huge snowslide at Hoodo Curve in Fraser canyon, B. C. Hundreds of tons of snow catapulted down the mountain in three separate slides. Snow slides in the South Kootenay wiped out the camp and office buildings of the inactive Gold Belt mine. The buildings were swept 1,000 feet down into Sheep Creek. Conditions improved in the lower B.C. mainland where power rationing ended, but elsewhere in the province the picture is grim.—Central Press Canadian.

TWO STUDENTS DIE, SIX ARE MISSING IN COLLEGE FIRE

Million Dollar Damage At Kenyon College, Ohio

Gambier, O., Feb. 28 (AP) — Kenyon College today listed six students missing in a $1,000,000 dormitory fire that killed two others and injured 26 yesterday. Firemen searched the ruins fur bodies.

Towering above the helmeted searchers were the gaunt, four-foot-thick gray stone walls of 'Old Kenyon,' the oldest building on the campus of the college for men.

That was all that was left of the 122-year-old dormitory that housed 120 students.

Missing were: Ernest Ahwajee, 18, of Akron, O.; Albert J. Lewis of Hazelton, Pa.; George Pincus of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Stephen Sheppard of New York.; Olin Woodworth of Jamaica Plain, Mass.; and Martin E. Mangle, 18, son of a New York retail store executive.

Dead were:

Edward Brout of Mount Vernon, N. Y., 19-year-old pre-medical student who tried to jump from the window of his room to a nearby fire escape, missed and plunged three storeys to his death. His roommate Saul Sanders made it.

Marc S. Peck of Fenton, Mich., who died of burns in hospital where two other students were in critical condition.

Spark in Rug Blamed

Saturday night was dance night at Kenyon College. Many of the boys donned stiff shirts and dress clothes. By midnight the fun began to slacken. By 3 a. m. it was quiet. A cheery fire crackled in the great fireplace.

An hour later, fire was raging up the aged building. Officials believed a spark from the fireplace ignited a rug.

Frightened students dived head first from second- and third-storey windows. Others tried descending the walls down the ivy that matted the damp stone.

$940,000,000 in New Aid To UK is Absolute Minimum Administration Tells Congress

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Truman administration advised Congress today that the proposed $940,000,000 in new aid to Britain is a "tight fight"—the absolute minimum.

"Any reduction in it," declared Paul Hoffman, head of the Economic Co-operation Administration, "would adversely affect continued recovery in both the United States anf western Europe."

Because of varying official British statements as to how far Britain has recovered from the strains of war, the committee called in Hoffman to justify Britain's share of the new $5,580,000,000 European recovery program.

That was the sole purpose of today's hearings.

"Until Great Britain's earnings of dollars through exports and services to the United States and other hard currency areas are sufficient to pay for the essential imports she must have, she will still need American aid," Hoffman said in his testimony.

"Any setback to a country so important as Britain would be bound to have the most serious consequences."

The question of cutting the British program by at least $200,000,000 had been explored Hoffman said.

He not only pictured the adverse effect would have on the British economy but also detailed how it might cut into United States" exports in cotton, foods, tobacco, and industrial goods.

In describing the $940,000,000 as the "absolute minimum," Hoffman said the program it would cover had been screened not only by Britain and the economic co-operation administration, but also by the United States State, Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce Departments.

YOUTH HELD IN BRUTAL SLAYING RETIRED GARDENER

Brockville Pensioner Beaten in Lonely Shack

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 28 — (CP)—Leo Parent, 17-year-old Cornwall youth, today was remanded for one week on a murder charge when he appeared before Magistrate George A. Wright.

He is charged with clubbing a 72-year-old retired gardener to death. He was picked up by police just nine hours after Michael Skelton died in hospital.

Parent, wearing a plaid cardigan sweather and blue trousers, was not represented by counsel and he was not asked to plead. His brown, curly hair was neatly brushed.

He stared at the floor as the charge was read out, raising his eyes at the mention of the word "murder."

Along with Parent in Brockville jail are two material witnesses, Thomas Dixon, 27, of Cornwall and Nick Therrien of Bainsville, Ont.

Skelton, a pensioner, said before he died that he had been beaten by "a fellow" who had asked him for something to eat. "When I didn't have it, he hit me," Skelton said.

The clubbing took place in Skelton's lonely shack 200 yards east of the town limits. When Skelton was beaten unconscious, the shack was padlocked and Skelton apparently left to die.

Shortly after 11 a.m. E.S.T. Saturday, he regained consciousness, dragged a packing case to a window and dragged himself out into the snow. Police later found pools of blood in the tumble-down shack and a blood-strained iron pipe, which they believe may have been the murder weapon.

Leaves Trail of Blood

Stumbling and leaving a trail of blood in the snow, Skelton dragged himself to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, his neighbors, a distance of 175 yards.

Mrs. Dean, 70, opened the door to his feeble knocks, and saw what she described as a "horrible" sight. Skelton stood with a small hatchet in one hand, blood running down the handle. He had a hat on and an overcoat and that covered the blood which had run to his feet," she said.

Mr. Dean said: "I took his hat off and saw his head horribly crushed." He asked Skelton what had happened. Skelton told him: "A fellow asked me for something to eat and when I did not have it, he hit me."

Police obtained a description of his assailant from Skelton, before he died.

Coupled with his lead and another obtained when a liquor store clerk described a purchaser of wine who had given Skelton's address Saturday, they had sufficient information to hold Therrien and Dixon as material witnesses.

Provincial Constable Don Brennan of Cornwall, arrested Parent at his home. Inspector Ward Kennedy of the O.P.P. Criminal Investigation Department who took over the investigation later would not say what led police to Parent.

"They acted on a lead," he said, "and they just happened to hit the right one."

Maritimers Digging Out Of 15 In. Snow, Temperature Zero

First Winter-size Storm Hits Nova Scotia and P.E. Island

Halifax, Feb. 28 — (CP)—With temperatures hovering around zero, Maritimers groped their way today out of the winter's first man-sized snowstorm.

Worst hit was Cape Breton, where 15 inches of snow fell. Operations were almost at a standstill at the big steel plant in Sydney because the snow disrupted outside plant transportation.

Coal mines in the area were also affected and some did not hoist today because the coal could not be moved after it reached the surface.

North Sydney was cut off from the rest of the province as the thick blanket of snow choked highways and played hob with telephone and telegraph communications.

Highway crews worked throughout the night to clear roads both in Cape Breton Island and the Nova Scotia mainland.

A Sydney-to-Halifax train chugged in here Sunday night nine hours late. A Sydney-bound train was 17 hours late and a couple of other trains headed for the steel city didn't get through at all. They stopped at New Glasgow or Truro.

A bus headed for Yarmouth on the shore road reached a point 17 miles from Halifax. The driver gave up and came back, saying chances of being marooned were too great.

In Prince Edward Island, only sleighs could navigate in rural areas. A foot of snow brought traffic to a halt in Charlottetown.

In Halifax, streets were covered for almost the only time this winter.

New Brunswick escaped the fall for the most part. Some areas in the southeast corner of the province got the Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island treatment, but Saint John, Fredericton and Campbellton got off scot free.

Help Russia If Italy Invaded Says Togliatti

Rome, Feb. 28 (AP)— Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti asserted Saturday it would be Italians' duty to help any Russian Army which might pursue "an aggressor" on to the soil of Italy.

The statement made in a published interview with the Rightist newspaper Giornale Della Sera, did not say what form Togliatti believed the aid should take.

Official Italian government circles took a light view of Togliatti's remarks.

A government spokesman said the Communist Leader's statement "was very carefully worded, and Togliatti could not have said less."

The statement came at a time when the country learned of a threatened cabinet crisis. Vice-Premier Giuseppe Saragat submitted his resignation from the cabinet and announced his anti-Communist Labor Socialist Party would consider whether to continue to support the government.

He said he was withdrawing because of a dispute in the party, not because of any trouble with Premier Alcide de Gasperi. The Premier indicated he would reject the resignation.

The carabinieri in sweeping raids, seized big stores of arms and munitions in the Naples area. They arrested 100 persons. The government charged that much of the contraband was owned by Communists.

Togliatti replying to questions said he knew of no plans by Russia to attack anybody, and continued:

"As to the hypothesis that Russian Army would pursue on our soil an aggressor, I think in this case the Italian people would have the evident duty to aid in the most efficient way the Soviet Army in order to give that aggressor the lesson he deserves.

Action 'If Necessary' To be Taken to Prevent Sale of Wine to Minors

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Law and liquor authorities today prepared to take court action "if warranted" to halt the sale of wine to minors.

Ontario Liquor Commissioner William Griesinger conferred today with Police Chief John Chisholm to study two known cases involving sale of wine to two 17-year-old boys.

The investigation was launched when Frank Peterson, 17, fined $10 Saturday on an intoxication charge, claimed he bought wine at three Ontario Toronto wine shops without any difficulty. Another 17-year-old boy, later purchased a bottle of wine with no questions asked about his age.

Meanwhile, President Ward Markle of the Ontario Hotel Association charged that underage boys and girls were in possession of liquor permits.

Two Priests Said Sentenced to Die In Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 28 (AP)— Two priests were reported sentenced to death today on charges of war-time aid to German and Italian occupation forces in Yugoslavia.

Borba, voice of Yugoslavia's Communist party, reported the two "admitted their guilt." Borba identified them as Alfons Jarc, a monk, and Viljen Savell, chaplain at Staritrg in western Yugoslavia, scene of some of the most bitter partisan fighting during the war.

Borba said also that two laymen, described as "cut-throats" were sentenced to die on the gallows and an unspecified number of others in a "collaboration group" were given prison sentences at hard labor ranging from five to 20 years.

(Catholic Archbishop Alojzif Stepinac of Yugoslavia now is serving a 16-year prison sentence at hard labor, imposed in October, 1946. He too was accused of collaboration with the axis during the war.)

The religion of the two priests was not disclosed. It was assumed here they are Roman Catholics since the vast majority of Slovenes are of that faith.

Borba said the two priests headed a collaboration group operating in 1942.

Five Churchmen Plead Guilty In Spy Trial

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Sofia, Feb. 28 (AP)—Five more Protestant churchmen pleaded guilty today in Bulgaria's spy trial.

By the end of the day's session, eight in all had entered guilty pleas. Seven others still must plead. All who pleaded guilty went through the now familiar routine, denouncing themselves, expressing repentance and pleading for a new chance to work for the Communist-controlled government.

The first to take the stand today was the Rev. Georgi Chernov, 46, a baldish Pentecostal pastor. He lost no time in pleading guilty, as the first three had done.

The others on the stand today were Lambri Marinov Mishkov, 41, of the Congregational Church; Georgi Nikolov Vassev, 48, of the Baptist Church; Haralan Ivanov Popov, 41, Pentecost Church, and Ioncho Nikolov Drianov, 41 Pentecost Church.

Multiple Sclerosis Gaining in Canada

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Multiple sclerosis or creeping paralysis, the disease that aflicted baseball star Lou Gehrig, today was reported "definitely on the increase in Toronto."

A well-known physician, whose name was not disclosed, said he has had 26 new patients, suffering from the disease, since the first of February, and averages a new patient daily.

Snow Expected In E. Ontario And Quebec

(By The Canadian Press)

Mild weather moved into Western Canada Prairie Provinces today while the first big snow storm of the year struck the Maritimes. Snow fell in Northern and Southern Ontario and was expected to move into eastern Ontario and Quebec later today.

Up to 15 inches of snow fell in the Maritimes, snarling transport and halting mining and factory operations.

British Columbia's worst winter in years seemed over. Golfers trooped to Vancouver links as the temperature reached 50 degrees.

Snow was expected to bring colder weather to Ontario. The fall began last night and today highways engineers said roads would be passable, but heavy.

Europe Eats Much Better Than Last Year, But It Still Has Long Way to Go

London, Feb. 28 (AP)— Nearly all Europeans are eating better than they did a year ago, but by North American' standards they still have a long way to go.

This year Belgium and Poland ended all rationing. Russia and Switzerland dropped rationing earlier. The Netherlands and France are considering similar action in 1949.

In a few heavily industrial countries which for centuries have had to import much of their food —notably Britain—rationing is still stiff. There is no sign that it may end within the next year or two. It is stiff, too, in Czechoslovakia and relatively so in Agricultural Yugoslavia, due to poor distribution.

Officially Britain is the only European country where the average consumer is getting fewer daily calories than when the war ended. The food ministry estimates the average Briton now gets 2,850 calories a day compared with 2,910 in 1945.

These are weekly British rations of basic foods:

Bacon or hams varies between one and two ounces; cheese, 1 1-2 ounces; fats, nine ounces of which butter averages three ounces with the remainder in margarine and cooking fats; meat, one shilling (20 cents) worth of which 10-pence (18 cents) worth is given in fresh meat and two pence in corned beef.

(Meat is rationed on a price basis and prices range from four pence (eight cents) to 2s. 2d. (45 cents) a pound, depending on quality).

Sugar, 10 ounces; candy or chocolates, four ounces; tea two ounces; milk, from 2 1-2 pints for an adult to 12 to 14 pints for babies and invalids.

Eggs, 76 on each adult ration book in 1948, and the food ministry hopes to distribute 100 this year to each consumer or about two eggs a week for each Briton.

An Associated Press survey showed the most extensively rationed food in western Europe is fat. The normal weekly allowance varies from 190 grams (seven ounces) in France to 350 grams (13 ounces) in Norway.

Sweden and Norway are the only two countries in Europe with the exception of Eire where the entire fat ration may be taken in butter.

Meat is not rationed in France, Italy, Eire or Portugal.

Fourth Straight Defendant In Spy Trial Pleads Guilty

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 28 (AP) —The fourth straight defendant in Bulgaria's spy trial of 15 Bulgarian Protestant clergymen pleaded guilty today as the hearing went into its third day in court.

He was Rev. Georgi Chernov, 46, Pentecostal pastor.

Chernov had written a 250-page "confession" while in jail—the longest preliminary deposition taken from any of the defendants. All are charged with treason, spying and black market money dealings.

Chernov said he had been ordered to collect espionage by Cyril Black, former United States political mission secretary here. He claimed he had talked with Black during the period from November, 1944, to the middle of 1945.

(Black, now a professor at Princeton University, has denied the charges made by the communist-dominated Bulgarian government, as have other Americans accused of complicity.)

Some spectators in the courtroom were dozing as Charnov continued the routine of pleading guilty and accusing himself.

Chernov testified he and other pastors had delivered information to Americans on Russian troop movements and on military and economic developments.

He said the Evangelical Church Council of Bulgaria gave orders through Protestant pastors to "praise everything American and slander all that is Russian."

The council is an organization of the Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Pentecost Churches of Bulgaria. Protestants are a small minority of 13,490 in Bulgaria's 7,000,000 population.

The three who pleaded guilty previously were Rev. Vassil Georgiev Ziapkov, a Congregationalist and religious representative of the United Protestant Church group; Rev. Yanko Nikolov, a Methodist, and Rev. Nikola Mihailov Nauhov, a Baptist.

The trial has developed into an attack on the ties the Protestant churches in Bulgaria maintained with the west.

A bill is pending in the Bulgarian parliament which would designate the orthodox church as the only "People's Church" in the country. It would closely restrict communication between church groups in the country and international church bodies.

SIX YOUNG FOLK LOSE LIVES IN MANITOBA FIRE

Sisters Ranging in Age From 21 to Eight and Boarder Victims

Morden, Man., Feb. 28 — (CP) —A sorrowing mother went ahead today with plans for the burial of five of her daughters, victims of an early morning fire that also snuffed out the life of a sixth person.

Mrs. Kathleen Neufeld, 46, whose husband died 1½ years ago, hurried back here yesterday from a visit to Winnipeg to face the tragedy that took the lives of daughters ranging in age from eight to 21. The girls were Nettie, 21, Annie, 19, Helen, 14, Sadie, 10, and Marjorie, eight.

John Storey, a 19-year-old Morden youth who had for the last two months boarded at the two-storey, frame dwelling occupied by the Neufelds, also perished in the fire.

Morden is about 70 miles southwest of Winnipeg and only a few miles away from the North Dakota border.

Almost simultaneous alarms on the fire, which broke out around 3 a.m., were turned in to telephone operator Alice Scales at the local exchange by D. B. Reimer and John H. Loewen.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Synopsis: Ontario is headed for another cold snap tonight. Polar air that has been lying over the northwestern section of the province entered Southwestern Ontario last night bringing overcast skies and snowflurries with its arrival. Similar weather is to be expected across the remainder of the province today as the colder air pushes eastward. Substantial snowfalls are looked for in the Lake Huran and Georgian Bay regions. Tuesday's weather will be clear and cold in all forecast regions.

VICIOUS SLAYER OF THREE KILLED BY POLICE FIRE

Riddled With 12 Bullets While Taking Shower in Tourist Camp Cabin

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 28 (AP)—The vicious triple slayer, Bill Ray Gilbert, made good his boast he never would be taken alive.

Surprised while taking a shower in a tourist camp cabin, the Arizona ex-convict fell dead before a blaze of police gunfire last night his naked body was riddled with 12 bullet holes.

Tho 28-year-old ex-convict killed a woman and two men near Needles, Calif., last Wednesday.

The gun battle with police ended a crime foray in which Gilbert and a prison pal, George Adolph Schmid, 22, kidnapped a Phoenix woman, killed the three Californians, and returned to Arizona with a plan to kill the state prison warden and other officials.

Schmid was captured without resistance by two city policemen here early Sunday as he tried to reach his mother's home. He was armed with two pistols.

Police surrounded the tourist camp cabin in the southwestern section of the city Sunday night when the operator, C. A. Jensen, reported a man he recognized as Gilbert had registered during the afternoon."

Two policemen battered on the cabin door and ordered the occupant to come out.

TELLS REDS TO "PACK UP"

Kitchener, Feb. 23 (CP)—Taking a strong stand against Communism Rev. C. Titchie Bell, Montreal, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, last night advised men who want "isms" to pack up and go to those countries which have them.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — A young Toronto couple was trapped in an automobile for nearly an hour Sunday after the vehicle crashed through four posts, became entangled in a road-guard cable and overturned on a suburban Mimico highway. Robert Godefery, 25, and an unnamed companion, escaped uninjured.

Lower-Priced Ford Models Will Be Chief Output

Detroit, Feb. 28 — (AP) — The Ford Motor Company today went ahead with plans to substantially step up production of lower-priced models.

Output of higher priced Lincoln cars, however, will be cut sharply, the company announced.

Executive vice-president Ernest R. Breech said Ford had no intention of following General Motors' lead in cutting prices. He indicated current wages and material costs were too high.

G.M. announced price reductions ranging from $10 to $150 Friday. No other automobile firms appeared ready to follow suit.

Ford plans to attain a combined total of 109,000 cars and trucks monthly by June, Breech said. This is well above December's post-war record of 88,141.

At South Bend, Ind., Studebaker Corporation also announced a production increase. The firm said the present weekly schedule of 3,810 units weekly would be boosted to 4,610. The corporation will begin hiring 1,800 new employees today.

Must Make Sure Bullets Are Fresh

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. (Feb) 28 (CP)— About midnight Saturday, George Hatfield, placed the business end of a loaded .22 rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

The 10-year-old bullet ran around the inside of Hatfield's denture, coming out the same way it went in. Results of the shooting are a completely wrecked set of false teeth and a badly sore tongue. Dr. J.E. Gimby who was called to the scene of the shooting said "it couldn't happen again in a thousand years."

Dr. Gimby this morning recommended the following rules to be followed by anyone contemplating shooting themselves in the mouth.

"Make sure the bullets are fresh and don't forget to remove your false teeth first."

Communist Major Admits He Gave French Army Papers to Foreigner

By CARL HARTMAN

Paris, Feb. 28 — (AP) — The French government said today a Communist army major has confessed turning army documents over to "a foreign military attache."

The attache was not identified, nor was the country he represents named.

A communique issued by the interior ministry said an army captain was questioned about his "relationship" with the major and about "defence documents" he is charged with turning over to a Communist magazine.

The officers, turned over to military authorities, were identified later only as "Major Teulery" and "Captain Azema."

Teulery was reported to have been on active service in the French army. Azema was described as an instructor of airborne troops.

The communique said he admitted handing over "numerous documents" which he had been able to collect in his jobs in the offices of the ministry of munitions and national defence.

The ministry said the case was connected with the one against Robert Penillaut, business manager of the Communist weekly France D'Abord (France First), who was arrested Friday.

The major was identified as a stockholder in the weekly.

Another officer, a captain charged with giving defence secrets to the paper, also will face a court-martial, the ministry said.

The announcement came as Frenchmen wondered nervously how far their government would go in present moves for a purge of Communists.

PIGEONS TAKE LOOK AT RIVER FROM ICE-FIELD

A pair of nautically - minded pigeons stepped out of barn-loft character today in an apparent attempt to discover what goes on in the swiftly-flowing water of the Moira River south of the lower city bridge.

The two disconsolate - looking habitants of the city clock tower paraded slowly along the jagged lip of a rotting ice-field in that part of the river. A short distance away a preening sea-gull watched the performance of these intruders on his domain.

The pigeons drank, and went through what seemed to be bathing manoeuvres. Then they sat and for minutes watched the water flowing by. Apparently satisfied that the life of a gull was not conducive to the long life of a pigeon, they finally ruffled their wings, took off, and disappeared in the distance.

LATE "POPS" COOPER'S SON WINS RACE WITH FATHER'S BOAT

Thomas Cooper, son of the late famous "Pops" Cooper, is following in his father's footsteps. The young man, driving his late father's boat, renamed "Pop's Pop," won the inboard racing hydroplane open event at Fort Lauderdale the other day attaining an average speed of 58.862 miles per hour.

The late "Pops" Cooper died in Syracuse hospital as a result of injuries received when his speeding boat turned turtle in the middle of a race at the Picton regatta last year.

BLACK MALE COLLIE IN CITY POUND

City dog catcher Thomas Thorne reports he has a black male collie dog wearing a 1949 Sidney dog tag which was picked up on Saturday. Children in the College Street area took the dog in tow and delivered him to Mr. Thorne. The dog will be kept the customary time awaiting his rightful owner.

6½-OUNCE EGG

Niagara Falls, Feb. 28 — (CP) —A Rhode Island Red hen owned by Henry Markle made a special effort yesterday and presented him with an egg weighing 6½ ounces. The egg measures 7½ inches around the middle and nine inches around the ends.

BRACEBRIDGE MEMORIAL

Bracebridge, Ont. — (CP) — Forty-four names are inscribed on a bronze tablet at the entrance to Bracebridge community centre, erected as a memorial to the town's heroes of the Second World War.

ROBOT PHONE DEBUT

"All alone on the telephone" becomes a reality in New York as George F. Ryan, business machine representative, demonstrates the "Tele-Magnet." The machine automatically answers the telephone in the owner's own voice and will record any message that the caller might wish to leave. The device, which will be on the market in 30 days, uses no wires or attachments in conjunction with the telephone equipment itself. — Central Press Canadian.

Central Air Command Band To Give Concert

For the third successive year the Y's Men's Club of Belleville presents their "Talent on Parade" on Tuesday, March 1st at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and for the second year features the band of the Central Air Command of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The Central Air Command band was organized by its bandmaster Warrant Officer (1st class) Clifford Hunt during the summer of 1946. The majority of the men in the C.A.C. band served in many R.C.A.F. bands of World War II both in Canada and in England.

During 1947 the C.A.C. band travelled 25,000 miles throughout Canada where the band was received with great acclaim. Regular a dance band it was flown to Goose Bay, Labrador to provide entertainment and recreation badly needed at that isolated R.C.A.F. outpost. Also in 1947 the band was honored with being engaged as "duty" band at the Canadian National Exhibition. During the time the band did two parades daily and also played ten concerts for the exhibition visitors.

Lieutenant Commander Charles Brendler, conductor of the famous United States Navy Band, the feature band of the 1947 C.N.E. was very generous in his commendation and encouragement for the C.A.C. band both for their parade work and concert performance. The Central Air Command band is already re-engaged to appear at the 1949 Canadian National Exhibition.

Outstanding Renditions

For those music lovers of Belleville who heard the band last year will well remember their outstanding renditions of Casey Jones, Red Rythm Valley and selections from Oklohoma. For those who did hear that outstanding program last year and for the remainder of the citizens of Belleville the C.A.C. band again presents another outstanding program.

Two numbers by Belleville's own and one of Canada's outstanding composers and arrangers E. Reg. Hinchey, that of Liebestraum and Dark Eyes will be featured on their program.

For added entertainment some of Belleville's best talent has been secured including Miss Barbara Diment, Joan Houston, soprano, Mr. and Mrs. B. Aspernall, duo, pupils of Miss Barbara Diment and the Glen Tambyln trio (Glen Hamblyn on piano, Arnold Carter on bass and Eric Woolman on drums).

Proceeds from the concert will go to boys' and girls' work in the city of Belleville. Tickets are on sale at Leslie's Shoe Store or from any Y's Men.

Mac Haig Will Allow Name To Go Before Convention Of South Hastings Liberals

Liberal candidate for South Hastings in two previous Federal elections, Mr. McLean "Mac" Haig, well known local business man, will permit his name to go before the convention when South Hastings Liberals meet on Wednesday to choose their candidate for the forthcoming election.

Mr. Haig agreed over the weekend to permit his name to go before the convention, when he was approached on the matter by several sections of the party both local and national in the riding.

The Liberal convention to name their candidate is being held Wednesday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre when the meeting will be addressed by the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor.

Vets Honor War Dead

More than 30 aged and graying veterans of the South African War braved the icy winds at 9 a. m. Saturday morning to gather at the annual wreath-laying ceremonies in front of the Paardeberg monument on the Plaza in Ottawa.

Sharp at 9, Arthur Bennet, president of the South African Veterans' Association, gave the signal and CSM J. V. Birchall of the GGFG sounded the Last Post and Reveille while the veterans stood bare-headed in the frigid air.

Miss Marjorie Cook, daughter of the late Mayor Fred Cook, laid a wreath on the flag - draped monument, in honor of the men who gave their lives in the war of 1900-01. R. H. Cumming, president of the 43rd Regimental Association, laid a wreath on behalf of that association.

Mr. Bennett then presented Miss Cook with an illumanited and framed scroll, in appreciation of her faithful carrying out of the ceremony of laying a wreath, initiated by her father many years ago.

The veterans held their annual dinner at the Albion Hotel in the evening.

Fred Croft, of this city, accompanied by his wife, attended the ceremonies and reunion.

Crosses Atlantic In Five Hours

Montreal, Feb. 28 (CP)— Travelling so fast that he got ahead of himself, Capt. Colin N. Campbell last Tuesday set a record for the west-to-east Atlantic flight.

The transport pilot was surprised when he sighted Ireland. He thought he was well over the ocean.

Campbell flew his four motored North Star from Montreal to London in 10 hours and 11 minutes, chipping 19 minutes off the mark set last year.

The 30-year-old Trans-Canada Air Lines captain, who returned here during the weekend, said his air speed at the 21,000 foot cruising altitude was a normal 246 miles an hour. A following wind sometimes reaching 170 miles pushed him along at a ground speed of 416 miles an hour. Down on the ocean's surface a 30-40 mile wind was blowing.

Fastest part of the trip was across the 2,000 mile stretch of Atlantic between Gander, Nfld., and Ireland—nearly twice the distance from Halifax to Toronto. Campbell made it in four hours and 56 minutes without even pushing his plane.

Once during the flight Campbell talked with a westbound American plane.

"I told the captain the upper air wind speed and he said 'Don't worry, we won't be up there, but you should make a new record, so best of luck.'"

They were moving so fast that before the Irish landfall navigator Paddy McClintock had trouble keeping the fix lines on his chart ahead of the plane.

"When we were heading for the Irish coast, I spotted some lights," Campbell recalled, "and asked the navigator what they were."

"It must be a ship," he replied.

"It must be a big one," I said, "it's got cars running around the deck." We had hit the coast spot on course."

Probably Guy Was Psychic

Maybe the guy was pyschic and again he may just have a keen nose for wine but a certain resident nevertheless was out just three bottles of wine over the weekend.

It all happened this way.

The certain resident Saturday left a shopping bag containing 3 bottles of wine at a local cigar store and went out to do further shopping.

Minutes later another man entered the store and claimed the bag from the clerk. Still later the rightful owner showed up to claim his property but he was disappointed.

The unfortunate part of the whole thing was that the clerk who handed out the shopping bog did not know the man who carried it away.

Sixteen Stitches Required to Close Cut on Head

Employee of the Armstrong Lumber Company, Earl Hickock, 22, of Owen Sound, was seriously injured Thursday morning when he was struck on the back of the head by a log when a boom hook broke loose. He suffered severe lacerations and a possible skull fracture.

The injured man was given first aid by Dr. S. Eagleson of Madoc, it requiring 16 stitches to close the cut in his head. He was taken to Belleville hospital.

Police Blotter

Only routine matters came to the attention of the city police department over the weekend with inebriates who had gazed too well on the wine when it was red causing considerable work for officers.

At least half a dozen drunks were hauled into the police cells when they were picked up in a drunken condition on city streets.

Two residents reported losing purses containing considerable sums of money, while an east hill woman reported her wallet containing $25 had been taken from her home. She suspected a man who had been hired to do some odd jobs abut the home.

Complaint of Splashing

A George Street couple complained they had been splashed while walking on Victoria Ave. They secured the number of the car and the owner, when contacted, stated he had been unaware that his car had splashed any pedestrians. He volunteered to pay for a dry-cleaning job.

The proprietor of a Bridge St. service station complained that a motorist had driven in and after purchasing gas and oil had driven off without paying.

Another resident, this time from Hillside Street, reported that young boys were raiding his woodpile at the rear of his house. He asked for a police investigation into the matter.

OBITUARY

FRANCIS (FRANK) MILLS

Francis (Frank) George Mills, late residence 16 Grove St., died in the Belleville General Hospital early Sunday evening. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Mills, who was in his 87th year, was born in Belleville, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Mills. All his life was passed here and he was a tinsmith by trade. He was an excellent workman and took pride in his work. During his long life he worked in various shops, his last employment being with the John Lewis Company. By his employers, his fellow workmen and by many friends in general he was held in high regard.

Frank Mills was much interested in military affairs and for many years he filled in a highly capable manner the office of Quarter-Master Sergeant of the 15th, Battalion Argyll Light Infantry. In religion he was a faithful member of the Church of England and a life long parishioner of Christ Church. When age and health permitted he took an active part in the work in the parish and for a considerable time he was the efficient and well-liked superintendent of St. George's Sunday School, which is part of Christ Church parish.

He was the last of his family and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William (Lucy) Yates, and Mrs. Percy (Hazel) Henthorn, both of Montreal. His wife, the former Alice Alzina Mays, died in May of last year.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

WILLIAM ARTHUR AMAN
(Sophiasburg Township)

William Arthur Aman died at his home in the first concession of Sophiasburg township, Prince Edward County, early Sunday morning, after an illness of four years' duration.

Born in Sophiasburg township the late Mr. Aman was in his 70th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Aman. All his life was past in the district where he was born. He was a member of Solmesville United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Florence Lillian Fox; one daughter, Miss Helen Frances Aman, at home; four sons, Cecil, Ralph, William and Paul, all of Sophiasburg township.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

JOHN McAULEY
(Trenton)

John McAuley, 84 Store Street, Trenton, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday afternoon. He was 84 years of age and was a patient in the hospital since Dec. 10th. last.

FREDERICK W. POOLE

Frederick William Poole, 21 Jane Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Saturday evening, after an illness of two years' duration.

Born in Palmerston, Ontario, the late Mr. Poole was in his 67th year, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Poole. As a young man he engaged in railroading and for many years he was a competent locomotive engineer in the service of the Canadian National Railways. He ran out of the Belleville Division for some years and retired in May 1946. At one time he lived in Brantford and for the past eight years he made his home in this city. He was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Nellie Finch; two sons, Carman Poole of Miami, Florida. and Harold Poole of Windsor, Ontario.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MRS. IDA I. LATCHFORD
(Foxboro Road)

On Sunday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Ida Isabel Latchford, wife of Mr. Robert Latchford, was held from the residence of her son, Mr. William Latchford, Foxboro Road, to St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin, where service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. F. C. Beazer, who also said the committal prayers at St. Paul's Cemetery.

The bearers were: Jack O'Grady, John McLean, Alex. Goodfellow, Joseph Cockins, J. Byrne and S. Coulter.

LATE HAROLD GOODFELLOW
(Thurlow Township)

The funeral of Harold Goodfellow was held Saturday afternoon from his late residence in the 5th. concession of Thurlow township, to Carmel United Church where service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. R. Trumpour, who also officiated at the graveside in Victoria Cemetery.

The bearers were William Sills, Levi Lattone, Frank Whitney, Harry Haines, Harry Harrison and James Dyer.

MRS. CARRIE MAY SINE
(Frankford)

Frankford, Feb. 28 — (Special) —Mrs. Carrie May Sine, wife of Mr. Perry Sine, died at her home here on Saturday after an illness of two months' duration.

Born in Sidney township the late Mrs. Sine was in her 77th. year, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lott. For nine years she resided in the province of Saskatchewan and for the past 33 years she lived in the Frankford district. She was a member of the United Church and was a member of the Women's Missionary Society.

Surviving her are her husband; one brother, J. A. Lott, Sidney township; four sisters, Mrs. C. A. (Etta) Davis, St. Louis, Mich.; Mrs. Harry (Florence) Davis, Toronto; Mrs. W. N. (May) Badgley, Toronto; Mrs. John (Lena) Kernan, Hannon, Ontario.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE FRED SLATER

There was a large attendance of friends at the funeral of Ex-Ald. Fred Slater, late residence, 67 North Front Street, which was held from the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street, on Saturday afternoon. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

The late Mr. Slater was a life member of the Masonic Order and the last rites of the Order were conducted at the graveside by Raymond Gunsolus, Wor. Master of The Belleville Lodge No. 123, A. F. & A. M., assisted by W. D. Embury, Frank Tulk, Harry Bates, William Coulby and Isaac Stephenson.

The bearers were Garnet Dobbs, W. D. Embury, William Coulby, Clarence Myers, Errol Greenleaf and William Youdale.

LATE JOHN DORAN

The funeral of the late John Doran took place at St. Charles' Church, Read, this Monday morning. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. E. Briceland, who also said the committal prayers, interment being in St. Charles' Cemetery.

The bearers, six nephews of the deceased, were Bruce Hamilton, Joseph Daley, Charles Hamilton, J. J. Byrne, Newton Wilson and Stephen Brown.

CAUSED "RAFFLES" ARREST

But for pretty Gloria (Horowitz) Howard (above), 22-year-old model, Gerard Graham Dennis might still be collecting gems from society folks. It was the arrest of Miss Howard as his unwitting accomplice that put police on the trail of the society Raffles and caused his arrest in Cleveland. Miss Howard is shown in Detroit on her return from New York after she was cleared of any complicity in the depredations of the jewel thief. —Central Press Canadian.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)— Prices climbed slowly ahead in light trading here today. Western oils were best as industrials and base metals also edged upwards on gains in key issues. Golds were almost at a standstill with a few issues moving on a slightly easier tone.

Volume for the first three hours was 374,000 shares, about 158,000 shares less than Friday's similar period.

All western oils moved upwards led by key issues. Action was moderate on the upturns and a few losses that showed at the opening were wiped out.

Consolidated Smelters recovered $1 of recent losses at $102 'in a stronger base metals list. New Nalumet added 16 cents at $1.69 following a record January production report. Noranda was ahead and Sherritt, International Nickel and Pend Oreille were gainers.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Produce prices on the spot market here this morning were quoted as follows:

Churning cream, unchanged. No. 1, 74 cents fob; 78 delivered. Butter prints, unchanged. First grade 70½; second grade 69½.

Receipts are up on the egg market but supplies are clearing well at unchanged prices. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 43; Grade A medium 42; Grade A pullet 40; Grade B 40; Grade C 34. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 46-47; Grade A medium 45-46; Grade A pullet 43-44; Grade B 44; Grade C 34.

Butter solids, unchanged. First grade 68; second grade 67.

Production Beehives Hewed Deep in Granite in Sweden

By GLENN WILLIAMS

Linkoping, Sweden, Feb. 28—(AP) — Factories for the atomic age — production beehives hewed deep into solid granite — are going concerns in Sweden.

Vital defence materials, including jet-powered fighter planes with a speed approaching that of sound, have been flowing out of such underground factories for more than four years.

Swedish officials exhibited part, but not all, of their underground jet plant to 14 touring American newspaper men. They are somewhat vague about how many more such factories they have, but admit to at least ten more.

The Saab (Svenska Aeroplan Aktiebolaget) aircraft plant near Linkoping has provided emergency living quarters underground for at least 1,000 of its workers.

All the air which enters the plant comes through a complicated air conditioning system, which includes emergency filters to prevent a gas attack from knocking the plant out of action.

Swedish officials will not say whether they also have been able to devise a defence against atomic radiation.

Imported from U.S.

A good many vital materials which make up Swedish airplanes are imported from the United States, a few others from Britain. The Swedes are producing DeHavilland Ghost jet engines themselves under patent licences granted by Britain De-Havilland Aircraft Company.

Sweden buys from the United States such things as gun sights for its fighter planes, landing gear parts and cabin pressurizing equipment.

Special alloy steels, to withstand the great heat and pressures in a jet engine, are turned out in the Sandviken Steel Works in central Sweden. The Sandviken Company also consults with the Jessop Steel Company in Sheffield, England, which produces much of the steel for compressor rotors in British jet engines.

Sweden is attempting to become more and more self-sufficient in defence production and is gathering tools and licences from both the United States and Britain to build up a war industry independent of imports.

Many U.S. Papers Editorially Condemn Truman's Use of Term

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Many United States newspapers deplored and condemned President Truman's use of the term "S.O.B." although some defended him editorially.

The President exploded the epithet last Tuesday night at a dinner honoring his aide, Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan.

The President said: "If any S.O.B. thinks he is going to get any member of my staff or cabinet changed by some smart aleck statement over the air, he's mistaken.

Previously radio commentator Drew Pearson had launched a compaign of criticism against Vaughan over the air and in his newspaper column, after Vaughan accepted a medal from President Juan Peron of Argentina. The President did not use Pearson's name in his speech.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Evening News said "these picturesque cussing-outs may be all right in strictly private off-the-record performances, but when he is speaking publicly he speaks as President of the United States and should express himself in language becoming the high office."

The Chicago Sun-Times said "the dirty phrase used by Mr. Truman has shocked millions who feel that every President becomes a symbol for clean-minded youth."

The Atlanta Journal said "that simple, honest human way in him (Mr. Truman) which has earned him the country's sympathy and support has now betrayed him into such a lapse as his recent descent into the gutter epithet."

Showed Self at Best.

The New York Daily News said "it seems to us the President showed himself at his best" when he made the S.O.B. statement.

The New York Times said "President Truman's loyalty to his friends is an admirable quality. but surely he could have rebuked what he regarded as an unfair attack upon his military aide without using in a public speech a phrase which is offensive and in poor taste."

The New York Herald Tribune said "we doubt that Mr. Truman calculated the term or would repeat the performance.

The New York Post-Dispatch said "while it will be argued, we suppose, that Presidents cannot afford to be human and must always restrain their tempers, we can well understand the President's use of term S.O.B. as applied to a certain showman and think that, considering all circumstances, it was very well applied."

The St. Louis Globe Democrat said: "Harry can get people far more excited about what he says than what he does. He seems to have a genius for vocal legerdemain."

The Detroit News said "a President, unfortunately, is both a person and a personage, and what is a winning attribute in private may contribute a defeat in a manger of the public's affairs."

Former Treasurer Of Mindszenty Pleads Guilty

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 28 — (AP)—Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty's former treasurer pleaded guilty to black-market money dealings today.

The defendant, Monsignor Imre Boka, admitted to a People's Court that he gave dollars and other monies to different bankers and brokers for black-market sale, as the trial of 14 persons allegedly implicated in Cardinal Mindszenty's activities opened.

Boka declared he always got instructions from either the Cardinal himself, or through his secretary. He also asserted the profits made through these black-market speculations were used for charity purposes.

Dr. Gabor Horvath, secretary to Duke Paul Esterhazy, also pleaded guilty and said he proposed to Esterhazy to purchase the dollars.

Hig Rsdge wanted to take precautions in case Esterhazy's property should melt away as a result of nationalization. Horvath said he was aware that Estergom (residence of the Cardinal) had been the source of the dollars.

The other defendants included 10 bankers and brokers and two priests.

They are charged with illegal dealings in foreign currency and "political conspiracy" with those already sentenced.

Their trial opened 20 days after Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Esterhazy, a Royalist and the wealthiest man in pre-war Hungary, at the same time was sentenced to 15 years. The two other priests were Revs. Jozsef Zid and Janos Zaradi, both Jesuits.

Granted Separate Trial

Divandar Wydler, a banker, was granted separate trial after his lawyer asserted he was severely ill and trial now might endanger his life.

Sandor Foldes, another defendant, was ill and unable to appear case.

The indictment charged Msgr. Boka "speculated illegally" and smuggled out of the country various amounts of United States dollars.

It alleged that "a secret system between different convents, including the American and Hungarian Sacred Heart" helped in the black market dealings.

The government said that because of the involved nature of the documents, it could not determine the total amount of money involved.

Horvath was accused of selling $19,000 on the black market and smuggling $29,200 to Vienna, Austria. Msgr. Boka was charged with neglecting to report $44,800 to the Hungarian National Bank, selling $19,000 in the black market and smuggling $2,500 into Czechoslovakia and Romania.

Balmy Weather Follows Worst Winter in B.C.

By GEORGE BRIMMELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Feb. 28 (CP)—British Columbia's worst winter in 47 years received an emphatic "good bye" today as balmy weather heralded the long-awaited spring—at 50 degrees above.

The strange winter ushered out February in strange ways:

A thousand golfers belted them over four playable Vancouver courses. Two hundred skiers roamed over a golf course at Nelson, B.C. Fifty fishermen sought out the elusive Rainbow trout in Kootenay Lake. Hundreds of lower mainland residents sat on lawns.

To add to the contrast, an R. C. A. F. Dakota dropped two tons of food and livestock fodder to two tiny hamlets isolated by winter in the Kootenays. And, in the Fraser canyon area, small snow-rock slides derailed the engine of an eastbound Canadian National freight train at Stout, B.C., and the truck of another locomotive north of Kamloops.

Both derailments were minor and no injuries were reported.

The Dakota took four and a half hours to complete the trip to the ice-locked communities of Halcyon and St. Leon Hotsprings on Upper Arrow Lake, 250 miles east of here. The communities were reported to have only 48 hours supplies left.

Hay Bails Heaved Out

In 17 runs the 10 crew men and two newspaper men aboard the black-an-yellow mercy plane heaved out 21 bales of hay and 10 crates of feed grains, staple foods and tobacco.

First word of the emergency reached Vancouver Saturday.

Supplies for the two hamlets normally are brought in by sled in the winter and by boat after the spring break-up. Ice on the lake, however, was too dangerous for surface travel but thick enough to prevent the supply boat from breaking through.

Piloted by Flt. Lt. Cecil Hoseason of Vancouver, the Dakota winged for 1 1-2 hours over snow-capped mountains before name, St. Leon, was spotted—spelled out on the lake with snowshoe tracks. Two runs were made and two crates of food ballooned to earth under orange parachutes.

Five minutes north by air the aircraft zoomed 15 times over Halcyon Hotsprings and dropped two-weeks supplies of food for the inhabitants.

NEWSPAPER DEAN CELEBRATES ANNIVERSAY

Looking happy and relaxed with a cigar in his hand is Harmon E. Rice, above, who will celebrate 50 years as editor and publisher of the Huntsville Forester on Tuesday, March 1. On that day Huntsville, Ont., will give him a "surprise" dinner and presentation to mark his half-century of service. Mr. Rice is an ex-president of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Publishers' association, an ex-president of the Ontario and Quebec Newspaper Association and has been director of the Canadian Association for several years.—Central Press Canadian.

VICIOUS SLAYER

Slayer Answers With Fire

The answer was a blast of pistol fire from the cabin's attic. Detective Ed Langevin fell wounded.

Police poured bullets through the thin cabin walls.

They knew their man was hit when blood streaked the white exterior of the cabin.

"Don't shoot any more. I'm hit in the head," Gilbert shouted above the gunfire.

As police held their fire, Gilbert came to the door. And, blood stearming down his naked body, stood swaying in the glare of police lights.

Police cut him down in the doorway. His pistol was empty.

Charged With Murder

Gilbert's companion, Schmid, is charged with murder. Miss Florence Chisholm the woman they kidnapped is held as a material witness.

Schmid, in a statement to District Attorney Jerome D. Kavanaugh of San Bernardino, Calif., said he and Gilbert abducted Miss Chisholm from the riding stable she managed here last Tuesday.

They took her with them to Needles, where they joined acquaintances of Gilbert. Later, at a nearby ranch Ernest Winsted, 21, Needles city employee; his wife, Frances, 22, and Willis Uugh, 70, were shot to death.

"Gilbert did all the shooting; I didn't fire a shot" Schmid said.

Miss Chisholm had said Gilbert fired all but one of the shots. Schmid fired the other at Winsted she said.

SIX YOUNG FOLK

The town's 30-man fire brigade answered the alarm but thick, black smoke, billowed out when a window was smashed and entry had been impossible.

Overcome by Smoke

All six young persons apparently were overcome by smoke or fumes of some description from the fire, whose origin still has not been determined. Investigators said from the positions of the bodies it was apparent that none of the six had struggled. Too, one body had not been badly burned.

The Morden fire brigade fought the flames for about 70 minutes. In its early stages, the fire threatened to spread to the nearby Mennonite Brethern Church. The fire brigade was able to play only one stream of water on the fire because of the distance to the nearest fire well.

Three other Neufeld sisters, Katie, Mae and Wilhelmine, live in Winnnipeg. Another sister, Mary, is living in Kitchener, while Jacob, a brother, lives at Barrhead, Alta.

$940,000,000

It also got a going over by the National Advisory Council on international monetary and financial problems.

The budget bureau gave it a further painstaking review, Hoffman said.

In general terms, Hoffman testified, if a $200,000,000 cut were made, Britain would have that much less to spend for goods and services in the United States, Canada and other markets where goods can only be bought for dollars.

Cut Would Mean Decline

Hoffman estimated a cut of $200,000,000 in aid would cause a $70,000,000 decline in British export earnings and thus would require a total cut in British imports of $270,000,000.

He said it was estiated that Britain thus would have to spend $90,000,000 decline in British export earnings and thus would require a total cut in British imports of $270,000,000.

He said it was estimated Bri- Britain thus would have to spend $90,000,000 less on food, including tobacco; $110,000,000 less on raw materials; $40,000,000 less on manufactured goods and $30,000,000 less on shipping and other services.

The reason the British program got such a close going over was this:

Christopher Mayhew, Britain's Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the United Nations his country had just about "recovered" economically.

Ever since, top officials on both sides of the ocean have been pumping out statements. And they are all to the effect that while Britain has made something of a comeback, she still needed E. R. P. and United States help.

Mayhew himself spoke up again at Lake Success, N.Y., he said Britain has made such progress only because of the Marshall plan and that American aid continues to be vital to further stability and advancement.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, said Saturday there is no doubt whatever that Britain still needs United States dollars.

British recovery is completed, he said, only in the sense that production has climbed substantially over pre-war levels.

Steel

In an article in Industrial Canada by D. S. Wood secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association special committee on steel, is drawn a picture of the intense demand for steel in the Dominion and abroad. This was not a problem before the war but the picture changed rapidly under war conditions as Canada became known as the "arsenal of the Empire" and the force behind this change and growth was "the same that brought Britain to the fore at the time of the industrial revolution: the same that lifted the United States to her present status as the most powerful nation of the world. It was steel."

Today even wartime records are broken so great is the demand for steel. "Industry still hungers for steel," he remarks.

In the problem of steel three principal factors are involved, materials, time and cost, all of which must be coordinated and studied in their true perspectives before we can find the key to an economically sound program that will be of permanent advantage to the nation," says Mr. Wood. "Cost is an item that brings us sharply down to reality . . . It is a risk that must be calculated and considered in terms of the prospect of its rate of growth of industry and population in Canada.

He however offers the suggestion that more steel could be made in Canada with present day equipment through the use of new technique and modification of existing furnaces. He comments, " From the standpoint of the time and cost factors we can get more steel through modification of present equipment much more quickly than through the construction and installation of new equipment, although by no means in sufficient volume to take care of our needs.

Coal he does not see as a major problem as sufficient can be found to meet any projected expansion program in steel. But scrap iron and steel are in short supply the world over and specialists in the United States estimate that steel producers will face a deficiency in this material for at least ten years.

Any large scale expansion in Canada, he says, will hinge largely on the question of pig ore supplies. This means fundamentally iron ore. He points to the rich iron ore deposits of Quebec-Labrador, Ontario and British Columbia with their production in millions of tons as offering a bright future for Canada in her growth among the nations of the world.

That Cow Grady

The cow which bolted through an open door of a silo at Yukon, Oklahoma, to find herself imprisoned for three days attracted attention across the continent of America and beyond. A world of readers and radio-listeners waited in suspense for news of her release which finally came when man's engineering ingenuity managed to get the animal out from her cell.

The owner of that cow has learned something. Grady is more famous than himself and he has been wondering why people in 45 states and in Canada were so interested as to send him suggestions how to get Grady out.

An animal story has an irresistible appeal to human beings, young and old. Ages ago, it was the same, in the Far East and in ancient Greece and doubtless in the unrecorded civilizations which have passed. Fabulists carried forward from others before them stories of animals and birds that were heroes and heroines in their time. Aesop of Greece and even moderns have told tales of the animal and bird creation, and even of trees, giving them the gift of language.

Now the story of Bill Mach's cow Grady is not a fable but it is as interesting as any fable ever was. The people of forty or sixty centuries ago must have been just as keenly interested in stories of animals, existing or imagined, as the sophisticated modern age folk who are as sharp as their far-off ancestors in India, in Egypt, in Greece, and in the Middle Aages, and as those who read animal stories in this day and generation.

One of the best known books in the world was the story of a horse. Of the dog countless tales have been told. And even Puss walked in boots, she was just the same kind of cat as likes comfort today.

Grady may not become the heroine of a fable but she kept the telegraph wires humming with news of the progress of the steps to liberate the cow that jumped through the open door of a silo. Now the modern age may forget her unless some one takes steps to tell her story with all the art of the fabulist that she may join the great company of animals which include the cow that jumped over the moon. Here is the basis of a story that can be enjoyed with the happy tales of Aesop, LaFontaine, Lessing, the Brothers Grimm and Hans Christian Andersen.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

With a start of surprise, I saw on the street a young man whom I thought had died twenty years ago.

Of course, I realized the instant I was about to hail him heartily, that if he had not died twenty years ago, he would no longer be a young man. However, I managed to get near enough to have a good look at him. And while the resemblance was startling, it did not hold up to close scrutiny.

This brings up the interesting speculation: why, with the exception of identical twins, do so few of us resemble one another? With so many millions of people in the world, all of us restricted, after all, to so few features and so few grounds for difference, why do we not see people every day who are the living image of each other?

Is there, perhaps, somewhere in the world, maybe in Germany or Brazil or New Zealand, a person who is our identical twin?

In fiction, in spy stories especially, you frequently read of men who were the splitting image of each other. But in real life, I do not recall ever having read of a case of two strangers being identical.

Among animals, it is common to encounter identical twins in appearance that are no relation. Horsemen know this is true. and it is true of cattle. I can't imagine a shepherd being able to distinguish perfectly among his sheep. One time in England, I met a beagle that was identical, even to a slight color flaw in one eye, with a beagle I had owned some years before in Canada. I had a snapshot in my wallet that confirmed my memory of every color patch of his badger-pie coat. And when I hallooed him as Wrangler, he came to me stern down and head twisted aside exactly as my Wrangler used to. It was quite a moment.

But it was nothing to the moment we might expect if some day we met ourselves face to face with a stranger in possession.

WE CAN TRIUMPH OVER LIFE

"I never pay any attention to my affliction," remarked a man recently who for more than thirty years has been unable to do any work. In addition to delicate health, he is stone deaf and so cannot listen to the radio or communicate with his friends except by writing.

Yet he is one of the happiest of men. No one ever enters his house without being cheered, and he has employed the endless hours throughout a generation not by ter how small it may be, to keep himself contented and to spread cheer to others. He was a $90-a-week salesman when his affliction came upon him, just as he was entering middle life. Thirty years of invalidism have failed to wear him down. No one can laugh more heartily than he. He takes particular delight in ridiculing people who go about with long faces in the midst of a world which should make everyone happy.

His life is reminiscent of these words: "So let your light shine before men that they may see

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

June Output May Force Butter And Margarine to Drop in Price

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP) — Margarine and butter are expected to meet head-on in June and the collision may force one or both of the products to drop in price.

A government dairy expert said that June is the month in which new butter production starts and butter stocks mount into a surplus. June, he believed, also would be the time that Canada's infant margarine industry would be ready to hit a substantial production stride.

Producers now are turning out the substitute at the rate of eight million pounds a month — and this is not enough to meet demand.

At the current scale, he said, Canada could produce almost 100,000,000 pounds of margarine a year — a little less than one-third of Canada's annual butter production.

The real battle will be whether margarine will tend to pull the price of butter down. All signs point to a slight margarine edge.

A weapon in favor of margarine is the influx of cheap United States oils and fats, decontrolled by Washington more than a week ago. As a consequence of that action, some margarine producers have already lowered the price of their product by five cents a pound.

However the battle favors margarine, the lower-priced commodity won't force butter below 58 cents a pound. That is the floor price established by the government by order-in-council last May. The floor price is 58c in central areas; 59 cents in the Maritimes and 57½ in Vancouver.

So far the government has found no reason to use it. In effect, instead, is the ceiling price which ranges from 67 to 73 cents in various sections.

Freight Rates

The Royal Commission on Transport will start its investigation with a cross-country tour. It is not known whether it will first head east or west. Informants say there is little likelihood of public sessions starting before May.

Apart from the arrangements that have to be made by the commission, there are those of the involved provinces and their lawyers. Off and on, the legal men have been working on other freight-rate cases. The current one will stretch into early April.

Mackenzie's Column:

Would Abolish Plural Marriages In New India

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

The new India continues to pursue her destiny with seven-league strides.

The latest of many striking indications of her determination to modernize her way of life is the introduction in the national legislature of a bill which would revolutionize the status of Indian women. This measure would make sweeping changes in ancient customs of the Hindu religion. For instance, plural marriage would be abolished, and women would be allowed the privilege of obtaining divorces.

It is interesting to find Law Minister B. R. Ambedkar sponsoring this measure. Dr. Ambedkar was born into that outcast class known as the untouchables, and has spent his life championing their cause.

Hindu Opposition

As was to be expected, the bill has run into a storm of opposition which comes from Orthodox Hindus mainly on religious grounds.

Whether the measure is adopted, the fair sex of India is coming into its own, as is clearly indicated by the fact there are women members of the Indian legislature and of the Pakistan legislature. Prime Minister Nehru's sister, Mrs. Vijava Lakshmi Pandit, is Ambassador to Russia and also is India's chief representative at the United Nations.

Man's World

That's a great change from what I found on my first visit to India more than 30 years ago. The spirit of progress was in the air, but it was clearly a man's world. Except for the lowest class, women as a whole were secluded from the company of men not members of their own family and were closely veiled in public.

I encountered a particularly interesting example of such seclusion when I was the guest of the late Maharajah of Bikarnir, one of the greatest of the ruling Princes.

The Prince was deeply in love with his Princess and among the things he had done for her happiness was build a beautiful garden close to the palace.

That garden was surrounded by a high wall, so that none could see into the grounds. and when the Maharaki went with her ladies-in-waiting from the palace to the garden, some 25 yards away, they proceeded by a carefully curtained automobile. They reached the car through a canopy which was put up between the palace door and the automobile. Still, that was custom, and nobody seemed to question it.'

Rescue 15 Miners Trapped 7 Hours

Boston, Wis., Feb. 28 (AP) — Fifteen lead miners were rescued unharmed Sunday after they had been trapped more than seven hours by a fire at the top of their escape shaft.

The last man, John Banfield, boss of the night shift was brought up in an improvised hoisting bucket which was used to rescue the men from 167 feet down from the entrance of the Kittoe mining works two miles from here. They were trapped in a 40-foot high working chamber when the fire started in the engine room and blocked the entrance.

ONLY FOUR FATALITIES

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—Eastern Canada had a weekend fatality toll of four, the lowest in months.

The violent deaths listed were those of: Michael Dennis Skelton, 72, slain in his Brockville, Ont., shack; William Palmer, fatally injured in an automobile - train crash in St. Thomas, Ont.; Joseph Danis, 53, victim of an industrial accident at Gatineau Mills, Que., and Miss E. L. Ryan, 75, who died of a heart attack after struggling to free herself from ankle-deep mud in Toronto.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IMPORTANCE

We are only important as we do. We should first be important to ourselves. That accomplished, we are in line to be important to others, and to the world at large. But this importance must be inspired by the doing of something that is important. Our own importance can well be left to the judgment of others. It's what we make important that stands out.

In the workings of our daily lives the most important things should be done first. Importance is selective. We don't always know just what is most important, but by doing we learn. The most important thing in life, however, is the building of a character. Character is what inspires every important achievement.

On a memorial plaque, presented by the Cherokee Nation, to the memory of Will Rogers, and which anyone may see at his memorial at Claremore, Oklahoma, are engraved these words of the great humorist: "Live your life, so that whenever you lose you are ahead." Will Rogers lived an important life because he was forever spreading good will. Yes, good Will Rogers! He loved people over this globe.

Do something worthy and you will be important. It always works. It isn't even important to be wealthy or famous. But you can be useful, and do useful things if you have wealth and make it serve people's happiness; and if you do important things, as Will Rogers did, you can't help but be famous, and justly so.

The mere great wealth of a Rockefeller or a Ford, in itself is not important,. but what this wealth has achieved in blessing mankind through vast employment and in furthering educational and scientific research, is highly important. So much so that its importance cannot be estimated.

The fame of Abraham Lincoln grows with each celebration of his birthday, because of the love of justice, freedom, and human worth, that his life exemplified. The glow of his humane character grows with the accumulation of the years. "Billy" Herndon, who was Lincoln's law partner, has grown with the years in importance, and David Donald has emphasized this fact in his unusually interesting book, entitled "Lincoln's Herndon" — because Hern-

WHY DOES THE CONFIRMED DRINKER DRINK?

I was pretty young when I took the pledge — at mother's knee. Mother was inspired to pledge all her children to total abstinence, not by her spiritual adviser, not by her family physician, not by relations, friends or neighbors, but by the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The pledge was the best protection a kid could have had in my time, and I believe it would be the best protection you can give your growing youngsters now. After I became twenty-one I decided for myself that I had nothing to gain by indulging in a narcotic and heaven only knew how much I might lose by doing so. A narcotic, I said. That's what any and every alcoholic beverage or liquor is, no matter how little or how much you may take. If wine were a "tonic" or whisky or brand were a "stimulant", alcoholic indulgence would be comparatively harmless.

If you think I am off my base about this, try to find a scientific, medical or health authority who believes alcohol is a tonic, a stimulant or anything else than a narcotic. Let me know if you find one, for I'd like to quote his or her belief or opinion here.

Why does a boy or girl take his or her first drink, The reasons are these, I believe: 1. Nobody has loved the child enough to persuade him or her to take the pledge not to indulge in alcohol or tobacco before twenty-one. 2. The youngster hasn't enough brains, character, sense, self-confidence or personality to decline an invitation or a dare to drink when "everybody" is drinking. 3. In some instances the girl or boy takes the first drink in a bravado or because he or she thinks it is smart.

The incident of the first drink is important, as it seems to me, because once the youngster has found that he or she can take a drink and "hold it," drinking will come easier afterward.

The best explanation of why the confirmed drinker drinks was offered by a young man whose drinking was ruining his life. In a tolerably sober state he thought about it for a while and said, sincerely enough, that he drank to excess at times because he felt the need of a stimulant or rather he just wanted to feel better.

What the young man meant but could not bring himself to say was that he felt the need of a narcotic—alcohol is a narcotic from first to last, never a stimulant.

Then the young man said he just wanted to feel better. What he meant was that he wanted to feel less—to be less aware of his own inferiority, inadequacy or other shortcomings, actual or imagined. Under the influence of alcohol, the narcotic, he was able to feel unaware or indifferent for an hour. That effect is commonly mistaken for "stimulation."

I may be naive about it, but I say God bless the W.C.T.U. for abstinence pledge all four of mother's children took and kept.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Excessive Sweating

I am troubled with excess underarm perspi. (L. H.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on Excessive Sweating.

Not So Stiff

We enjoy your column very much. I have greatly benefited from rolling somersaults. First time I tried I thought was my last—but in a few days I had another go at it and now I do them every morning as regularly as you do and I keep in fine fettle. (K. N. E.)

Answer—it is not advisable for the novice to dive backward intc deep water with one hand tied behind his back the first time he goes swimming. Old stiffs who try somersaulting had better get particulars about the technic first. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for Invitation to the Somersaultauqua.

Poor Fellow.

Wife and two children went on vacation last summer and I stayed home at work. While they were gone I painted three rooms. While painting my mind seemed to dwell on fatal accidents and the consequences .. I got so worried I couldn't sleep or eat and even after they returned I couldn't pull myself together. (D. J. P.)

Answer — Probably you are unduly worried about your worrying. While you were alone you probably missed the many amenities of eating that your wife provides along with meals, and these things condition both appetite and digestion. So your nutritional state, only on the borderline to begin with, became subnormal. Hence all sorts of anxieties. Supplement your regular diet with a good daily ration of the minerals and vitamins as described in pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks — for copy send stamped self addressed envelope.

WANTS TO BROADEN OUT

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Controller David Balfour said Sunday night he would urge compulsory annexation of three municipalities and parts of two others bordering on Toronto in order to make room for the city's growth.

He said he favors friendly amalgamation but added that if that does not work he will urge city council to petition the provincial government for legislation compelling annexation.

He said the municipalities which should be annexed are York Township on the north, Mimico and New Toronto on the west, together with parts of Scarboro, and North York Township in the east and noreast.

DECISION REVERSED

Winnipeg — (CP) — Reversing an earlier stand, Winnipeg School Board has decided to allow youngsters who wear glasses to participate in sports. The board's policy committee was advised the ban was having a bad psychological effect.

WEDDINGS

LLOYD—MACDONALD

St. Michael's Church of the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding, at nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, Feb. 22, when the Rev. Father Carley united in marriage Sarah (Sally), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter MacDonald, Point Anne, to Charles Ernest Lloyd, of Point Anne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrum Lloyd.

The wedding music was played by the Rev. Sister Mary Bibianna.

The bride, who wore a mulberry colored suit of gabardine, with grey accessories and corsage of yellow roses, was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Ella Gevenich, R.R. 4, Belleville, was the bride's attendant and was gowned in a grey suit with mulberry-colored accessories, and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Fred Deveau, R.R. No 4, Belleville, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers, and bouquets of daffodils.

The bride's mother, who wore a mauve dress and corsage of sweetpeas, was assisted in receiving the guests by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy blue polka-dot, with corsage of red roses.

For travelling, the bride wore her mulberry suit, grey coat, and grey accessories, on the honeymoon trip to Ottawa, and points east.

Upon their return they will reside at Point Anne.

Members Honor Mrs. McGlashon DDGM of OES

On Friday evening the officers and members of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained visitors from the district at a reception in honor of their member, Mrs. A. McGlashon, the District Deputy Grand Matron. Mrs. Edith Stewart P.G.M., Ottawa, Mrs. Anderson, D.D.G.M., Bowmanville, and the District Deputy Grand Matrons from Kingston and Ottawa, were among the distinguished visitors present. Others were present from Havelock, Trenton, Colborne, Cobourg, Quinte, Lakeside, Napanee, Minerva, Tweed, Madoc and Bancroft chapters.

Mrs. M. Davidson delighted those assembled with her beautiful vocal solos and Mrs. McGlashon was presented with a gift from her Chapter, by Mrs. G. Baker, to which she made a fitting reply.

30th. Birthday of Chapter

As it was also the occasion of the 30th birthday of the Chapter the charter members were honored and a beautifully decorated birthday cake completed the tastefully arranged tea table with its lace cloth, candles and Spring flowers.

After dainty refreshments, served by the officers and other helpers, dancing brought the delightful evening to a close.

Mrs. F. Morden, Mrs. A. D. McLean and Mrs. J. McEwan were the capable committee in charge of arrangements.

Notes from St. Petersburg, Florida

By NELLIE ARTHUR

The tourist business in St. Petersburg is flourishing this season as never before. According to hotel proprietors former East Coast visitors in St. Petersburg for the first time are delighted. They like the other visitors they meet here and they like the courtesy of those who serve their needs. It is estimated that there are 40,000 tourists here this season. Accommodations are crowded everywhere this month. Tourists are arriving and leaving daily. Hundreds of people who arrive each day are able to find accommodations as others leave.

The height of the season began the last week in January, has continued into February and will likely not end before the middle of March. The large hotels, the Vinoy, the Princess Martha, the Huntington and the Suwanee are now filled to capacity. The great number of cars makes traffic heavy not only on the main streets, but around the waterfront and at the pier. Nearly every available parking place is taken by nine o'clock in the morning on week days and by 9.30 on Sundays as nearly every church now has two services each Sunday morning. The first services begin at 9.30 and as the first congregation moves out at 10.30, the second almost pushes its way in and occupies every seat. There is now also an open air congregation of late comers outside listening to the loud speaker.

Those from Belleville and vicinity who registered at the Chamber of Commerce in February are as follows: Mr. Wm. Gartley, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hyatt and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kleinstuber, Picton; Mrs. Ed. Kellaway, Belleville; Mrs. Edith and Brian Kelley, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Runnels, Picton; Miss Merle Ostrander, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. F. Hobson, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Farrar, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. J. E Holmes, Trenton.

Diary of Nettie Wardner concluded:

Wednesday—

We have just started out from our cottage at Darien, Georgia. I can't see very well to write. There are now brilliant red flowers along side of the road, low palm trees all over the ground and millions of tall Georgia pines, everywhere. We just saw a Blimp moving along high in the air over a place designated U.S. Naval Navigation.

We drove into Brunswick about 8.30 alongside of a great marsh extending away toward the ocean which is not visible here. We stopped for breakfast at the Towne Restaurant, a beautiful large place and had an excellent 75 cent meal consisting of oatmeal, bacon, eggs, grits, toast, coffee, marmalade. Here we had grits for the first time. It is fine white corn meal served with butter or gravy upon it. It is a Southern food eaten with bacon and eggs. They said as we left, "Good-bye, we will see you on your way home". I have just seen my first poinsettias alongside of a house going out of Brunswick. We passed a fruit stand with bags of oranges hanging out. The small palm trees look like pineapples.

Now at 10.25 we are crossing a piece of the Atlantic at Sea Island, off the coast at Brunswick. Now we are driving through a section like a park, now again it is a marsh and we are on a level with it. We've gone over two long old wooden bridges declared unsafe. We pass a sign called Woodbine City Limit but the place is very small and has a large saw mill and piles of lumber. Then we come to Kingsland. It is cloudy but is warming up. It was chilly last night and this morning. We come to a large sign "Welcome to Florida" and a lovely bridge over the St. Mary's River, the boundary between Georgia and Florida. We pass a group of convicts working on the road, a man with a gun at one side of the road watching them. Ahead of us is another group, all young men with shovels. There are three guards, one at each end of the group and one in the centre.

Avoid Jacksonville

At 11.30 we turn off No. 17 at Yulee and follow Florida highway No. 200 which goes southwest toward Tampa and so we escape Jacksonville, that large busy city. We just had a sandwich and a sort of cake bun with whipped cream between and thin icing on the top. We pass through a wooded country to Callahan City, where we cross No. 1 highway which goes on to Jacksonville, and, as the famous Dixie highway, down the east coast to Miami. Going on from Callahan City, farther and farther southwest, we pass pine trees tapped for turpentine. We see twelve or more large buzzards having a feast on a dead animal. The earth is white sand where you can see it. There are not many buildings for a long way and the pine forest is denser and closer to the road on each side. Coming out of this newer country we come to the old town of Baldwin which is really only a village. Here we have a very poor lunch in a small restaurant.

After leaving Baldwin we continue on to the thriving city of Starke which the driver says has grown wonderfully in the last few years. We see sugar cane growing as we proceed. We see lovely poinsettias here and there and they are more beautiful than any I ever painted. We see two dozen Negroes working on the railroad which borders the highway. Just as the sun is sinking toward the west a Negro stops us just beyond Hawthorne and says, "Lady you want to go south, you turn and take road No. 20 to the right, road ahead all torn up". So we have to go a roundabout way, our first and only detour, to the pretty little town of Citra, so called because it has such wonderful citrus groves in its vicinity. We have to speed on toward Ocala in the gathering darkness. We reach there after dark but are fortunate to secure one of the Teuton cottages on the outskirts.

Ocala Attractive

Thursday—

At 7 a.m. we are up and almost ready to start. We had a good rest in a nice cottage. I was interested in a beautiful flowering bush outside my window and picked this morning one or two of the bright red blooms called Turk's Caps, to send back home. Ocala is quite a city. In the centre is a small park with palms all around the edge. Out in the country again, we pass a large airport. Then we come to fine farming land. Rosemere farm is level and in perfect shape. We pass a large grove of low tung oil trees from which paint and varnish are made. La Cresenta is a big home with lots of small buildings. Circle Square Ranch is very level with huge fields in which are herds of cows. Among them we see two large white cattle imported from Mexico but originally from India.

As we go on we see more of the Spanish moss which kills the trees. A large beautiful oak tree is nearly all dead from it. A flock of red-winged blackbirds feeding upon some spilled grain in the road, reluctantly flies out of our way. Three brown and four black pigs are out for their morning meal but it looks like dry eating for the country is now a sandy desolation except for the pine trees and scattered coarse grass. The Lewis Plantation is a break in the scene. They distill the turpentine here and around the main buildings are small Negro cabins. As we near Tampa we pass large citrus groves. The orange trees branch out when only about a foot out of the ground. We pass many service stations all of which serve meals. I just saw a bush of hibiscus, bright red bell-shaped flowers.

At Tampa, at Morrison's Cafeteria, we had a good dinner and were off again at 2 p.m. We had Tampa Bay on one side and large palm trees on the other and also lovely large homes mostly white, some brick. We passed hotel ten storeys high. Every home seems prettier than the last. We now have Tampa Bay on both sides of us for we are going over Gandy Bridge six miles long. In the last war the U.S. government bought the bridge from the Gandy estate and took off the toll which was 55 cents for the car and driver and 10 cents for passengers. Beyond the bridge we see large buildings ahead; St. Pete at last.

QUEEN COMFORTS WAR ORPHAN

While touring the guerrilla-raided towns of northern Greece, Queen Frederica of Greece comes upon a lad who, left motherless by a stray bullet, rushes to her arms because she reminded him of his slain mother. Mrs. G. Smith Guest Speaker At Bridge St. WA

The February meeting of the Woman's Association of Bridge St., United Church took place in the ladies' parlor on Friday afternoon with the President, Mrs. R. Morden, presiding.

The Secretary, Mrs. H. Fox, read the minutes of the last meeting and then the Treasurer, Mrs. Gilbert, gave the financial report. Following the business portion of the meeting, the rest of the meeting was turned over to Miss Helen Sulman and her group.

Miss Sulman, assisted by Mrs. F. Adams, led the devotional part of the meeting, with Mrs. Guthridge at the piano.

Mrs. D. Houston, accompanied at the piano, by Mrs. F. Houston, played a most enjoyable banjo solo. Following this number Miss Sulman told the story of St. Valentine and gave a musical monologue, accompanied at the piano by Miss L. Brown.

Mrs. Georgia Smith, who was a delegate last Summer to the Soroptimist Convention held at Harrowgate, England, told the ladies of her many and varied experiences in England, and on the continent. Mrs. Smith had a great many pictures that she had taken while touring, and these were passed around, and added greatly to her most interesting and informative address.

The Crossing

Mrs. Smith went over on the Queen Elizabeth and made the return voyage on the Queen Mary, and although she had nothing but praise and admiration for these luxury liners, she thought that one would get a lot more fun and enjoyment out of a crossing made on a smaller ship, where there are less class distinctions made.

There were about fifteen-hundred delegates at the convention and it was a very impressive sight to see the representatives of each country bear their flag proudly to the stage where it was formally received and placed on the stage for the remainder of the convention.

The mornings were devoted to the convention sessions but the afternoons were devoted to sightseeing. Mother Shipton's cave was one of the places visited and also many beautiful churches for which England is justly famous.

Following the convention, Mrs Smith went to Edinburgh, Bath, and of course London. While there she was privileged to see the Royal Family en route to the opening of Parliament, and visited Madame Tussard's Wax Works, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Tower of London, and as most tourists do, feed the pigeons in Trafalgar Square.

Then on to Amsterdam, Belgium, Switzerland, Interlaken and Paris. Mrs. Smith had many interesting and amusing things to tell of her visit to the above places and everyone present enjoyed her talk very much. In closing, she expressed the wish that each and everyone could at some time in the future have the opportunity to visit the places that she had, and enjoy them as she knew they would.

The hearty thanks of all present was voiced by Mrs. Ormond. Tea was served by Miss Sulman and her group.

Women's Institute

MELROSE W.I.

The regular meeting of the Melrose W.I. ladies met at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren, with an unusually large attendance.

The president opened the meeting. Minutes were read and adopted. Business and thank-you letters were read, also a reminder that our short course "Planning Oven Meals" is to be held April 21st and 22nd. It was decided to give $15.00 to the United Emergency Fund for Britain.

In the absence of the Home Economic leader, Mrs. Leslie McLaren toook charge of her program. Mrs. Clarence Hagerman gave a reading on "Transformation". The topic in regard to Home Economics, was read by Mrs. Jack McLaren.

Mrs. C. Hagerman read a tribute to the Canadian composer Alexander Muir, who composed the song in 1867. Mrs. Eugene Badgley gave a reading "It is Better to Receive."

A demonstration on sewing hints was presented by Mrs. Thos. Leslie.

The roll call was answered with a riddle. The lunch committee served refreshments at the close of meeting.

PINE GROVE W.I.

Pine Grove. — The February meeting of the Pine Grove Women's Institute was held at Mrs. F. Campbell's home with 23 ladies and four children in attendance. After the singing of rounds, and "The Maple Leaf Forever" led by Mrs. R. Vanderwater, the members responded in a most entertaining fashion to the roll call, "Where I Met My Husband".

Plans were made for the social evening to be held in the Marsh Hill School on March 28, with Mr. W. Edwards, Zone Forester, of Napanee, as guest speaker.

Mrs. H. Coulter reported the sending of a box containing 53 bars of soap to the South Molton Women's Institute in England.

Mrs. A. Tanner presented the current events noting many items of local interest. Mrs. S. P. Hagerman, Belleville, rendered two delightful solos.

Mrs. J. Cordes, guest speaker, also of Belleville, was introduced by the hostess, Mrs. F. Campbell.

Trans-Atlantic Trip

Mrs. Cordes took everyone on a trip to England with her. She described her trip to Montreal, through the Canadian countryside, resplendent in Autumn colors. At Montreal, along with 40 other passengers ranging in age from two and one-half to eighty years, she boarded a North Star plane. Each passenger was allowed 66 pounds of luggage and $25.00 in cash.

The plane travelled at a speed of 250 miles per hour.

Comfort of Passengers

Mrs. Cordes stressed particularly the concern of the stewardess for everyone's comfort. The first stop was at Goose Bay, Larador, second, Prestwick, Scotland.

Of her Trans-Atlantic trip, Mrs. Cordes said: "One could scarcely believe, if it were not for the hum of the motors, that you were not reclining in an easy chair in your own home."

From Scotland, Mrs. Cordes journeyed to Middlesborough, England, a town of about 500,000 population on the northeast coast where she had lived as a girl.

The English countryside was very beautiful, but in comparison with Canada, on a very much smaller scale. She was struck by the shabbiness of many of the buildings. English people had been unable to obtain new floor coverings, wallpaper, etc., for redecorating for many years.

items. For example, they get one egg a month, if obtainable; one bar of soap and one small box of powdered soap a month; three gallons of gas a montn; 25 cents worth of meat a week and 50 cwt of coal for a whole year.

Items mentioned for Canadians to send to England when packing food parcels were rice, egg powder; canned meat, tea-bisk, cake mix, jiffy pie crust, shortening, jelly powders, pudding powders, jam, corn starch, tea, and butter.

Mrs. Cordes spent approximately a month travelling about visiting points of interest, and all too soon it was time to return to Canada.

Work of Women's Institute

Mrs. C. Holmes, past president of F.W.I.O., brought a message regarding W.I. work. She mentioned three books, which are given to all who wish to become Canadian citizens and recommended them as material for W.I. citizenship meetings. They may be obtained free of charge from the Secretary of State, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, and are entitled as follows: "Our Land", "Our Government", and "Our History". Mrs. F. Campbell moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Cordes, Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Holmes. The hostess and refreshment committee served delicious refreshments.

Study of Bird Songs Reveals Many Charming Facts Previously Unknown

(Written for The Canadian Press by PERCY GRANT)

A thin, high-pitched, and oft-repeated "teesee' is the way the song of the black and white warbler is usually described.

But the song of this tiny bird which breeds all the way from Newfoundland to the foothills of the Rockies throughout the northern, wooded regions of the Dominion, had a special interest for researchers at Cornell University when they made an intensive study of bird songs recently.

When this song was "photographed" on strips of film and the sound track or image thus made was reproduced as music on phonograph records, it was found to consist of no fewer than 7,000 double vibrations, or cycles, per second. These cycles represent sound well above the highest note of the piano, and almost an octave higher than the violin's range. So high, indeed, that no commercial phonograph yet made could do justice to the velocity of the vibrations.

This research has brought many fascinating facts about bird music to light, especially when the photographed sound tracks are studied under the microscope.

Song sparrows, for example, who seem to sing "Pres-Pres-Presbyterian" in six or seven notes, actually sing their little tune with 35 notes. But most of the 35 are so incredibly short in duration, that the human ear fails to distinguish them as individual notes.

What the photographic sound tracks and highly-amplified song recordings teach, is this: Bird songs are infinitely more intricate, more fascinating, and often more exquisitely delicate and beautiful than the human ear with its limited scope for vibrations can possibly absorb and convey.

Moose Commits Suicide

A cow moose that left the woods and lake shallows of the Banff National Park for frequent visits to Banff itself, became so well-known to residents of the mountain town that they called her "Maud."

It was believed that Maud must have had some unhappy encounter with wolves or coyotes in the remoter reaches of the park, for, during the last four years and especially when caring for a calf, she had spent her nights in town, the school grounds being her favorite resting place. At dawn she would wander into the wilderness again.

But the familiar figure of Maud will be seen no more. She never conquered her fear of automobile traffic, and when a car was speeding, this fear grew into panic. Crossing the bridge into town one morning, Maud leaped over the parapet in terror when a fast car approached, and her broken body was found on the shore ice of the Bow River below.

Birds Visit Ship

On a recent voyage from New York to Rotterdam, Antoon de Vos, of the Port Arthur branch of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, saw a snow bunting (snow-bird, snow-flake, snow lark are its other popular names) alight on the vessel. At the time the vessal was approximately 325 miles south of St. John's, Nfld. On the following day a juvenile peregrine falcon, a better known as the duck hawk, perched on a mast all night and disappeared in the morning. Such visits by feather adventurers who are definitely land birds, are not uncommon at sea, and the usual explanation of their seagoing is simply that they are 'lost.'

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Make your husband a happy and proud host

What every wife should know . . that one sure way to make her husband happy and proud is for her to dramatize him as a good host. Husbands are wonderful people. They flourish so joyously under the kindly light of acknowledgment that they are good hosts that it seems a pity more wives don't take more thought to make the pleasant gestures that so delightfully suggest to Mr. Husband "You're the best host in the world. . .and I'm going to show you I think so!" And this should be the pleasant procedure not only when they are hostess and host in their own home, but also when they step out together to dine in a restaurant.

When the endearing Mrs. A. dines with her husband at a restaurant, she has the charming grace to co-operate completely with his hostship. Naturally she lets him give the orders to the waiter, lets him ask for whatever accessory she wishes.. in other words, lets him do the honors.

But here, in a letter today, is the point of view of Mrs. B, who obviously is the kind of wife who wants to "take over";

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Have the rules changed so that when dining in a restaurant it would now be proper for the lady to give her order directly to the waiter or waitress rather than to the man? I always feel very awkward in giving my husband the order only to have him relay it to the waiter or waitress hovering nearby. And therefore I am hoping a change has been made, which still lets one feel that she know the right thing to do.

Mrs. L. B.

No, Mrs. B, the rule hasn't changed. The rule is still that a gracious guests treats her host with kindly consideration of his host-ship.

When you and your husband are dining together in a restaurant, he is the host and he would be happy and grateful if you would do the gracious things that acknowledge this. So give your husband your order, and let him relay it to the waiter or waitress, as she should and would do, if you wouldn't interfere with this proper procedure. (Did you and your husband have a 'discussion' about this? . . . If so, he is the winner!)

Informal invitations to an informal wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to have an informal church wedding, is to wear a suit. Her wedding reception, for about eighteen guests, will be a dinner in a hotel. What kind of invitation would be appropriate for this type of wedding and reception?

M. A. S.

Informal invitations are appropriate for this informality. Best form is for you, the hostess of the occasion, to write notes of invitation. Or, if you wish, you may invite close relatives and very intimate friends by word-of-mouth or by telephone. But you should write notes to the groom's family, relatives and friends. Your daughter may invite her intimate friends verbally or by notes. And the few guests to be invited to the dinner may properly be invited verbally.

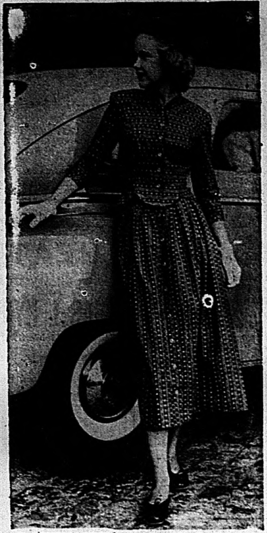
Cotton Two-Piecer



By PRUNELLA WOOD

ANY LITTLE, smart girl who years a size between Seven and Fifteen will see the budget-saving attractions of this cotton suit, one of those taffeta-like cottons, gay with a striped calico print.

She can wear it for fun or work, as a suit or with the scalloped blouse bottom tucked in to make a shirtmaker dress, and enjoy it every minute it is out of the tub. . . which should be quite a few, as the print is not the kind which reveals minor spots. This is a typical southern resort dress, between sunbaths, and it looks also like the young commuter's Springtime dream up north.

STIRLING

Parents' Night For Scout Troop Much Enjoyed

Stirling — About one hundred parents and boys were in attendance at the Boy Scout Parents' Night held in Stirling community hall on Tuesday evening.

Mr. K. A. Patterson acted as chairman for the program which opened with the National Anthem with John Anderson at the piano. Mr. George Crown led in a round of community singing with Miss Marilyn Eggleton at the piano after which Scout Leader Walter Savage welcomed the guests.

Addresses Given

Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's, addressed the parents urging their co-operation with the boys in promoting and carrying on Boy Scout work in the community. This address was followed by a period of musical chairs for both the boys and the adults with Allan Munro winning the prize for the former and Mrs. C. Seeney the latter.

Rev. R. W. Barker, of St. Paul's addressed the boys emphasizing their promises, particularly trustworthiness and assured them that if they lived up to their promises, they would grow up to be good citizens.

Several of the Scouts gave a number with Mr. Frank Harding, assistant Scout Leader, in charge.

Trace History of Scouts

The final address was given by Rev. A. J. Anderson of St. John's, who traced the history of the Boy Scout movement since 1907 and paid tribute to Lord Baden Powell as the founder of the Boy Scouts.

Mr. Frank Harding assumed the chair for the election of a group committee to sponsor the Boy Scouts in Stirling with Messrs S. McIntosh, R. A. Patterson and R. A. Hermiston being elected.

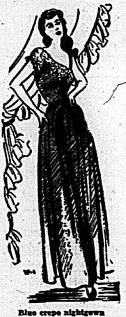
Films Showed

Mr. Clarence Seeney, local representative of the National Film Board, showed two appropriate films, with Barbara Ann Scott being featured in one, after which refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

SEAGULLS FREEZE

Alert Bay, B. C. — (CP) — Polluted water has caused a number of sea-gulls to freeze to death on beaches here. A chemical in the water near the cannery is believed to have "cut" oil in the birds' feathers, allowing cold to penetrate.

Slide Swing



Blue crepe nightgown

By VERA WINSTON

THE SWING to one side has made itself felt in coats, suits and dresses, and now in lingerie as well. At any rate, this dainty nightgown takes a one-sided slant. It is of powder blue crepe in a sheer weave, garnished with cream Alencon type lace. The lace is worked in points across the top forming one sleeve, the other side held by a shoulder strap. The bodice is fitted, the skirt gathered, and the gown is closed at one side with a zipper.

BUILDING COSTS UP

Regina — (CP) — A sharp rise in the average value of dwellings built in Regina was shown in a recent report. In 1947, the average house cost $4,613. Last year the average was $8,012. The report also said that since 1940, a total of 3,191 houses have been erected here.

ANTALGINE

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is this young woman kidding herself?

A number of people who have written to me lately have told me they were afraid to marry because of the marital unhappiness they had observed in their own families.

I am not quite sure whether the young woman who writes me the following letter is really afraid of marriage itself, as she says, or is merely trying to reconcile herself to the life of a single woman by dwelling on the marital unhappiness she has observed around her.

This is what she says:

"Is it wrong to want to remain single instead of entering a marriage which I know will always be doubtful?

"My childhood was anything but pleasant, as I seldom had enough to eat and never had decent clothes to wear until I quit school and started working. In my own family circle I saw more than enough to discourage any one from wanting to marry. My father didn't work and never supported us. My brother is like him, only now he has to pay for his parents' mistake by serving a prison term. Two of my older sisters have to support their husbands and children. My youngest sister is fairly secure in her marriage although she and her husband are very quarrelsome at times.

"This I believe is reason enough for wanting a quiet, peaceful life of single blessedness.

"My friends, however, believe I have a very bad attitude towards life, but I feel that if I remain single I will never be hurt by any man or hurt him. Also, there will not be any children who will have to suffer because of their parents. Then again, my mother with whom I live will soon be too old to work and someone has to take care of her. I feel that it is my duty since she put me through school, and took care of me when I was young."

My viewpoint on this matter, for which she asks elsewhere in the letter, is, first, that I think it possible that this young woman is trying to make herself believe that it is fear of marriage, plus her sense of duty towards her mother, and not a lack of suitors which keeps her single. It has been my experience that it is not at all uncommon for girls and women to be so sensitive about the fact that they have never received a proposal that they have never received a proposal that they do what the psychiatrists call "rationalize" the situation, or, to put it in everyday language, they think up a lot of good reasons whey they have chosen to remain single so that it will seem to have been their own choice.

So I think the first thing this girl should do is to make sure she's not kidding herself about her reasons for remaining single. For, actually, neither of the reasons she has given holds water.

Because her mother and her sisters were unfortunate enough to choose weak characters for husbands there is no earthly reason why she should follow their example. In fact, she would be far more likely, because of what she has seen of the results of these other mistakes, to be doubly careful to choose a worthwhile man for a husband. Moreover, if she were smart enough to pick a man who would make a kind and devoted husband, the chances are he would be willing to help her care for her mother when the time came when she could no longer care for herself.

So, to answer the question at the start of her letter, I do not think it is wrong to want to remain single, but I think it is foolish for anyone to pull the wool over his eyes in regard to reasons for doing so.

If this young woman discovers after looking at her own attitudes in the light of what I have just said, that she has in truth been deceiving herself, and that her basic reason for not having married is because no man has yet asked her to be his wife, then there is much she can do herself that may remedy the situation. I should like to hear from her again after she has thought all this over, when, if she wishes me to, I will point out some of the things she can do that might make her a more interesting and attractive person in the eyes of men her own age.

Giving Yourself a Shampoo

Proper brushing plays a big part in the success of your home shampoo. Brush beforehand to remove surface dirt; later, brush dry to make hair shine

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH hair as short as short can be, with fewer ringlets and practically no rolls, the feminine head is not the problem that it has been in the past when the uppity hairdo prevailed. More and more women are washing their own hair, not always to save money, but to save time. With duties screaming at one, it isn't fun to sit for nearly an hour under a hair dryer.

Cosmetic chemists are aware of this trend, have offered a variety of mediums for renovating the glorious crown; creams, oils, liquid soaps. If a woman is going in for home treatments, she should learn to do a good job. A shampoo acts like a scalp treatment, rousing the blood streams, giving exercise to the fibres beneath the skin.

Rousing Brushing

Start with a rousing brushing. The brush should be narrow with bristles set in groups if it is to be kept clean. The fastidious woman will have two. She will groom the hair strand by strand, holding the tress away from the head. Then she will give her head a three-minute friction.

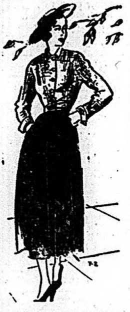
Sometimes it is best to dilute the liquids soaps. If a cream is used not more than a tablespoonful is necessary to fluff it up like egg white. Whatever is used must be thoroughly distributed. Rub it in well at the temples and along the nape line.

Three Applications

If the hair is excessively oily, there should be three applications, each one followed by a thorough rinsing with a bath spray and a strong current of warm water. There is no such thing as getting the hair too clean. If soap scum remains on the shafts, wave lines will disappear, the growth will cling to the scalp and lack lustre.

The vinegar rinse is a help. Fill the wash bowl with warm water, add three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, pour the rinse over the head with a cup. A spraying with clear water should follow.

New Tweeds



Short jacket with full skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

TWEED TAKES its place in the roster of important fabrics, as well it should in such a suit season. It is used, here, for the neat little jacket of a neat little suit, a short jacket that is snugly buttoned to the waist. The skirt is of brown wool with unpressed pleats all around. Under the jacket is a blouse of orange hued jersey, simply made, with a high round neck and short sleeves.

Fashion Flashes

AS SURE as Spring follows Winter, there's always a promotion on the fox-trimmed pastel coat, so nice for travel wear and for resort use. Mauve pink broadcloth is used for a handsome coat with big square collar and tuxedo revers of gray fox. Coat is lined in matching gray taffeta.

STILL AROUND and doing very nicely is the silk suit. Cocoa brown bengaline is the fabric selected for a nicely tailored suit with U-shaped bronze and copper beading at the yoke, shawl collar and pocket flaps. Seams released above the waist give the needed fullness. Skirt is slim.

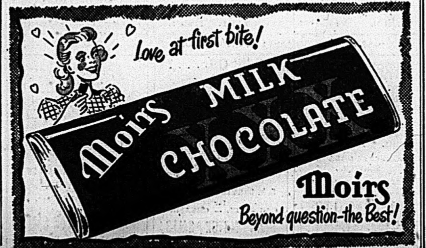
A BIG SEASON for the little fur is well on the way. Lightweight Chinese black caracul is used for a handsome 27-inch long, fitted jacket. Shallow rolled collar, narrow, set-in shoulders, defined waistline and front peplum detailed in flower petal sections are all interesting details.

ROMANTIC HATS with big brims are slowly working their pretty way into the late Spring and Summer fashion picture. Natural leghorn straw is the medium used for an enormous cartwheel with softly rippled brim. A spray of pink velvet la France roses is set around the crown and spreads onto the brim.

MOONLIT EVENINGS at such resorts as Palm Beach reveal the growing importance of warp-printed taffeta in beautiful floral designs. White silk taffeta, warp-printed with clusters of violets, is made up with a strapless bodice and a draped hemline that dips in front.

COFFEE TO CAPITAL

Lloyd's of London gets its name from an English coffee house kept by Edward Lloyd in Tower Street in the 17th century.



BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

What's to be done when tresses fall

A certain amount of shedding of the hair is normal and natural. A silky thread can survive for some time, as long as seven years or longer. Some give up the ghost in a year or two. If the papilla from which the shaft emerges is still doing business, a little understudy will appear. First it is soft fuzz, then it gradually becomes stronger, joins its comrades in forming the chic hair-do.

One reason why the daily brushing is important; it does a house-cleaning job, removing dead shafts. No brush can remove live, healthy ones. When the growth is moulting, it is particularly important to have a thorough grooming every day. The sooner a dead hair is out, that much sooner will the new one take its place.

It is believed, by specialists, that the health of the hair is dependent, to a certain degree, upon the general health. Malnutrition may have a deplorable effect upon it. Poor circulation in the scalp means that the blood streams are not bringing food and drink to the hair. Extreme nervousness, that affects nutrition, may cause the hair to fall, as will loss of sleep. The first rule for hair beauty is strict regard for the laws of health.

If your hair suddenly lacks lustre, won't stay put, and you find your comb and brush laden with hirsute ravelings, it would be well worth your while to have a course of scalp treatments at a beauty shop. Invigorating rays are used; the scalp is given a rousing friction. If the beauty budget will not permit this indulgence, start on a home campaign.

First of all, are your shampoos thorough? If there is the slightest grey deposit on comb or brush afterward, you can know that they aren't. Whether a soapy agent is used, or a cream or an oil, every bit should be rinsed away. If the hair is truly clean, every shaft will stand clear of its neighbor. If the growth clings to the scalp, if ringlets and undulations weaken in a few days, you can know that your hair isn't clean.

It would be worth your while to have a course of scalp treatments

When you wash your hair, have three soapings, as many rinsings; use a bath spray with a strong current of water. The wave set should not be heavy. A first class permanent requires no setting agent.

The night before the shampoo, give yourself a hot oil treatment. Brush the hair, strand by strand, holding each strand away from the head; use the brush with a rolling movement.

Along various partings apply hot mineral oil. You can use a small brush for this purpose, a pledget of cotton or a medicine dropper. After the oil is distributed, spread out fingers and thumbs and give your scalp a rousing mauling. The oil should remain on over night.

Uniform Conversion Rate For German Money Fixed

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 26 (ACP) — Anxieties of British manufacturers who fear cheap German goods soon will undermine their markets have been soothed by Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade.

Wilson said a uniform conversion rate of 30 cents (United States) to one Deutschemark was fixed last summer. Since then contracts entered into have been determined by the cost of production, including profit margins, converted at that rate.

Before this exchange stabilization, the German people's car could be produced for £200 ($800) and was selling in European markets at less than £300. On the basis of an exchange rate of 30 cents, the price of the car would be nearly doubled and would not compete with British models.

Some German commodities, such as chemicals, glass, clay and stone products, certain types of machinery, scientific instruments and cement, were competitive even under the stabilized currency rate.

Two main fears were indicated:

1. That under pressure of the need to export Germans might return to multiple exchange rates, special subsidies and other unfair methods which were a feature of the Nazi regime.

2. That German goods could be sold at a lower rate because of lower German wage levels.

Wilson said German wages were rising and productivity still was less than that of Britain.

"With regard to the control of export prices, and, in particular, to the use of 'unfair' devices to reduce prices, it is our policy to do all we can to prevent a revival in Germany of all forms of practices in international trade generally recognized as being unfair," said Wilson.

"It is our intention that the occupation statute which is now being prepared will reserve to the military governors powers to that end."

Rehearsing for Ballet Sizzling As Volkoff Creates Choreography

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP) — Rehearsals are never dull, but when fiery little Boris Volkoff is in the process of creating choreography for one of the first all-Canadian ballets the atmosphere sizzles with electricity.

After three perspiring hours of ballet, he calls end of rehearsal and explains to his guests that he's having the time of his life working on "The Red Ear of Corn" for presentation in the second Canadian Ballet Festival here March 1-5.

The Volkoff production will share honors for presentation of the first all-Canadian ballet with Ruth Sorel's Dance Group.

This Montreal company will tackle a Canadian theme, the original 'La Gaspesienne,' with music especially written for the festival by Pierre Brabant.

Toronto Man Composer

J. J. Weinzweig, Toronto composer who won top 1948 Olympic honors for chamber music, was commissioned to write the music for "The Red Ear." He has produced a difficult and mature score which combines French-Canadian and early Indian themes.

The romantic explanation for the occasional appearance of a red ear among golden corn cobs is in Indian legend readily adaptable to the ballet medium. An Indian maiden, the first Christian in the Iroquois tribe, has been promised to a pagan chief, interpreted by tall, blonde John Majcher, of Brandon, Man.

As a symbol of her betrothal, the maiden is required to offer the chief a bowl of sacrificial fruit but to retain her new-found religion, she dashes the bowl at his feet. In a rage he stabs her, and as she slinks into a field of corn to die, the blood from her wound stains one ear.

Tribal War Dance

The climax of the first act is the tribal war dance of the enraged chief as he leads his warriors in a frenzied denunciation of the dead maiden. Weinzweig has made excellent use of a minor third interval motif to suggest the primitive rhythm of early Canadian war dances.

There is less minor shading for the second act corn-husking party. During this caucus barn-dance scene village boys who find a red ear of corn are entitled to kiss the girl of their choice.

Sets and costumes for "The Red Ear", have been designed by William K. Gee of Montreal, and J. D. Williamson of Winnipeg, two art students working here. They haven't missed a trick in fashioning the simple dance costumes along authentic Indian and pioneer styles.

Brighteners

London — The official view is that you can't stop love from monopolizing the telephone.

Wilson Harris, Independent member from Cambridge university, asked in the House of Commons if a three-minute limit couldn't be put on telephone calls.

"Young men with a far-away look in their eyes, indicating something feminine at the other end of the line, are in phone boxes anything up to 10 minutes while people are kept waiting," he complained.

Postmaster General Wilfred Paling said there wasn't enough timing equipment to stop such calls.

Boston — A little dummy is putting Bernice Liberatore, 21, through college.

Bernice, a ventriloquist, says she and her dummy, "Tommy" are scraping up enough in three night engagements a week to finance a Liberal Arts course at Boston University.

Her grandfather, who practised voice-throwing as a hobby, and her father, a professional, taught her the art.

Rock Island, Ill. — A dormitory housing some 300 sleeping Augustana College co-eds was raided early Friday by 200 masked youths in a riotous climax of fraternity initiation week on the campus.

During the 10-minute disorder the woman's building's power switch was pulled, leaving the scene in darkness, and several women in hysterics.

HAZARDOUS LANDING

Regina — (CP) — Keith Malcolm, chief pilot of Saskatchewan's air ambulance service, answering an emergency call recently, landed his plane at night on a field which was lighted only by automobile headlights and a one-minute parachute flare.

Traveller in India Finds Little Of Pomp, Splendor Depicted in Books

By MICHAEL MacDONAGH

New Delhi, Feb. 28 (Reuters) —India, for centuries the centre of a civilization which influenced the eastern world from Iran to China, in assuming a new leadership in the new Asia which may influence not only the eastern but the western world as well.

The traveller in India today finds little of the pomp and splendor of the romance depicted in the books and pictures of British India.

The most important reform is the integration of the "independent" states with the rest of India, for without integration many of the other reforms would be impossible.

There were 601 states ruled by princes with a nominal independence within the framework of the Indian empire. Already a great number of these have been incorporated in the provinces federated under the central government of India. Some have joined together in their own unions. The future of two of the largest states, Hyderabad and Kashmir, remains unsettled.

Reforms in Many Fields

Reforms in other fields include large scale plans for industrialization, irrigation and development of hydro-electric power and schemes for the education of India's millions of illiterates.

Although India attained independence by negotiation and was thus spared the particular kind of bloodshed which has taken place in Indonesia and Indo-China, Indian nationalism experienced a long and bitter struggle.

As a result, while Indian feelings for Britain are warm, there is a rankling dislike for colonialism anywhere, in any form — a feeling which occasionally breaks out into eloquent defiance.

Apart from this, India for many centuries had close cultural and economic ties with the rest of Asia.

Reaches to China.

Their influence reached even to China, Formosa and the Philippines, and ancient Indian epics have been woven into the rich literature of Java and Bali. Their city of Angkor in Indio-China is said to have been a city of 1,000,000 inhabitants "larger and more splendid than the Rome of the Caesars."

There is another important factor which is influencing India's relationship with the rest of Asia.

Since Japan has been defeated and now is an occupied country and since China is preoccupied with civil war, India is the largest independent political and economic unit in Asia.

It is inevitable, therefore, that India should use her position to give effective leadership in affairs in which she is directly interested.

STIRLING

Social Evening Sponsored By Orange Lodge

Stirling — The officers and members of L.O.L. No. 110 held a social evening in their lodge room on Thursday evening, when they were hosts to about 150 guests.

Mr. Guy Bradshaw acted as chairman and welcomed the guests. The program opened with community singing, with Miss Marilyn Eggleton at the piano, and Miss Muriel McKee leading the singing. Miss Eggleton also favored with a piano selection. Vocal solo with guitar accompaniment by Mr. X. P. Mayhew. Musical selection by Mr. Ross Herimston, Sr., violin, and Ross Herimston, saxophone, with Miss Eggleton at the piano. Mr. and Mrs. F. Harden favored with several old time songs with their own guitar accompaniment.

Vocal solo by Mr. W. Reynolds accompanied by Mrs. Charles Fargey. Mr. Phil Carr favored with several recitations. Vocal solo by Miss Muriel McKee with Mrs. Harold West accompanist; another round of community singing was enjoyed. Saxophone and trumpet duet by Messrs Bert Jones and Bob Hulin accompanied by Mrs. Harold West.

Short Addresses

Mr. Elmer Post, C.D.M.; Mr. Don Rodgers, P.D.M.; Mr. Fred Bateman, J.D.D.M.; Mr. Sid Demorest and Mr. Phil Carr gave short addresses.

Mr. Harnden, the ventriloquist, and his little boy "Charlie", delighted the audience with a half hour of entertainment.

The members served refreshments after which dancing was enjoyed with music supplied by Messrs Louis Rodgers, Ken Belcour and Mrs. Charles Fargey.

Labor Govt. Will Continue To Expand Program

London, Feb. 28 (AP)—Leaders of the Labor party have decided to expand their program for government ownership of basic industry in Britain, reliable informants say.

Party leaders and cabinet officials, headed by Prime Minister Attlee held a weekend meeting at Shanklin on the Isle of Wight. The meeting was closed, but reports of the discussions came from reliable sources.

The informants said the sugar refining and water supply industries already are on a tentative nationalization list to be offered in next year's general election program and the chemical industry "quite possibly" will be added.

It was understood that trade union objections resulted in leaving the shipbuilding industry off the nationalization list. Flour milling also was reported put aside for the present.

"But the party has been examining 20 or 30 industries to see which are the most suitable and there may be some suprises before 1950," an informant said.

Cut Living Costs

The Labor government already has taken over Overseas Airways, the Bank of England, cable and wireless communications, coal mines, steel nationalization bill now is in parliament.

British newspaper reports today said the conference decided to bear down on moves to cut living costs, especially a reform in the system of distribution of food and other necessities.

Other observers said Labor would not press distribution reform to the point of nationalization and would keep hands off the co-operative movement.

The conference presumably marked the start of the campaign for the general elections expected to be called for June, 1950.

It was held after a Labor victory last week in a key London by-election and amid a growing controversy within the Conservative party over the leadership of Winston Churchill.

Cheer But Don't Vote

The Conservatives have failed to win a parliamentary seat held by a Labor member in 31 by-elections since 1945 when the government came into power.

A high Conservative leader said recently of the 63-year-old Churchill, wartime idol who still is the party's top figure:

"They cheer for Churchill but they vote for Labor."

Meanwhile, the Communists, who have only two members in the 640-seat House of Commons, issued a manifesto declaring war on the Labor party. Labor rejected Communist support in the Hammersmith South election and the Communists threatened to retaliate by putting up 100 candidates in the 1950 general elections.

Her life is in YOUR hands

A mother in hospital has just given birth to a baby boy. Only one thing can save her life—a blood transfusion. Fortunately, a supply of blood of the right type is made available by the Red Cross [illegible] save the lives of this mother and other mothers in childbirth—and to save the lives of accident victims.

But the Red Cross must have funds to support this Free Blood Transfusion Service, which is being extended as rapidly as possible to cover all Canada. It is YOUR Red Cross which is carrying on this splendid work. It is supported by you and thousands of other Canadians.

Right now, the life of a mother in hospital somewhere, is in your hands.

The Red Cross asks your help, too, in supplying aid to crippled veterans, in supporting Outpost Hospitals, in sending relief wherever diaster strikes, in giving life to suffering humanity everywhere.

Your continued support is urgently needed to carry on and extend this great work. Give willingly, generously! Give now!

Red Cross services also include: Treatment for Crippled Children, Nutrition Services, First Aid and Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, Women's Work Activities, etc.

When considering your donation, remember that this year the Canadian Red Cross needs 5 Million Dollars—40% more than the previous appeal.

Mixed Doubles Consolation

Gordon and Betty Flaxman, Bowmanville, defeated Mr. and Mrs. Billy Cornell, Port Hope 15-8, 15-8.

Crowded Gallery

A crowded gallery witnessed the eliminations and finals events on both days of play, and some fast exciting action.

Stars of the tournament were Allen Osborne and Stewart James of Bowmanville whose deft racquet manipulation and speedy footwork brought them and their doubles partners two titles. Highlighting the finals was the mixed doubles between Osborne and Mrs. L. Dibbell and Mr. and Mrs. James, all of Bowmanville. The latter extended the champions to the limit before bowing in extra points.

The ladies doubles consolation between Mrs. Jack Adams, Jean Allen, Cobourg and Betty Flaxman and Mrs. Eleanor Williams, Bowmanville went to three strenuously fought games before the Cobourg team won.

Official referee for the championship matches played on Saturday night after two day elimination events, was Allen France, well-known Queen's University badminton start of Kingston.

Championship trophies and runners-up prizes were presented to the winners and others on the Armouries floor immediately following the finals matches. Presentations were made by Mayor D. L. Storey; Lieut. Col. Jack Cousens, commanding officer 9th Anti-Tank Regiment; Major Everett Fairman, Major Frink, Cliff Lockyer, and president Cliff Palmer, Gananoque, of the Central Ontario Badminton Association. The prizes were donated through the generosity of the merchants of Belleville.

Presidents or representatives of the visiting clubs; members of the C.O.B.A. executive and Lieut. Col. Cousens were presented with colorful COBA crests by president Palmer, "in slight token of appreciation for a grand job well done."

Best in History

Commenting on the tournament, Central Ontario Badminton Association President Cliff Palmer, Gananoque, who is an executive member of the Ontario Badminton Association, said the tournament, the third since the war ended, was one of the best in the history of his organization.

"The class of badminton played in this tourney," he said, "compares very favorably with any in the province."

"We hope," he added, "that in the near future another tourney will be staged here."

Host Club Praised

He paid sterling tribute to the host club, the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club and to Lieut. Col. Jack Cousens and officers of the 9th Anti Tank Regt. R.C.A. for "outstanding hospitality".

Following the finals series on Saturday night the visiting players, representing clubs from Oshawa, Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg and Bowmanville, were guests at a reception given by the host Belleville Garrison Badminton Club in the officers' mess of the 9th Anti Tank Regt.-R.C.A. Upwards of 96 players took part in the tournament.

Mayor D. L. Storey and Mrs. Storey who were spectators at the finals events extended a cordial welcome to the visiting players, and congratulated the Association on the splendid type of play that was consistent throughout the tourney.

Major Everett Fairman, was chairman of the tourney with Captain Harold Vaughan carrying the secretarial load.

KIDDIES' DELIGHT

Nine times as much castor oil is used in industry as for medicinal purposes.

Player Over Age, Midgets Must Replay Series

What may be a serious jolt to Belleville's chances of winning a Midget "B" hockey title landed with a terrific thud over the weekend.

Out of the conventional blue came word from Ontario Minor Hockey Association officials that Carey, a playing member of the Belleville Gunners Midgets team is over-age according to his birth certificate. The recent victories over the Peterborough and Midland teams, as a result have been washed out, and the Gunners fave the Herculean task of defeating these squads again if they are to continue for the title.

Latest word from OMHA headquarters is to the effect that the Gunners must play a sudden - death game in Peterborough Tuesday night, and the first of a home-and-home series in Midland on Wednesday night. Present plans call for the kids to remain in Peterborough overnight Tuesday and continue on to Midland the following morning.

Gunners decisively defeated the Peterborough team by a round score of 13-5 and held a four-goal margin over Midland in the semi-finals of the Midget "B" series.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The slim attractive youngster flashed a wide smile as he leaned over the press box in Memorial Arena Saturday evening. He was 20-year-old Ronald Vincent, brilliant young star of the Toronto Skating Club who with pretty Joy Forsyth won the Canadian Junior Figure Skating Pairs Championship in Ottawa recently.

• • •

The blonde youngster who hails from Vancouver, at present resides in Toronto, and made his first public appearance here over the weekend as a guest star of the Quinte Skating Club since winning Dominion honors.

• • •

Ronald finished sixth in the men's senior singles in Ottawa but he's pretty proud of that junior pairs title.

• • •

"Its a pretty hard grind, this skating business," he smiled. "Its just like playing a violin. You've got to keep in constant practice if you want to get anywhere. You can't drop it, rest a while and pick it up again, if your goal is perfection."

• • •

Vincent practices six hours a day. Like Barbara Ann Scott he maintains a consistent practice schedule—and lives up to it. He has visions of the Canadian Men's Senior title and after that "who knows," he smiles. He has been skating 12 years.

• • •

Pretty Joy Forsyth, 18 years, of brunette pulchritude, is equally proud of her success in the figure-skating world. Shee, too, practices strenuously daily and one goal has rewarded her efforts thus far.

• • •

Shaking her blonde tresses and flashing a brilliant smile, tall, statuesque Maureen Senior, Canadian Junior Ladies' champion, shyly admitted to us that she has reached the ripe old age of 15 on Thursday last. "Getting to be a real old lady," she smiled.

• • •

Maureen admitted it was "the greatest thrill of my life," when the judges awarded her the junior ladies' championship in Ottawa. "It was a surprise to me, as I did not think I was quite good enough yet."

• • •

"Going after Barbara Anne's crown?" we asked.

Maureen again shook golden tresses. "I have to think of my education first," she smiled. She is a student at Branksome Hall, swank Toronto ladies school.

"But," she added, "one can dream, can't one?" We agreed. We'd just heard a dream talking.

Keen disappointment reigns in the ranks of the Belleville Gunner Midget "B" squad following the announcement over the weekend, that a star forward, Carey has been playing while over-age and as a result, the last two series washed out. However, the general feeling is that "we did it before and we can do it again." But it's going to be a tough job. The Gunners clash with Peterborough in a sudden-death game in Peterborough on Tuesday, and if they win, leave the next morning for Midland where they play the first of a home-and-home series. It's quite a jolt to the kids titular hopes as they appeared to be well on their way to the provincial finals.

It's too bad Carey did not reveal his proper age. He's a fine hockey player and one of the high-scoring forwards of the team. His loss will be keenly felt—but he has no one to blame but himself. He would have made a fine front line asset to the now-eliminated Belleville Rockets juveniles. However Bobby Strahan's Gunners are confident they can repeat, and go on in their quest for the title.

• • •

Tonight both Belleville teams, as yet undefeated in their respective groups, trek to Kingston where the Senior "B" Diesels meet the Queen's University Intermediate in their final game of the schedule, while the Junior "B" Rockets take on Queen's Juniors in search of their ninth straight victory.

Barrie Flyers Take Two-Game Lead Over Spits

(By The Canadian Press)

Hap Emms' Barrie Flyers appear to be the team to stop in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" loop.

During the weekend the underdog Flyers moved into a two-game lead in their best-of-seven semi-final playoff series by defeating Windsor Spitfires 5-4. Barrie won the first game 6-3.

In the other Junior "A" game Saturday, Toronto Marlboros downed Stratford Kroehlers 4-3 to tie their best-of-three quarter-final series at 1-1.

At Windsor, the Spitfires outshot the Flyers 43-14 but couldn't come up with the equalizer. Three goals in less than two minutes during the late stages of the second period gave the Flyers the edge they needed to stave off a Windsor offensive.

Barrie were held to a 1-1 tie in the first period, but moved out in front 4-2 in the second. Then Windsor potted two goals early in the third session to tie the game. Gord Pennell clinched it when he scored his second goal on a 20-foot screened shot.

Other Barrie marksmen were Sid McNabney, Bill Burcham and Jack Leckie. Jimmy Maxwell, Bruce Giesebrecht, Johnny Wilson and Lavergne tallied. for Windsor.

Blew Two-Goal Lead

At Toronto, the Dukes blew a two-goal lead and then recoverred to win. They went up 1-0 early in the first period on a goal by Bob McKennell and made it 2-0 in the second period. Stratford forged back when Pierre Cadieux and Jimmy Pernfuss scored to tie the score at 2-2.

In the third period the Kroehlers went ahead 3-2 when Cadieux added his second goal. With less than 10 minutes remaining in regulation time the Dukes took the offensive and tied the score on Don Windley's goal. Lorne Pirie got the game-winning marker minutes later.

Four junior squads see action tonight. The Spitfires clash with the Flyers at Barrie in the third game and the Dukes and Kroehlers clash in the deciding game of their series.

YMCA Natators Pass Various Swimming Tests

The lengthening of the days, the strength of the sun and the running streams of water from the melting snow are indications that before long summer will be here bringing with it joys as well as hazards. All winter long considerable emphasis has been placed on swimming at the YM.C.A. The impetus towards learn-to-swim will be stepped up in succeeding weeks.

Beginners who become proficient at the first stage of swimming receive cards indicating a pass for various water safety, ability, correct stroke, diving and endurance. These tests signify that the swimmer can recover an object from the bottom of the pool; can glide 15 feet under water, can bob 20 times rhythmically; can flutter kick 20 feet; can dive from the edge of the pool, and can swim 40 yards overarm stroke.

Following Pass Test

The following Y.M.C.A. members have passed this test:

Carolyn Adams, Donna McDonald, Deane Thompson, Barbara Alexander, Diane Halsey, Derla Ann Hunt, Betty Rose, Sharon Clarke, James Adams, Jack Grinrod, Gordon Irwin, Fred Papke, George Ferguson, Dick Lawrence, John Ogilvie, Bruce Elmy.

In the second stage the person must cover all of the first stage and in addition, can do a proper surface dive after a push off from the edge of the pool in deep water; can plunge 25 feet in good form or scull on back 60 feet, head first; can do the back crawl for 60 feet; can do plain front dive from diving board; and can swim 100 yards any style.

The following have passed this test:

Barbara Payne, Beverley Crocker, Barbara Keel, Joyce Smith, Sandra Winter, Ruth Watson.

In the third test the person must tread water for 30 seconds, hands out of water; do a porpoise dive or the seal turn; do the side underarm stroke 60 feet; do a running plain front dive from the board and swim 200 yards any style.

The following have passed this test:

Roy Gatland, Earl Masterson, Paul Kennedy.

The following are coming on well in the beginners class and will soon be eligible for their first test:

Jimmy Murphy, Morris Wright, David Ewald, Arthur Hunter, Douglas Burkett, Bill Foster.

Free Campaign

The objective at the Y.M.C.A. is to have every one a swimmer before summer vacation. In addition the annual free swimming campaign for boys and girls in the top grades of elementary schools 10 years and over is now being planned. The co-operation of parents and the schools has enabled the Y.M.C.A. to give free instruction to thousands of boys and girls in the past. Announcement will be made in the press and in the schools at an early date.

The swimming program at the Y.M.C.A. is in charge of the director of physical education J. Douglas Eaton, who is being ably assisted by volunteers Jean Tilker, Diana Clark, Joan Allen and Phyllis Walmsley.

Montreal, Feb. 28 — (CP) — English Hockey League teams may want to become attached as farm clubs to the National Hockey League but some experts are wondering where the seven teams of the English loop will find players.

N. H. L. teams themselves are scraping the bottom of the talent barrel, says Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson.

"Some of the material thus scraped from the minor leagues, in emergencies, looks as if the bottom of the barrel would be a very fitting place for it," he adds.

The Hockey News, official organ of the N. H. L., said this week that the English league wishes to become outright professional in the near future instead of retaining a synthetic form of amateurism.

The idea is that the seven teams now in the circuit would like to have their clubs become N. H. L. farms, staffed by players belonging to N. H. L. clubs.

"Where are National League teams going to get players to staff seven English teams?" asks Fergie. "There are too many professional leagues, and not enough professional players — that is, players of professional calibre, to go around now.

"So if there are not enough players to stock the teams now operating in the myriad professional and near-professional leagues, where will the talent come from to stock English teams."

"Percy Nicklin, former Moncton Hawks and English Olympic coach, as the emissary seeking the affiliation, wants around 100 players . . . for England. And we hope he can find them."

Slump of Detroit Red Wings Brightens Chances of Boston Overtaking the Loop Leaders

(By The Canadian Press)

After setting a hot pace for most of the season, Detroit Red Wings could be expected to have a letdown sometime. But not many thought the Wings would run into as bad a slump as they are in at the moment.

The Wings have gone winless in six starts, dropping both their weekend games by one goal, 1-0 to Montreal Canadiens and 3-2 to New York Rangers. Their once healthy 12-point lead over the second place Boston Bruins has been chopped to seven points.

With eight games to go for Detroit and nine for Boston, this margin still looks mighty formidable, but if the slump should turn into a tailspin, the ruins could take it all.

In other weekend contests, Chicago Black Hawks emerged with a pair of draws, tying Toronto 2-2 Saturday night and being held to another 2-2 sawoff by Boston Sunday night.

Tied With Leafs

Montreal's hard-earned victory boosted the Habitants' playoff stock another notch. The Habs now are tied with Toronto for fourth place, six and seven points up on Chicago and New York respectively.

A three-goal spree in the first period was too much for Detroit to overcome as New York took the Wings into camp 3-2 before 14,616 fans at Madison Square Garden Sunday night.

Payoff men for the tail-enders were Tony Leswick, Buddy O'Connor and Allan Stanley. The Detroit markers, scored by Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel, came within 37 seconds of each other in the middle frame.

A Freak Shot

Big Rogers Legers drive from the blueline which fooled Harry Lumley all the way proved the margin of victory as Canadiens upset Detroit 1-0 before a forum crowd of 11,215 Saturday.

The game was almost like a playoff preview with both teams playing it close to the vest and few chances in a close-checking affair.

There was little to choose between Boston and Chicago as these clubs battled to a 2-2 stalemate before 16,484 at Chicago stadium.

Roy Conacher gave the Hawks a 1-0 lead at 10.23 of the first period with a blistering, close-in shot.

At 13.51 of the second period the Bruins' Ken Smith connected to tie the score. They went ahead when the third period was slightly over a minute old on Jim Peters' marker.

Chicago moved into the final deadlock about four minutes later on Red Hamill's goal.

At Toronto Saturday, the Maple Leafs tie game was their 13th this season.

Coach Hap Day of Toronto, brought up two players from Senior Marlboros for the game, Ray Hannigan and Johnny McLellan. Hannigan was one of the starters but McLellan did not get into action.

Henry Invisible

Toronto gave Chicago's Jim Henry a rough time of it. They slapped him with 35 shots while Hawks were haunting Turk Broda with 21. Henry proved the major difference between a tie and defeat.

Slim Jim Conacher fired the first goal of the game at 9.20 of the first period.

A minute and a half later Jimmy Thomson and Cal Gardner set Watson up for the equalizer which he fired from 50 feet out into the top corner of the short side.

A penalty to Gus Mortson gave the Hawks an opening and Gaye Stewart picked up Doug Bentley's rebound to beat Broda from close range. Cal Gardner's goal at 7.30 of the third period earned Leafs a split in points.

President Bill Tobin of Hawks was presented with a fishing rod and reel by the North Bay Kiwanis Club before the game.

Omaha Knights In Second Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Omaha Knights moved into second place in the United States Hockey League's Northern Division last night at the expense of Kansas City Pla-Mors. Te Pla-Mors are one point down in the third spot.

The Knights bumped Kansas City Saturday 5-4 and last night 4-2 making eight straight victories over the Pla-Mors.

In the Southern Division last-place Houston battled the leading Tulsa Oilers to a 6-6 tie last night.

Bus Gagnon and Gordie Petrie each scored two goals in leading Dallas to a 9-2 decision over Fort Worth.

Minneapolis tallied four times in the third period to edge St. Paul 7-6 and break the Saints' winning streak at 11 games. Pinky Melnyk fired the winning goal with only seven second left. Bing Jukes and George Agara of St. Paul protested the tally so vigorously that Referee Harry Ornest gave them misconduct penalties.

In Saturday games Tulsa defeated Fort Worth 4-1, Dallas blanked Houston 2-0, and St. Paul shut out Minneapolis 4-0.

Large Crowds View Quinte Winter Show

The Ninth Annual Winter Show of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club staged in the Memorial Arena on Friday and Saturday wound up in a blaze of colorful glory on Saturday night.

Large crowds patronized the show with the Saturday afternoon matinee attracting a generous gathering of youngsters. The evening performance was well attended.

The colorful display of ice histronics, pantomime and Pageantry enhanced by the individual and collective efforts of Quinte Club stars and Toronto Skating Club guest artists, will go down in the club archives as one of the best ice productions offered by the popular club.

Rounds of applause greeted the various numbers as the colorful show unfolded in its glittering sequences again during the Saturday performances.

The pageants, "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King", "Dance of the Flowers", "Aladdin and the Lamp", "The Dance of the Flutes" topped by the spectacular precision number "Anchors Aweigh" and comedy skits drew the unstinted approval of the audiences at both performances.

Again the sensational young Canadian skating champions from the Toronto Skating Club, the Misses Maureen Senior, Joy Forsyth and Messrs. Ronald Vincent and W. E. Lewis stole the hearts of the crowds with their masterful ice artistry.

And so the curtain falls on another fine Quinte Skating and Tennis Club ice extravaganza for another year. It was outstanding ice entertainment and a distinct credit to the participating members, officials and those who were responsible for the production.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN CHANDLER
(For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Old Rockport, the flying horses Olympia and Ocean Drive, and Reveille have been grabbing most of the three-year-old headlines on the winter racing circuit.

Which brings up the annual question:

Where will they be on Saturday May 6? That is, along about 4:30 p.m. When the band gives with "My Old Kentucky Home."

Derby Ifs

Could be Old Rockport, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita derby last Saturday; might make the derby grade. Reveille is demonstrating some class down in Florida, and probably will be seen in the Wood Memorial, Preakness and other top three-year-old races but the colt wasn't nominated for the derby.

But the plain fact is that the big boys, such as Blue Peter, Mr. Busher, and Capot have yet to trot into the 1949 racing scene.

The horse that can handle those three stands a good chance to land the derby roses, plus the better part of the $100,000 Col. Matt J. Winn will shell out for the winner.

Nothing Outstanding

There is no Citation this spring scaring the three-year-olds into hiding. Nothing has com along yet capable of running over everything in the scramble for triple crown honors.

Ocean Drive won the Hibiscus at Hialeah. Olympia won the San Felipe. Two weeks late Old Rockport jumbled the dope in the Santa Anita Derby. Reveille copped the Everglades at Hialeah last Wednesday.

That gives a rough idea of the three-year-old situation as the $50,000 Flamingo, last of the major winter tests for three year olds, approaches.

Nevertheless, we'll have to wait until such pre-derby classics as the Wood Memorial, Chesapeake Stakes and Blue Grass Stakes before trying to figure out the Louisville Derby picture. The Wood is set for Jamaica April 23, one week after the Chesapeake at Havre De Grace. The Blue Grass is at Keeneland April 28.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago's snappy snipers, Roy Conacher and Doug Bentley continued their tight battle for the National League scoring leadership over the weekend. Collecting two points apiece as the Hawks played two draws, Conacher boosted his total to 62 points with a goal and assist while Bentley upped his to 61 with two assists. Boston's Paul Ronty, reaping points at a faster rate than anyone during the last month, hit the select circle for the first time. He added an assist to move into sixth place tie with 39 points.

BCI Hoop Star Sets Record For Quinte District

(By J. F.)

A Bay of Quinte basketball record was established yesterday, when Bob Ketcheson, starry forward of the B.C.I. Seniors, netted 43 points in the second game of a double header at Picton. The B.C.I. battlers ran roughshod over Picton by a score of 71-22, and in the last half, it was just a question of how many points Ketcheson would score. The B.C.I. sniper played the entire forty minutes in the Picton end, acting as a sneaker. At first, the Picton team disregarded him. Soon they put one check on his trail, then two. It made no difference to Ketcheson, who was hotter than all the firecrackers in China, as he hooked in shots from all angles.

At half time, B.C.I. led 31-9, and Ketcheson had chalked up seven field goals. In the third quarter, he added three more, but in the final frame, Ketcheson scorched the score sheet with eleven field goals and one foul shot for 23 points, thus achieving a pace better than a point a minute. Gerow, with eight points, was the best attacker for the Picton squad, who in no way could cope with the flying B.C.I. hoopsters.

The teams:

B.C.I.: Buchanan (4), Leporte (4), Summers (6), Galbraith, Pappas (2), Ketcheson (43), Dudley 6), Scott (2), Burke (4).

Picton: Fox (5), Dulmage, Gerow (8), Manlow (5), McCaw, Chalmers, Skitteral, Pair (4).

Score by quarters:

Almost Upset Collegians

In the first game, the scrappy Picton Juniors almost upset the high flying Collegians of Belleville. The lead changed hands several times during the game, and the outcome was in doubt until the final two minutes of play, when B.C.I. led by the slim margin of 37-35. However, four quick B.C.I. baskets dashed the hopes of the cellarite Picton squad, and Belleville triumphed 45-35. Picton showed uncanny accuracy on long shots, and made the most of their close-in tries. The red shirted Juniors of Belleville could not coast for one moment, as they were hard pressed all the way. Lloyd Faulkner with 14 points, and Mundy McClay with 13, were the heroes for B.C.I., while Pair led the Picton scorers with 11 points.

The teams:

B.C.I.: Faulkner (14), McClay (13), Morris (3), Muirhead (5), Dolan (2), Lazenby, Ewald, Shapiro (2), Batchelor ,(6), Bews.

Picton: Laundry (2), Cornelius (4), Lighthall, Anderson (2), Pair (11), Andre (2), Young (2), Reynolds, Kitchen (5), Strawbridge (7).

Score by quarters:

Claim Cadieux Over Age Limit

Montreal, Feb. 28 — (CP)—The Gazette in a sports page story today said it had been told by several players in the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association that star forward Pierre Cadieux of Stratford Kroehlers in the Ontario Hockey Association junior 'A' League is two years over the 20-year junior age limit.

The Gazette said:

"Junior players of the J. A. H. A. said that Cadieux is the same player who performed with the (Montreal) Royals' team of 1944-45 which was defeated by Toronto St. Michaels' in the Memorial Cup playoffs.

"His date of birth, given as Dec. 24, 1926, indicates that he is at least two years over the 20-year limit for junior hockey."

The newspaper did not say from whom it obtained its information about Cadieux.

Says Certificate Right

Stratford — Dave Pinkney, manager of Stratford Kroehlers Juniors, said today that the team held a birth certificate for Pierre Cadieux, showing that the former Montreal Royals forward star was born March 23, 1929. He was referring to a Montreal report that Cadieux might be over the 20-year junior age limit.

Indians Close Gap for Second By Winning Two

(By The Canadian Press)

Nine weekend games failed to change the standing in the American Hockey League, but the Springfield Indians, by knocking off St. Louis Flyers 5-2 Saturday and defeating New Haven 4-3 Sunday, managed to close the gap between themselves and the second place Hershey Bears to three points in the eastern division.

Providence Reds, who have already won the eastern title, sharpened up their scoring eyes by defeating St. Louis 6-3 Sunday and edging Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 Saturday.

The loss cost the Flyers a chance to advance in the tight battle for western division playoff positions.

Jack McGill, who paced the Reds attack with two goals, suffered a bruised back when he crashed into the boards after colliding with Johnny Mariucci, St. Louis captain, in the final period.

Other Reds scorers were Roger Bedard, Pete Kapusta, Harvey Fraser and Ray Laplante. St. Louis marksmen were Gerry Doran, Johnny Mariucci and Billy McComb.

New Haven was virtually eliminated from a playoff berth when Springfield trounced them. The loss leaves New Haven six points behind Springfield, who are in third place in the eastern loop.

Bisons Swamped

Rene Trudel, Gordon Tottle, Keith Allen, and Paul Courteau scored for Springfield while Chick Webster and Sherman White connected for New Haven.

Pittsburgh Hornets swamped Buffalo Bisons 5-2, with Eric Pogue and Fleming Mackell netting two goals each for the Hornets. Les Costello notched the other Pittsburgh tally. Doug Lewis and Ab Demarco potted goals for Buffalo.

Roger Bessette, Cleveland Barons goalie, kicked out 31 shots while his team hung up a 5-1 victory against the league-leading Indianapolis Capitals.

Gerry Reid scored the only Indianapolis goal. Pete Leswick got two goals while Church Russell, Jen Schultz and Jimmy Holota scored one each

Saturday night, Buffalo Bisons defeated Philadelphia Rockets 10-5, Indianapolis won 6-4 over Cleveland and Hershey Bears beat Washington Lions 8-3.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London, Feb. (CP) —Making life easy for indoor bowlers seems to be the hobby of Arrol Young, a young businessman from Galashiels, near Edinburgh.

Young has taken out a patent on a gadget which he says will make it possible to bowl in any hall with a level floor. Before Young came along, indoor bowlers demanded carpet rinks.

The new device is a rubber casing, shaped like a small tire, which can be adjusted on any ordinary bowl. The running surface is studded with rows on pinhead rubber pimples which tend to reduce the bowl's pace.

The "tire" has been tried on a 16 yard polished floor and its designer says, worked well despite a little extra "carry."

Another Young device is a loaded jack made of iron with lead pellets in the centre which is guaranteed not to spring too far away from the bowl on contact.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 28 (AP) — Charles Bickford has this advice for Hollywood's aging stars: Act your age.

The movie industry is faced with a paradox. The great majority of its theatre patrons are under 30, but most of its stars are over that age.

In a survey of the star system, I found that the average age of the top 50 female stars is 32.4 years. Of the top 50 male stars, 40.7 years.

Veteran actor Bickford, who is up for an Academy Award for "Johnny Belinda", agrees this is a bad situation, for the public and stars alike.

"Too many stars base their careers on personality alone," he told me. "When the stars age, their personality fades and they slip into obscurity. These overage juveniles and ingenues should stop trying to turn on the personality and start acting — if they can."

When M.G.M. brought Bickford from the stage 20 years ago, he was put into leading man parts against his will. An irascible gent who refuses to fit into any mold, he made the transition to character parts a few years later.

Middle-Age Love

The actor has long plunked for middle-aged love on the screen.

"The reason more people from 35 to 55 don't go to the movies is that they get tired of seeing young love on the screen all the time. They want to see mature love for a change.

"The success of 'Best Years of Our Lives' proves that. Fredric March and Myrna Loy were great because they played their own ages."

Charlie is still waiting for producers to cast him in a love story. And if they want to put Myrna Loy opposite him, it's fine with him.

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Dbl	2 H	Pass
3 D	Pass	4 S	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 H	Pass
6 S	Pass	Pass	Pass

The three diamond raise in number by south promised six tricks in that hand. With four, north saw enough for game in spades. This is why he jumped to four spades.

The jump by north kindled a desire in south for a slam. Four no-trump was the ace and king finder. Five hearts is convention bid for showing only one ace and one king.

South might have stopped at five spades. But he went to six and west led a club. Two losers show up; a trump and a diamond. However, a clever plan with a break took 12 tricks.

South won the first trick with club ace. A small trump was led promptly. Unfortunately for west, he ducked. Having slipped by with this, declarer went into action with his plan.

Dummy won the first trump and cashed two top hearts. A heart was ruffed in south. A club was ruffed in dummy. The fourth heart was led and ruffed by south. If west does not overruff south leads a trump.

West must win with trump ace and can now lead only a club or a diamond. The diamond saves the need of a finesse. The club would give declarer a sluff of a dummy diamond and a ruff in south.

A doubtful plan begun is much preferred to none.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking the ferst half of his 2nd cigar, and she said, William, do you know what syko somatic means in medical language?

Yes, pop said, and ma said, So do I. It's the last werd and the latest craze in the treetment of practically anything that can ale you. For instance if your heart starts to beet loudly and you rush to a docter, he'll ask you if you've been worrying about anything lately, and you tell him yes you have, and low and behold, that's what's been making your heart beet or your skin itch or whatever happens to be wrong somatic, she said, and pop said. It's probably expensive, too, if I've been worrying about something, because I know very well you happen to get hold of a specialist.

Yes indeed, some of them charge 20 or 25 dollers the ferst visit, and less accordingly, ma said. Well fortunately I can save all that money by not taking my simptoms to a docter, she said, and pop said, What simptoms, for Peet sake?

Well, I haven's been injoying my food mutch, and I'm apt to wake up at nite and go to sleep again, ma said. But I dont need a high price specialist to tell me I've been worrying about whether or not to have our bedroom done over without waiting for the price of materials and labor to go down, which they may never do till the next generation, if even source of the worry by having the werk done, and my simptoms will disappeer like magic, and we'll have a compleetly done pense) ma said, and pop said, You win, my dear, it's a woman's werld, skyo somatic or any other way.

Pontiff Grieves For World Peace As Decade Ends

Vatican City, Feb. 28 (AP) — Pope Pius XII entered upon his pontificate ten years ago greatly troubled over the world's prospects for peace. He ends the first decade of his reign no less troubled.

On March 2, 1939, when 62 cardinals in solemn conclave chose Eugenio Pacelli to succeed the dead Pius XI on the throne of Peter, the black clouds of the Second World War hung menacingly over the world.

On March 2, 1949, the frail pontiff will find the victor powers of the greatest war glaring across an "iron curtain" dividing Europe and the world.

The new Pope, later to be called "Pastor Angelicus," made his initial appeal for peace March 3, 1939. A month later, on April 9, he addressed to the world an Easter plea for peace and social justice. On August 24, he called despairingly upon the world's leaders to halt their mad course toward war.

On that black Christmas Eve of 1940, with the fate of the world trembling in the balance, the Pope listed five requirements he held basic to just and enduring peace. He called for victory over hatred, reciprocal distrust, "utilitarianism conceived as the basis and rule of laws," "divergences in the field of world economy" and egoism.

A year later, with the battle area extended to the Far East and the United States in the war, he argued that the post-war world must not permit threats to liberty and the integrity of nations, oppression of minorities, selfish monopoly of riches, total warfare, an armaments race or religious persecution.

Church Persecuted

As he approaches the double anniversary of March 2 — he celebrates his 73rd. birthday that day as well—the Pope must feel that little of his program for peace has been put into practice.

Moreover, he views with unconcealed anguish the treatment to which the church is subjected in countries under Russia's influence.

Hungary has just tried and sentenced to life imprisonment its cardinal primate, Josef Mindszenty, for treasonable conduct, in an action unprecedented in recent annals of the church. Yugoslavia, in 1946, sent the Archbishop of Zagreb, Msgr. Alois Stepinac, to prison for alleged war crimes.

Yet, if there has been much in his first ten years to grieve Pius XII, there also has been much at which he may rejoice.

In his pontificate, the church has grown mightily. There are today, he says, 400,000,000 Catholics — perhaps 100,000,000 more than the figure at the start of his reign. In ten years, the pontiff has created 53 new archdioceses and dioceses.

In the United States, the faithful now number an estimated 26,000,000 against some 20,000,000 when Pacelli put on the fisherman's ring.

In the Pope's beloved Italy, the influence of the Holy Father and the hierarchy figured largely in the victory of anti-Communist forces at the April, 1948, elections.

Again, the present Pope has gradually, and with consummate skill — brought the social doctrines of the sometimes slow-moving Roman church into tune with modern times. He has consistently stressed the dignity of individual man and his right to liberty, just recompense for his toil, and the pursuit of happiness.

Trenton Flyers Play Whitby Here Tonight

On the hockey front here tonight the Trenton R.C.A.F. Trenton Flyers clash with the powerful Whitby Red Wings in their current Intermediate "A" group playoffs. The Wings boast a potent squad as was demonstrated here last week when they handed the Flyers a hard jolting setback. Flyers, however, have a bad game off their chests and with some of the better players back in harness should give the fans some breath-taking hockey this gloaming. Game at 8.30.

AT THE McCARTHY — Laurence Olivier as Hamlet, Star, Producer and Director of this great adventure in film making. His Technicolor "Henry V" is regarded as a film masterpiece, and his work considered so outstanding that Hollywood created a Special Award for it. Knighted in the King's Birthday Honors List for his services to the stage and screen, Olivier is recognized as being Britain's greatest star. Hamlet is being presented for two performances only on Tuesday, March 1st., matinee at 2.30 and evening at 8.30, at the McCarthy Theatre.

Unified Europe Sole Means Of Preventing War

—Churchill

Brussels, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Winston Churchill speaking above communist hecklers who sought to shout him down, declared Sunday a unified Europe is "the sole means of preventing another hideous war."

Backed by a strong police detail, Britain's wartime prime minister and Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak were more than a match for the hecklers who sought to disrupt a mass meeting of the movement for European unity.

Some of the hecklers had stink bombs. Communists tossed tiny pamphlets bearing communist slogans. They set up concerted catcalls and jeers when Churchill came to the microphone. From various places in the crowd came shouts of "Down with war!"

Police arrested 60 persons, including two Belgian senators and a communist deputy. All were released later. The hecklers were scattered through a crowd of 10,000 gathered in the Place De La Bourse.

Churchill had been speaking only a few moments when he paused, looked out over the crowd and said in French:

"It is only on very great occasions, when I see a great many friends, that I attempt to speak in French. I am now going to continue in French."

Wins Great Cheer

That won him a great cheer from the crowd. "Why cannot the prominent and the small people of Europe, the mass of workers, live in peace"? he asked.

"It is because they have not yet found the international and European organizations which will let them live in peace without being tyrannized, without being attacked by other nations or ideologies."

A unified Europe, he declared, "is the only way a broad shield of light, power and virtue can be placed over the scores of millions of humble homes where little children have a right to a peaceful future."

He warned his audience against dangers from the east, declaring:

"Europe is shattered, in ruins, and half of it is in prison. The other half is not afraid, but is on guard, and it has a right to take precautions."

Communists Denied Permit

The city's burgomaster had denied the communists a permit to stage an anti-European unity meeting in the Place De La Bourse a half-hour before the European movement program was to begin.

Churchill said Saturday night that the United Nations is powerless to prevent a new war and called for a United Europe as a regional pillar of a truly effective world organization.

In a speech to the European Movement International Council, he referred to the United Nations as a "brawling cockpit" in danger of losing "the respect of those who were most ardent for its creation."

The leader of the European Unity Movement said the United Nations "has made a far less hopeful start in these first four years than its predecessor, the League of Nations."

Regional organizations which would really function are the way to correct the United Nations' defects, the wartime prime minister of Britain said.

STIRLING

'At Home' Held At High School

Stirling — The annual "At Home" of Stirling High School, held in the school gymnasium on Wednesday evening, and once again proved the highlight of the winter's social activities in the village. A large crowd was in attendance and enjoyed dancing to music provided by Bill Arnold's orchestra of Belleville.

Gymn-Dutch Scene

Representing a Dutch scene, the gym was artistically decorated, and provided an ideal setting for the occasion. Dutch plays and the Union Jack together with hand-painted Dutch figures, tulips and a windmill adorned the walls, while festoons of balloons were suspended from the corners. Overhead was a false ceiling of varied colored tissue.

The guests were greeted by Mr. Don Garrison, representing the staff, and Mrs. Garrison, Mr. C. I. Hatton of the Board of Education, Mrs. Hatton and Miss Lorraine Graves, and Mr. Ross Herimston, representing the student body.

Principal J. L. Good and Mrs. Good were unavoidably absent through illness.

Dainty refreshments were served by the pupils, under the direction of Miss I. Muirhead, teacher of Home Economics.

Crests Presented.

During the evening Mr. R. E. Fox, vice-chairman of the Board of Education, made the presentation of crests to members of the school rugby team, which won the interscholastic championship last fall.

Marmora Team Eliminates Campbellford

The league leading Marmora aggregation ousted the local squad from the TVL title hunt by a 10-0 in a wide open hockey fixture on Friday night before a near capacity crowd. The visitors turning in an effective display of two-way hockey, piled up a commanding lead in the first two periods, and came back in the final frame to fire home six markers. The local boys fought hard to avoid a shut-out, but could not pierce Marmora's stout defence to get a direct shot at goalie Borland.

The Teams

Marmora—Goal, Borland; defence, G. Leonard and E. Leonard; centre, Cousins; wings, Lavender and K. Trumble; alternates McInroy, Goodchild, Kerr, E. Trumble, Nicholson and Loveless.

Campbellford — Goal, Nelson; defence, Tanner and Hendy; centre, Robinson; wings, Blake and Free; alternates, Smith, Hay Kruger, Hendricks and Poloquin.

Referees: W. O'Malley and J. Grey, both of Trenton.

PREFERS MEDITERRANEAN JOB

Goderich, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Charles Hillingsworth has one of the coldest and loneliest jobs in this part of Canada. Twice weekly he walks around the bottom of Goderich harbor inspecting work on a new 300-foot wharf. Billingsworth prefers former diving jobs he had in the warm waters of the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Suez Canal.

C.R.U. Ups Prices For East-West Football Final

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—It wouldn't surprise anybody if western Canada's delegates to the Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting chuckle to themselves all the way home.

They had just about everything their way at Saturday's session and, before breaking up, tendered a cordial invitation to hold the 1950 meeting in Winnipeg—which was accepted.

They pumped for higher admission prices for the Grey Cup final, and got them. They held "no particular objection" to Toronto staging the annual classic but worked out a deal whereby it no longer is a "must" to hold the final at Varsity stadium which accommodates about 20,000 persons.

These two moves alone could make the east-west final the biggest sports attraction—from the standpoint of crowds and gate receipts—the Dominion has ever had. It conceivably could be a teaser for 40,000 persons who would pay an estimated $100,000 for the privilege.

Might Change Venue

The westerners said the move didn't mean their champions wouldn't play at Varsity, but that "had the idea" a larger stadium—and they specifically mentioned the exhibition stadium in Toronto which will hold an estimated 40,000 crowd might be the venue. With the $3 ticket top, the gross gate could hit the six-figure mark.

The westerners asked for a $5 top for east-west final tickets but declared themselves satisfied to make it $3, compared to $2 in previous years.

Both western and eastern representatives brought in motions regarding the Grey Cup ticket allocation and it was worked out that the two football unions whose teams meet in final would each receive 30 per cent of the tickets. Thirty per cent also would go to the C.R.U. for distribution through a central selling agency. The remaining ten per cent would go to the losing team in the eastern Canada final.

Art Chipman of Winnipeg moved that the C.R.U. rules committee "should be terminated" and a new slate appointed but he agreed with an amendment, moved by Myer Insky, representing the Quebec Football Union, recommending that the committee remain until 1950 and from that date one member for each union be elected for a three-year period. The question was referred to incoming executive.

Something they ALL like ...it's Good for them, too!

How trying it is when families don't like the things that are good for them! You won't have that trouble with Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes.

For this distinctively different cereal does more than delight them with its famous Grape-Nuts flavor in the form of crisp, honey-golden flakes. It also gives them nourishing food essentials for which they ALL have a daily need!

Why Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes taste so Different ...are so Nourishing

Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes are made not from one but from TWO grains—sun-ripened wheat and malted barley—blended, baked and toasted to a flavor that is different from that of any other ready-to-eat cereal in the world.

So there's a double reason why they provide needed nourishment . . . useful quantities of carbohydrates for energy; proteins for muscle; phosphorus for bones and teeth; iron for the blood and other food essentials. Get Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes the very next time you go to the grocer's.

Youth Claims He Bought Wine Without Trouble

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—William Griesinger, Ontario Liquor Commissioner, was reported Saturday to have said he will launch a 'thorough investigation' into the case of Frank Peterson, 17, who claimed he bought wine without difficulty in retail stores despite regulations that purchasers must be 21.

The youth earlier was fined $10 on an intoxication charge.

The Toronto Telegram reported Saturday that a 17-year-old office boy, who looked 15, had purchased a bottle of wine from a wine store Saturday. No questions were asked about his age, the paper said.

Whisper In The Night

BY MARIE BLIZARD

The house on Westbury Avenue bustled with activity. In the kitchen, Mrs. Mullins finished frosting the last of the little cakes. The salads and the hot dishes that would be popped into the oven half an hour before late supper were ranged along the shelves of the outer pantry. Savoy soup simmered on the back of the old fashioned range. A pale pink ham and a great browned turkey were covered with snowy linen on top of the icebox.

Marion stood at the door of the guest room with a worried frown creasing her brow. She checked again the number of towels, the writing desk, the magazines on the table by the bed, the number of hangers in the closet. She was a little in awe of Rosalie's beau from New York.

She looked at the hall clock for the fifth time in as many minutes. "Rosalie," she called, "hadn't" you better start to ge dressed? You've only an hour, and you don't want your young man to be left standing alone at the railroad station."

Rosalie moved the lounge nearer the fireplace in the back living room and shouted back, "I'll need only ten minutes to dress. Marion, I think I'll put these pots of leaves on the floor beside the fireplace."

Tom came in, his arms filled with firewood. "We'll start the fire when you leave. Then we'll have a nice blazing one when you get back."

"And don't forget to have the cocktails ready, Tom. Tell Mrs. Mullins to give you the tray on the dining room table. Those are the things I made to go with the cocktails." She looked about her in an expert manner, and was pleased.

The old rooms did look lovely. Brown and golden autumn leaves and huge chrsanthemums in earthenware bowls were distributed everywhere. The old red damask curtains looked mellow and graceful at the long windows. Brass gleamed over the hearths and on the mantels. The floor shone with wax and much rubbing.

"Doesn't it look nice, Tom? I think it looks as pretty as a country club."

"That front parlor looks kind of empty in the corner," he said judicially.

Rosalie put a finger to her lips. "That's where the orchestra will be." The "orchestra" would mean young Joe Powaleski at the piano and his "rhythm boys", a banjo player and a violinist," and a drummer if I can get one, Miss Bates."

"Give me a hand, Tom. I think we can fill it up until they get here."

Marion stood at the top of the staircase. "Rosalie, It's five o'clock."

Rosalie flew up the stairs. "I'll wear what I've got on," she said. "There's no use dressing twice in three hours." Rosalie didn't realize how indicative of her frame of mind that statement was.

"Oh, dear, I hope your friend won't wear a tuxedo," Marion said, worry in her voice.

"Call him Norman, Marion, and stop worrying about him. He's put up with worse things than he'll find here." She thought of Louise Ashland and her poor pretenses, and pride filled her.

Any qualms Rosalie might have felt were missing when she saw him alight from the train.

"It's been the longest week of my life," he said. "I've missed you."

She said, "Have you?" and eyed his large suitcase, his impeccable tweeds. She said, "I'll break the news to you at once—we aren't dressing tonight. We're not at all fashionable. The girls will wear evening gowns, but the men won't."

"You little goose! I think you're cute to worry about me. I'm going to love every bit of it and I don't have to go back until Monday. That's how much I wanted to see you."

Tom was waiting for them on the porch. He held out his hand, "Glad to have you with us, sir," he said. Rosalie was proud of him. And of Marion, too, of the simple dignity with which she welcomed him. "You'd like to put your things away right away, wouldn't you?" she said, leading him up the stairs. "The nursery is next to your room, but the babies are quiet."

Norman was charming. He said he'd love to see the babies at once. He played with them for a few minutes before coming downstairs.

The cocktails were icy and the little tidbits were hot. A bright fire glowed in the hearth. Rosalie expanded with relief. The scene and her people compared favorably with anything she had known in the two months past, and she wouldn't have been afraid to entertain Norman's whole family, the Back Bay sisters and all.

"Why don't you take Mr. Carteret for a little walk before dinner?" Marion suggested, and to Norman, "we're having a simple dinner at seven and our other guests are coming at nine."

"How's Louise?" Rosalie asked when they were alone.

"Louise?" Oh, she's fine, why?"

"I was a little worried about her. She was .. er, troubled when I saw her last."

"About money?" Norman laughed. "That's nothing new. She gets over it. She wouldn't know what to do without money to worry over. They're getting a car."

"Then your deal with Fritz went over?" There was a lift in Rosalie's voice.

Norman took a long time to light a cigarette from his gold lighter. "Not yet," he said easily, "but I have something else on that I'll tell you about when it's settled. It's going to be a big surprise to you."

"Tell me now," she demanded.

"I'll tell you very shortly."

She had to be content with that. And to tell the truth, she gave it no more thought. She was giving her first big party and it was the most exciting thing that had ever happened to her.

After dinner, to receive her guests, Rosalie stood at the foot of the staircase in her little red crepe gown, a cluster of yellow asters caught in her dark curls.

Lucy and Hank Gaynor came first. They exclaimed over Rosalie, over the house, over the decorations. The Martins came next and soon the rooms were filled.

The Rhythm boys went into action — slightly off key but earnestly. Couples paired off to dance and every one, seemingly, wanted to dance with Rosalie. She was dancing with Norman when Terry arrived with Marjorie Upham.

Terry stood a head taller than Norman, handsome — Rosalie discovered for the first time — in his dark blue suit. It sat well on his shoulders. She saw it as he danced by with Marjorie Upham's dark blonde head close to his shoulder.

She stopped and turned to them giving each a hand. Marjorie said, "We're sorry to be late, Rosalie, and so spleased to be here. We had a late dinner at my house tonight. I had to cook it, but Terry didn't mind.

"So glad you could come," Rosalie murmured and introduced them to Norman. Before she returned to the dance, she said, "there's punch in the diningroom."

She hadn't the slightest intention of looking after them as the evening went on, but she found herself, strangely, looking for the broad shoulders in dark blue and Marjorie's pale blue dress, she always found them together.

"Is that the dashing man from New York?" the little Lowell girl asked her. The Lowells had moved to Elmford only a week before.

"Where?" Rosalie asked.

The Lowell girl pointed toward Terry, who with a plate in each hand was obviously searching for some one. He crossed the room as Rosalie watched and went past the couples settling for supper on the stairs to where Marjorie waited on the top step. "No," she said shortly, "that's Terry Keating. Come along, I'll introduce you to Mr. Carteret."

Mr. Carteret was not to be found at first when Rosalie sought him, the Lowell girl in tow. After a search she located him in the pantry. He put down his punch glass. Rosalie realized that when he was not dancing with her, he was at the punch bowl. She said, "come along and meet a pretty girl and have some supper."

He drew her in and shut the door. "We'll have supper here," he said firmly. "You're the only pretty girl at this party and I want you alone. I want to talk to you."

Rosalie said, "It isn't very polite for me to sit out here, Norman. It's supper time —and I think I ought to see that my guests are taken care of."

"You're sure that you don't mean you want to keep an eye on the local Lothario?"

"Why, Norman Who is the 'local Lothario'?"

"Keating. I'm not blind, darling. That's because I'm jealous."

Rosalie felt a flush rise to her cheeks. "Terry is only an old friend," she said.

"That's good because he seems to be deeply enamoured of the very attractive Miss Upham."

There was no reason why that should annoy her, but it did. After all, she was fond of Terry and .. and ..

"Come along, Norman," we'll have plenty of time to talk alone to morrow. Right now, I'm hungry."

Norman's hand on her wrist detained her. "Rosalie, I have something to say to you that won't wait." He turned her palm up and held it to his cheek His cheek was hot and Rosalie felt uncomfortable.

"I've really got to get back, Norman. It must look very queer for me to be away so long. You've no idea how people notice those things . and talk about them."

"Rosalie, let's give them something to talk about. Let's announce our engagement tonight. What I've been trying to say is. will you marry me?"

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 28 — (AP) — Official sources said last night martial law has been declared and curfew imposed in all localities where army garrisons are stationed. (The dispatch gave no reason for the decrees.)

SARTORIAL QUIRK

In Buenos Aires it is illegal to appear in public in shirtsleeves though pyjamas are permitted.

Police Clear Traffic As Injured Child Rushed to Hospital

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP) — A grateful father, Thomas Kerr, praised Toronto police yesterday for escorting his injured daughter, Susan, four, from their home on Toronto's western outskirts to the Hospital for Sick Children in Downtown Toronto. A doctor advised that Susan be rushed to hospital after she had been accidentally struck with a baseball bat. Police held traffic at every intersection and provided a squad car when traffic became thick. Doctors say Susan will be all right.

Brighteners

Tokyo — Former Viscount Shigeyuki Ishikawa was in jail on a theft charge today.

He was arrested near a public bath house. His loot, said police, was Japanese underwear.

Hard times were blamed by the former nobleman for his plight.

Oxford, O. — Rise Stevens, Metropolitan opera star forgot the words in one of her songs here last night but then carried on to the enjoyment of a Miami University audience of 3,500.

After singing two numbers, Miss Stevens began the spiritual "Oh, What a Bekrzlidqty."

She stopped abruptly and then told the audience "Oh, Oh, Sorry. I have forgotten the words."

She smiled, took a deep breath, signalled her accompanist and started again. She remembered the words on the second round.

Chambersburg, Pa. — Guy B. Cormany filed suit for $12,000 damages charging false arrest.

He won his case.

The award: 50 cents.

The 46-year-old Cormany complained he was arrested on disorderly conduct charges when he protested against a parking violation. His accusation was denied.

The jurors deliberated two hours before returning their 50-cent verdict last night. They did not explain why they fixed that sum.

LIKELY SUSPECT

Edmonton — (CP) — Police took one look at Mervin F. Coburn recently and arrested him. He was wearing two diamond wedding rings (women's), a woman's gold bracelet and a diamond stick-pin. In his pockets, they found a set of silver drinking cups, a gold belt, a fountain pen, and a pair of horned-rim glasses. All were stolen property.
